Lewis Says End Strike But Miners Are Defiant

Men Won't Comply, District Official Says; Truman Asks Board For Report Today

By The Associated Press

John L. Lewis late yesterday ordered his soft coal miners to stop their outlawed Nation-wide strike in an obvious effort to head off possible contempt of court fines.

But the first reaction from the big Eastern production areas raised doubts whether there would be all-out compliance. Most union officials withheld comment, but one said the men "are still madder than hell."

At Pittsburgh, Secretary Harry Fennett of the United Mine Workers, District 31, in West Virginia, said the order "won't do any good" without a contract. He added that "the miners are fed up with orders to go back to work."

"Return to work without delay . . . for the protection and welfare of our union and all its members," the United Mine Workers chieftain wired the 370,000 men who walked out Monday in defiance of a Federal court order forbidding a strike.

It was Lewis' second message advising the miners to obey the court, but this one was far more fervent. If they comply, it will restore production Monday morning just as Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech opens court to decide whether to turn his 10-day restraining order into a full-fledged 80-day Taft-Hartley injunction against a strike.

U. S. Prepares Action

Lewis acted amid signs that the Government was readying action perhaps today unless Lewis and the soft-coal operators reached a contract agreement in the dispute which threatened to cripple vital industries within a short time.

The day brought talk of a contempt of court petition against UMW—and perhaps an attempt to seize the mines.

President Truman will get a full report today from his fact-finding representatives at the negotiations.

Federal mediators early today reported "no real progress" in the last-ditch contract talks. The talks

UPW Ousted From Veterans Administration

Action Taken Day After CIO Ejected Union as Leftist

The left-wing United Public Workers was summarily ousted yesterday as representative of all employes in the Veterans Administration by that agency's boss, Carl R. Gray, jr.

In telegrams to all VA facilities, he announced that VA has withdrawn recognition of UPW and will no longer receive the union as the representative of employes, nor consult on any employe matters.

Furthermore, General Gray ordered that his telegram be read to all VA employes. It is effective immediately.

The VA cutoff followed by only one day the national CIO executive board's ouster of UPW from CIO ranks. The executive committee voted the ouster, 34 to 2, following receipt of a report which charged that the UPW consistently followed the Communist line instead of CIO policies.

Though General Gray did not say his action was a result of the CIO move, a VA spokesman, asked if this were true, replied, "Yes, you can say so."

Most Contacts in New York

Because most of the VA employes are under Civil Service, UPW never has been able to negotiate for its members on wages. But in a number of places, it has negotiated on grievances and working conditions, General Gray said last night.

No union representation election has ever taken place, so VA officials said they do not know how many of their employes are members of the UPW. They said the greatest number of contacts has been in New York.

At the time that Philip Murray, CIO president, announced the UPW ouster, he said that the national union had about 30,000 members in the country. He said that immediate steps would be taken to "protect the membership" of UPW and other unions ousted for following the Communist line.

Crime Probe Fails to Find 'Mr. Three-X'

Ford Called in Vain; Lawyer Tells of Paying Fine, Doesn't Know Money's Source

By Edward F. Ryan and Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporters

New names of alleged figures in the Washington gambling world turned up in the House Crime investigation yesterday, but the identity of "Mr. XXX" remained a mystery.

The investigating subcommittee heard more bondsmen testify how known Washington gamblers might figure in the payment of cut-rate premiums on bonds for hirelings arrested in gaming cases.

Another witness, H. Clifford Allder, lawyer in the office of Attorney Charles E. Ford, testified on the basis of a Municipal Court record that he was the lawyer who gave a numbers writer $50 to pay the fine for conviction on a charge of possessing numbers slips, but the money was furnished by someone else, he didn't know whom.

Allder would say only that he paid the fine, if he was the lawyer involved and if the lawyer involved paid the fine.

Unable to Locate Ford

Ford himself was called several times by Committee Counsel Hyman I. Fischbach, but did not show up for the hearing. Allder told the committee that he had calls in for Ford; and a committee aide tried to locate him by telephone, but did not succeed.

Attorney Ford and other bondsmen may be called to the Monday hearing. The hearing will shift to other topics starting at 10 a. m. today, but Committee Chairman James C. Davis (D., Ga.) would not say what they will be. Today's is scheduled as an all-day hearing.

Fischbach questioned bondsmen to determine whether known gamblers put up bond for their employes.

He questioned Allder to determine whether a known gambler gave him $50 to pay the fine of a numbers writer Allder defended.

All in 24 Hours

The numbers writer is John A. Edwards, who testified Thursday he was arrested, jailed, released defended and fined within 24 hours in April, 1947, and it did not cost him a cent.

Fischbach produced a District Court record which showed that Ford had represented Edwards, but Allder testified that he had signed Ford's name on the record.

Edwards and Allder stared at each other across the witness table while Fischbach asked each if he recognized the other.

"Well, that was three years ago, sir," Edwards started, and took another long look at Allder. "I don't know but it seems the man I talked to had black hair, unless this man has changed since then." Allder put his hand to his graying locks and smiled.

Allder stared back at Edwards, and said, "I have no recollection of having defended this man, but I say that his face looks familiar. I think I have seen this man before."

Later when Fischbach con-

Sothoron Is Told He Risks His Career In Prince Georges Clash Over Bill

Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17. Vigorous opposition to Senator L. Harold Sothoron's proposed reorganization of Prince Georges County was voiced at a special hearing in the Maryland House of Delegates here tonight.

Heated charges and counter charges filled the air.

Most startling of these was a charge by Walter F. Mulligan, president of the county civic federation, that a member of the House of Delegates had told him that $100,000 had been spent to put the slot machine bill through the last session of the legislature.

In all, 17 persons spoke against Senator Sothoron's proposal to streamline the county governmental form, and eight spoke for it.

At hearing's end, with a dozen persons on their feet asking for rebuttal statements, Senator Sothoron adjourned the meeting and promised that the Prince Georges County delegation would consider the views of both sides.

Mulligan, one of the opposition leaders, told Sothoron he would be "signing your political death warrant" if he passed the bill.

Other protestants advanced these major arguments:

1. That nobody told the people of Prince Georges County anything about the bill before it was presented.
2. That Sothoron's bill does not and cannot give home rule to Prince Georges County.
3. That the idea of a full-time county commissioner as proposed by Sothoron does not meet modern needs for a county head disassociated from politics.
4. That the bill does not protect the rights of county citizens against acts of the revised commission.

Urges Bill Withdrawal

One of the early speakers, Mrs. Reuben Bogdanoff, president of the Prince Georges County League of Women Voters, urged that the bill be withdrawn, that a bill be drafted ordering a government survey of the county "by a reputable and recognized organization; that public hearings be held on the survey's findings, and that the county residents get a voice in passage of a bill then prepared on the basis of the county's needs."

Gross Deceit Charged

Jerrold Powers, attorney for the Prince Georges County Commissioners and one of the principal proponents of the proposal, declared it would be the "grossest kind of deceit" for the commissioners to be given the right to exercise powers and then not act on those powers. He contended that Sothoron's proposal would enable the county commissioners to set up a framework of Government under which they could answer the county's needs as they exist to-

Trains Carrying 400 Collide Head-on On Long Island Line

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N. Y., Feb. 17 (AP)—An estimated 19 persons were reported killed and as many as 100 injured in the head-on crash of two trains here tonight.

Rockville Center, N. Y., Feb. 17. (AP)—Two Long Island railroad trains crashed headon here tonight and first reports said five persons were killed and 50 injured.

An unidentified trainman on the scene reported the dead.

Sergt. Charles Conger at police headquarters, estimated the injured.

Paul Back, 21, riding in the second car of the train, said "there were a lot of people lying around seriously cut and hurt."

Back, who escaped serious injury, said many persons were trapped in the cars and their screams knifed through the night in the dead silence that followed the rending crash.

Back said he heard one man scream from the wreckage:

"Kill me, please kill me."

He said a woman pinned beneath the weight of tons of shattered steel was alive and crying.

"Get the weight off me."

Both trains were electric powered.

All available doctors in this area of Long Island were called in to assist.

A rescue squad and a floodlight were dispatched by police in Lynbrook, N. Y., a nearby Long Island community.

Rockville Centre is about 30 miles east of Manhattan on the south shore of Long Island, in an area of Nassau County heavily populated by residents who commute back and forth from New York.

James O'Donnell, taxi dispatcher here, said one of his men had visited the scene and given this account:

The trains were the westbound train leaving Rockville Center at 10:31 p. m. (EST) for New York and running a few minutes late, and the eastbound train from New York due here at 10:36 p. m.

The trains met head-on with a great rending noise that was heard for blocks.

Fire broke out at once but was quickly quelled or died by itself.

Lead cars of the trains were derailed but did not topple over.

An entire side of one lead car was ripped off.

The crash occured about 10:30 p. m. (EST) in the western edge of the city, on the main branch of the Jamaica to Montauk line of the Long Island.

A railroad trainman said the first two cars of the eastbound train were badly wrecked and the lead car of the westbound train smashed.

One load of injured was removed to the South Nassau Communities Hospital.

The impact telescoped some cars on both trains.

Rockville center has only volunteer firemen.

They were summoned to the scene with firemen from Lynbrook and Oceanside, the closest villages.

Police in New York City were told the eastbound train out of New York carried about 300 passengers and the westbound train about 100.

The Long Island Railroad refused to give out any details of the crash until a public relations man could arrive to pass out information.

Back, Brooklyn college student, who was on the eastbound train, gave this account:

"There was a tremendous shock. My head hit the wall and the lights went out in all the cars.

"I got up and walked toward the exit door and I heard screams for help. So I started to investigate the westbound train.

"There were a lot of people lying around seriously cut and hurt—broken bones and so forth.

"One man was screaming: 'Kill me, please kill me.' He thought his back was broken.

"Another woman pinned down in the middle of the first car screamed: 'Get the weight off me.'

"It was about 10 minutes before the first doctors and firemen arrived. I didn't see any fire at all.

"The head car of the westbound train was split in two, one side of it was sheared off."

3 Picked Up, Then Freed In $28,351 Bank Holdup

Trio Rob Branch of Hamilton National On Alaska Ave., Escape in Auto

Metropolitan police and FBI agents last night were joined in a widespread manhunt for three slick holdup men who escaped with $28,351 in cash from the Shepherd Park Branch of the Hamilton National Bank shortly before noon yesterday.

Police would not reveal whether the trail was hot or cold in the hunt for the trio who pulled the well-planned job with one gun.

So slickly and quietly was the job done, that the trio nonchalantly made its getaway in a car parked directly out front with no one on the busy street aware the hold-up had taken place. There were no customers in the bank at the time.

The bank is located about 200 feet south of the intersection of Georgia and Alaska aves. and Kalmia rd. nw., at 7731 Alaska ave. nw.

The bank does not have a burglar alarm system. The bank manager, who had been ordered into a back room with two other employes, was unable to give the alarm by telephone until several minutes after the bandits made their getaway.

The car they apparently used, which was stolen in the District sometime after 9 a. m., was found abandoned in the afternoon at 13th st. and Locust rd. nw., only five blocks from the bank. An empty Treasury Department coin bag was found in the back of it.

FBI in Case

An interstate lookout for the three men with the following descriptions was flashed by District police and the FBI, who entered the case immediately:

The first man, who was armed, was described as being about 38 years old, 6 feet tall and weighing 160 pounds. He spoke with an Italian accent, had a ruddy complexion and sharp features and dark hair. He was wearing a brown topcoat, white shirt, dark tie, dark gray hat and brown leather gloves.

The second man, who stood at the door, was described as being about 30 to 35 years old, 5 feet 10½ inches tall, weighing 170 pounds. He wore a light gray overcoat. There was no description of the third man, who waited in the car, other than that he was referred to as "Reds."

3 Picked Up

Three men, answering the general description of the bandits, were picked up by police after they were spotted in a car at 14th and Randolph sts. nw. shortly after 5 p. m. yesterday. They were released about an hour later, however, after the bank employes failed to identify them.

Senate Votes Lid Off Rents In Virginia

Fenwick Fight To Save Arlington, Other Areas Beaten

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Richmond, Va., Feb. 17.—The Virginia Senate voted today, 29-5, to lift rent controls throughout the State on June 10.

Two attempts by Senator Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington to keep his county, Warren County and the City of Danville under controls failed.

The first was an amendment to the State-wide repealer for "local option" decontrol as permitted by Federal law. It was killed by voice vote.

The second was an amendment to exempt the same areas from decontrol until July 1, 1952. It was ruled out of order by Senate President L. Preston Collins after the Senate had rejected the original Fenwick amendment and inserted an "emergency" clause to make the law effective June 10.

The bill, sponsored by Delegate John B. Boatwright of Buckingham, now goes back to the House of Delegates for concurrence in Senate amendments.

One is the emergency clause. Another is the action of the Senate

He Drove Away

Blast Turns Worker Into Human Torch

Louis E. Meeks, 23, of 6720 MacArthur blvd. nw., exploded into a human torch last night when gasoline he was draining from a ditch-digger ignited.

He was in critical condition at Mount Alto Hospital with first, second and third-degree burns covering 60 percent of his body.

Police said the explosion occurred at about 7 p. m. in the 4900 block of Indian lane nw. Meeks apparently managed to extinguish his flaming clothing, then drive about four blocks in his own car to Loughboro rd. and Maud st. nw.

There, possibly, the pain became too intense and he flagged down a passing motorist, William T. Lynch, 42, of Potomac, Md., who was accompanied by his son, William H. Lynch, 16.

Lynch said he was driving slowly and that the man rushed over to

Byrd Joins GOP Attack On Truman

Views Given in Party Speech Add 'Insult To Injury', He Says

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Republicans struck back yesterday at President Truman for his Jefferson-Jackson Day speech but the most vehement retort came from a member of his own party—Senator Byrd (D., Va.).

Byrd took up Mr. Truman's statement that the Republican slogan, "Liberty against Socialism," was an insult to the intelligence of the American people, and said:

"If it is an insult to the intelligence of the American people to say that we are on the road to socialism, as the President 'cracked' last night, then the insult is added to the injury already done our intellect by Truman proposals and propaganda.

"We have been moving steadily down this primrose path for some time, but we shall be irrevocably committed to socialism — from which there is no retreat once it is intrenched—if Congress adopts but three more of the President's projects."

Sneator Byrd, who was not one of those who paid $100 to attend the Jefferson-Jackson dinner, listed the three as follows:

"Socialized medicine (British brand)—the project assigned to Oscar Ewing, who was sent to England at public expense to get the 'low down' as a basis for his propaganda.

"Socialized agriculture — called the Brannan Plan after its propagandist of the same name, which would give the Federal Government control over the sale and distribution of food, despite fundamental opposition by the great farmers' organizations.

"Extension of socialized housing —the project long ago adopted by

Miss Barlow, T. C. Scalley Due To Get Judgeships

Thomas C. Scalley and Miss Mary C. Barlow are reasonably sure of being nominated as judges of the Municipal Court here. However, difficulties have been encountered in the selection of a third judge.

This was offered yesterday as an explanation for President Truman's delay in filling the vacancies. Congress passed a bill to add three $13,000-a-year judges to the court nearly four months ago.

Scalley, a native of Boston, received his law degree from Georgetown University in 1928 and was admitted to the local bar in 1930. He is a former Deputy Register of Wills. Miss Barlow, a native of Grafton, W. Va., is law librarian of the Municipal Court and a teacher of bibliography at the National University Law School.

Stork Club Bars Elliott Roosevelt, Rumored Fiancee

New ork, Feb. 17 (AP).—The Stork Club tonight barred Elliott Roosevelt and Gigi Durston, the girl he reportedly is going to marry.

Roosevelt, recently divorced from his third wife, Actress Faye Emerson, and Miss Durston, a singer, took exception yesterday to an announcement from the club that Owner Sherman Billingsley was to be host at their engagement party. The party was canceled after Roosevelt denied any date had been set for his engagement to Miss Durston and had telephoned his objections to the club.

Yetta Golove, Club publicity agent, said, "We thought we were doing them a favor. But they both got mad."

Phone Workers Ask 15-Cent Pay Increase

The CIO Communications Workers of America yesterday offered to settle their dispute with the Bell Telephone System for a "package" wage increase of 15 cents an hour.

Union President Joseph A. Beirne announced he has directed CWA's 25 negotiating divisions to make the offer in an effort to "get bargaining off dead center" and avert a walkout of 100,000 phone workers set for Friday. Details on Page 14.

Mao Hails Pact As He Departs

Says It Will Influence Future of Mankind

Moscow, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Chinese Communist Leader Mao Tze-tung said tonight that unity between his country and Russia was so strong it would influence "the future of all mankind."

"Soviet constructive experience in the economic and cultural field as well as other fields will be an example for constructing the new China," Mao said.

He added that "words could hardly express the depth of the mutual understanding and friendship based on fundamental interests of our great peoples of China and the U. S. S. R."

The Moscow radio said tonight that Mao and his Foreign Minister, Chou En-lai, left Moscow today to return to China. The two were seen off by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, the broadcast added.

Mao arrived in Moscow in December and was joined later by Chou to carry on Sino-Russian treaty negotiations.

Vogeler Aides Admit Spying

American Expected To Take Stand Today

Budapest, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Three codefendants of Robert E. Vogeler, American businessman, today pleaded guilty to "spying" for the United States and Great Britain.

Vogeler himself and three other defendants were not heard, but were expected to plead and testify Saturday.

Edgar Sanders, British relative of Hollywood Actor George Sanders, and two Hungarians admitted their guilt at the opening session of the trial in the ancient Criminal Courts Building.

(CBS Correspondent Alexander Kendrick reported the first floor of the courthouse was festooned with portraits of Josef Stalin and the streets outside decked with Red banners in observance of "Soviet-Hungarian Friendship Week.")

(The Associated Press reported that Kendrick said Vogeler showed no signs of strain, although he was pale after three months confinement.)

Two of the defendants linked former United States Minister Selden Chapin and other members of the United States Legation here with the "spy ring" allegedly led by Vogeler.

The trial was before Judge Vilmos Olthy, who sentenced Josef Cardinal Mindszenty to life imprisonment. Gyula Alapal, prosecutor who handled the cases of Mindszenty and former Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk, represented the state.

Rhee Says Soviet Gave War Goods To North Korea

Tokyo, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—President Syngman Rhee of Korea told Gen. Douglas MacArthur today the Russians have sent important amounts of war material to North Korean Communists in recent weeks, reliable sources said tonight.

Rhee is said to have told MacArthur that the Russians presented 70 or 80 fighter planes and a regiment of tanks to the North Korean "People's Army."

Rhee also charged unidentified vessels have been landing Communist guerillas, military equipment and other supplies on the South Korean coast.

Terrific Blast Reported In Soviet's Far North

Oslo, Norway (Saturday), Feb. 18 (AP). — Unconfirmed reports early today from Kirkenes, in northern Norway, said a terrific explosion was heard on Russian territory in or near the nickel producing town of Salmijaervi, in the Petsamo area.

O'Dwyer Gives Okay To Hire Rain-Maker

New York, Feb. 17. (U.P.).—Mayor William O'Dwyer today gave the order for New York City to hire a rain-maker.

O'Dwyer told Water Commissioner Stephen Carney to get a meteorologist to try to ease the critical water shortage by creating rain.

Carney was encouraged to recommend the step by Dr. Irving Langmuir, scientist who first learned how to create rain by seeding supercooled clouds with dry ice.

Word From Lilienthal

H-Bomb Production Geared To 'Very Tight Time Schedule'

By The Associated Press

President Truman's order for development of the hydrogen super-bomb and other atomic weapons is now geared to a "very tight time schedule," it was stated yesterday.

Word on this speed-up in the Nation's atomic arms race with Russia came from David E. Lilienthal, who retired Wednesday from his post as chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission.

In a letter to Senator Holland (D., Fla.), Lilienthal repeatedly stressed "the extreme importance of early completion" of a new $162,400,000 gaseous diffusion plant at the great Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic works.

Lilienthal said the project, known as K-31, is "a vital part" of the atomic expansion plan approved by President Truman.

"The purpose of the expansion program is to further the common defense and security of the United States," Lilienthal wrote, "and is one in which a very tight time schedule has been established in order to meet the military goals upon which the expansion program is based."

President Truman disclosed on January 31 that he had ordered the Atomic Energy Commission to "continue" work on the so-called hydrogen "hell" bomb as a defense measure.

Lilienthal's letter, dated February 15, was in reply to a query by Senator Holland asking the AEC chairman to explain why the multi-million-dollar "K-31 project" was awarded without competitive bids. Holland said other contractors had complained.

Lilienthal explained that it would have caused an 18-month delay if the AEC had let the contract on a competitive basis instead of giving it without bids to the Maxon Construction Co., of Dayton, Ohio.

100,000 Spectators Expected

First Auto Show Since 1940 To Open at Armory Today

Washington's first automobile show since 1940 opens at 2 p. m. today at the National Guard Armory.

The Washington Automotive Trade Association, sponsor of the exhibit, expects that 100,000 persons will view the show during its eight-day run.

This, the 22d automobile show put on by the association, will feature more than 100 sleek new models, some of foreign make. There are 22 exhibitors.

In addition to the new models, the latest automotive gadgets and equipment will be displayed.

For the speed-minded there will be exhibited two racing cars: a four-cylinder Offenhauser and a midget racer.

The Offenhauser, which burns alcohol instead of gasoline, was clocked at 127 miles an hour in a qualifying run at the Indianapolis Speedway.

As added entertainment, the show will present singer Frances Langford for the first six days of the show and singer Connee Boswell for the last two days. They will appear three times daily, at 3, 6 and 9 p. m.

Show-opening ceremonies will begin at 1:45 p. m. today. Miss Langford will cut a tape to open the exhibition and Traffic Director George Kenopp will deliver the principal address.

Price of admission will be 40 cents from 2 to 6 p. m., and 80 cents from 6 p. m. to closing at 11 p. m. On Sunday, the price will be 80 cents all day.

To provide a proper setting for the glittering new cars, there will be two 30-by-100 foot canvas backdrops picturing the Jefferson and Lincoln Memorials. There will also be a 40-foot replica of the Washington Monument.

Capital Transit has rerouted its B-2 bus line to provide direct service to the Armory.

Coal Retailers Seen Facing 'Bankruptcy'

Plans No Action

Battle Signs Virginia Mine Seizure Bill

Richmond, Va., Feb. 17 (AP).—Legislation permitting State seizure of coal mines during strike emergencies became law today.

The bill was signed as an emergency measure by Governor Battle in the presence of three members of the General Assembly; Delegate John B. Boatwright, of Buckingham, and Senators A. E. S. Stephens, of Isle of Wight, and Robert Y. Button, of Culpeper.

The Governor had no comment on State plans in the current fuel crisis as he signed the bill. The State still controls a mine in Buchanan County which was seized last fall by former Governor Tuck, acting under special war powers and authority "inherent" in his office.

In reply to a question this afternoon, Governor Battle said the State has no "definite" plans at this time for any further action.

Boatwright was the patron of the House bill which was passed by the assembly with only one amendment to bring the miners under provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act in event of State seizure.

Stephens and Button introduced in the Senate a bill identical to Boatwright's but it was not acted on after the House bill got started first.

The bill was requested by Governor Battle in his inaugural address in January. It gives him specific authority to order State seizure and operation of coal mines if, in his judgment, such action is necessary in the interests of the people of the State.

The bill signed today also provides for a State Fuel Commission with the power to exercise the right of eminent domain to acquir and operate mining property. Such an agency known as the State Emergency Fuel Commission was created by Tuck and is still functioning.

J. Atlee Schaefer, president of the American Retail Coal Asociation, told Congress yesterday the three-day mine week imposed by John L. Lewis has brought coal retailers "to the brink of bankruptcy and ruin."

Schafer asked a Senate judiciary subcommittee to approve a bill to make labor unions subject to the anti-trust laws in cases where they restrain trade unreasonably in an essential industry.

Senator Robertson (D., Va.), the bill's author, has said it is intended to curb what he called the "monopolistic powers" of Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers. Lewis had the miners working only three days a week for several months before the current full-scale strike started.

Schafer also told the subcommittee that the "same type of threat" the coal retailers face from Lewis "overhangs the American people in the threatened telephone strike."

He said the CIO Communications Workers of America "boldly tell us that if their demands are not met they will jam the switchboards so that no one can use them." He added:

"The CWA and the UMW have clearly shown both by threat and by action that they are above the reach of any laws we now have on the books."

Schafer, owner of a retail coal business in Cleveland, said the coal situation "is obviously out of hand." Many retailers, he said, "will be unable to continue their business because their worth has been so impaired that they will be unable to find the money to keep going."

B. E. Urheim, executive of the association headed by Schafer, told the subcommittee that if the situation is permitted to continue, it "will inevitably ruin the business of thousands of retail coal merchants and will at the same time destroy the jobs of the employes of that industry."

Meeting Called Off

A meeting of the Bladensburg High School Parent-Teacher Association scheduled for Monday has been canceled because of the coal shortage, the school announced yesterday.

Night Classes

2 Alexandria Schools Shut To Save Fuel

Adult night classes of 800 students at Alexandria's two high schools will be suspended starting Monday to conserve soft-coal supplies.

This was announced yesterday by Superintendent of Schools T. C. Williams as the city's emergency coal committee reported there is enough coal on hand to supply schools and the Alexandria Hospital for at least 15 days.

Committee Chairman Francis H. Fannon said the five dealers who comprise the committee are now voluntarily limiting deliveries. They have sufficient coal to care for the city's needs for 10 days if moderate weather continues, he said.

District officials met with local dealers yesterday for the third time this week to keep abreast of the situation here. No statement was issued after the meeting, but the group was believed to have discussed a soft-coal rationing plan. The District Commissioners have agreed to put off action on a rationing plan at least until Monday when another meeting has been scheduled.

In Baltimore, State Fuel Coordinator Walter N. Ruth said several major Maryland industries may have to curtail operations next week if the soft-coal strike continues.

Rail Walkout Set by Unions For Feb. 27

Chicago, Feb. 17 (U.P.). — Two brotherhoods representing 250,000 trainmen and conductors today ordered a strike against the Nation's railroads for 6 a. m., EST, February 27.

But even the unions expected that President Truman would intervene to invoke emergency machinery of the national railway labor act, which could delay a walkout several months.

The strike date was set by officials of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors

At the same time, the unions rejected a proposal of arbitration made by a three-member Federal mediation board which earlier this week announced failure in its efforts to resolve the dispute.

President Truman can appoint an emergency fact-finding board, which has at least 30 days to investigate and report back to the White House. After the report is made, another 30-day "cooling off" period folows before the unions are free to strike legally.

At Cleveland, President W. P. Kennedy of the trainmen, minted that a Nation-wide strike might not be called February 27, but that the railroads might be struck separately in an attempt to avoid emergency action.

The unions had sought no general wage increase, but changes in working rules which would mean more pay. Their demands included a 40-hour work week without loss in pay for yardmen, who have been working 48 hours, and changes in the working time of train crews.

Lewis Orders Miners Back

were recessed shortly before midnight until 10 a. m. today.

[The United Press quoted Chairman David L. Cole of President Truman's fact-finding board as saying there is no prospect for "immediate" settlement of the dispute.—Editor's note.]

The Lewis order, if obeyed, would send the men back to the pits the same day the 10-day anti-strike court order expires. Presumably it would be up to the Government to decide whether to continue to seek an 80-day injunction if the strike is off.

Although Lewis did not say so, the presumption is that his order means a full work week. This was not mentioned directly in the court's order but it forbade continuing the strike "in whole or in part."

Lewis told the miners to "insure that the instructions of the court are carried out."

The present strike is an outgrowth of a series of scattered strikes which appeared throughout the industry in a "no contract, no work" wave of sentiment. Lewis instituted a three-day work week. And when a general strike broke out last September, he let it run 52 days in one of his moves to curtail coal supplies during th protracted contract contract haggling. Throughout these stoppages, President Truman had refused to invoke the Taft-Hartley Act, saying he found no emergency.

Lewis told his men when the court order was issued last Saturday that he had "no alternative" but to advise them to obey the court. The walkout followed.

Yesterday he told them to "cease forthwith all stoppages."

Together with his telegrams, Lewis gave out a statement he was sending to the locals and members declaring the union leadership's intention to "comply in complete good faith with the anti-strike order." He also pledged compliance with another restrainer which Keech has slapped on the union. The latter directed Lewis not to insist on four contract demands which the judge considered probably illegal under the Taft-Hartley Act.

The Lewis statement, apparently designed to help bolster the union's case in court if necessary, told the miners that the operators have blocked a new agreement with "obstructive tactics."

In the third day of enforced negotiations between Lewis and the operators (Keech had told them to get busy), a night session was called after morning and afternoon discussions had brought "some progress."

This progress report came from David L. Cole, chairman of President Truman's fact-finding board who is observing the talks, and Cyrus Ching, chief Government mediator, who is standing by.

Cole said before the night meeting that "the gap between the parties has been narrowed" that the operators were reconciled to some increase in costs.

Cole and Ching told reporters "we want an agreement" and indicated that nothing short of one would head off some possible Government action.

Just before Lewis staged his latest surprise, the Justice Department was reported standing ready to call for contempt of court penalties against the union, perhaps today, if the negotiations were still stalemated. And it was assumed that failure to restore full production Monday would be followed by a Government crackdown.

Likewise Cole had raised possibility of a Presidential message to Congress asking power to seize the mines.

Congress Unit Gets Latest Atomic News

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Members of the Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy were brought up to date yesterday at a secret session on Government developments in measuring the intensity of atomic radiation and medical treatment of radiation victims.

The briefing of the members of Congress was conducted by members and experts of the Atomic Energy Commission. They appeared before the committee on the first day of several closed sessions. These are being held preparatory to open hearings, about March 1, on the problem of civil defense against atomic attacks.

A principal witness yesterday was Dr. Shields Warren, director of the AEC's division of biology and medicine. He told the congressional committee of the research that has been conducted on the medical treatment of victims of atomic radiation.

Dr. Warren has made continuing study of the survivors of the two Japanese cities struck by A-bombs, and is believed also to have reported his findings on these people to the congressional group.

AEC witnesses also discussed recent developments in perfecting and simplifying Geiger counters. These are the devices that measure the intensity of atomic radiation.

Several private companies working with the AEC, have been seeking to make the machines into such simplified forms that they can be used by laymen.

Easily readable Geiger counters would be essential for civilian defense, in order to determine whether conditions were safe for rescue workers to penetrate into an area hit by an atomic missile.

The AEC also was understood to have discussed in general terms the major effects of atomic attacks on American cities, and their implications regarding civil defense.

Next week, the Joint Committee plans to hear from the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other witnesses from the Department of Defense and the National Security Resources Board.

On the Election

Pub Is Good Place to Feel Public Pulse

(This is the fourth article in a daily series on the British election.)

By Frank Gervasi
Post Reporter

London. — Tom McDonnell's Brown Bear in E. Smithfield rd., just opposite the London Docks' gate, is one of the busiest pubs in town, and one of the most democratic.

There is no special saloon bar in Tom's place as in most pubs. Here gentry and working folk drink together in the Public Room, standing up at the scrubbed wood, although there are a few tables and chairs toward the back.

The Brown Bear is specially licensed to keep open from 6 to 8 a. m. in addition to the regular hours of from 11 a. m. to 2:30 p.m. and from 5 to 10:30 p. m. The early hours are to allow the dockers on the night shift to have their pint or so of 'arf and 'arf after work.

You will always get a yarn out of Tom's clients—Canada Slim and Big Mike and the little wizened one known only as Fox Face —and, of course, out of Tom himself. The Brown Bear is a good place to go to do what reporters call "feeling the pulse."

Who Would Win?

Who would win the election? Canada Slim rubbed his cleanshaven chin and said he had not thought much about it. He was taking the old Suffolk out to the graveyard next morning for scrapping and his mind, he said, was full of that. Big Mike and Fox Face suddenly became unduly interested in their beer. Tom leaned across the bar to confide:

"They don't know you here. They won't talk. But stick around."

Tom, a pleasant-faced man, tended his customers and returned. He talked so the others could hear.

"I'll tell you," he said, "it's going to be close. But Labor will come back. Now right here, naturally, you're in Labor country. We are all working people here—transport workers, dockers—or we have a working class feeling. We have a few shopkeepers and publicans, like myself. But we're not middle-class minded. We're working-class minded.

"All of us have been Trade Unionists all our lives or we have been in the labor movement in one way or another. What progress we have made, we have won through the Labor movement. Long before a Labor government came to power, we fought for and obtained decent housing, more schools, medical aid, and all through our London Co.unty Council Mister (Herbert Morrison's outfit.

"Hardly a full grown man here but that remembers the old days —when the children went barefoot to school, aye, even in winter. Their fathers and mothers were too proud to let them wear the charity shoes. The boots had marks on them that showed they were charity shoes. Aye.

"Hardly a man here but what remembers the unemployment and the indignity of the dole. They're all working now. The wages are good. Yes, prices have gone up. But so have the wages. And then there are the family allowances and the free medical attention and the dental care, and all of that.

Beer Costs More

Aye. Beer costs more for the tax that helps to pay for the medical scheme and all the other things. Beer costs a shilling a pint here. In some places it's one and a penny or one and tuppence. It was never less than ninepence in the old days.

"But mind, the working man rations himself. He drinks less than he did. And that is a good thing. You don't see much drunkenness any more. You see fewer men in the pubs—not only in this one but everywhere. That is because men are working and because they have homes to go to now. It's no longer a miserable hole somewhere in a back alley with a table and a chair and a flop, but a proper 'ome, two or three rooms with a kitchen and a scullery and a bathroom in one of the Council 'ouses.

"Aye, we'll vote Labor 'ere,"—Tom slipped in and out of cockney, his good secondary school education had taught him proper speech but his heart was involved in what he was saying.

Big Mike and Fox Face nodded agreement with the looks of men that said: "Tom has said it all for us." Only Canada Slim was uncertain.

"I might vote Labor," he said, the accents of the native land he had left 20 years ago still plainly audible. "I might. But I'm not sure about Socialism. I don't want, now, that the State should get to be powerful. And these Labor people, now, they're all Socialists, are they not?"

Nobody challenged him. It was Slim's problem for him to resolve in his own way, in his own time.

(A round-up article on pre-election developments will be published Sunday.)

Churchill Again Asks Big 3 Talks

London, Feb. 17. (U.P.).—Winston Churchill appealed again tonight for a Big Three conference with Premier Josef Stalin to protect ordinary people against "annihilating war with atomic bombs or bacteriological horrors."

The problem of the atomic arms race cannot be solved in the United Nations, the Conservative leader said in a nationally broadcast election campaign speech, because the U. N. cannot function while the world is divided into warring camps.

"It is only by the agreement of the great powers that security can be given to the ordinary folk against annihilating war with atomic or hydrogen bombs or bacteriological horrors," Churchill said.

Churchill delivered the climactic speech for his Conservative Party in the campaign for next Thursday's parliamentary election. Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee will make the final big radio speech for the Laborites Saturday night.

Churchill said Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, in rejecting his Big Three conference proposal as a "stunt," only showed "how far his mind dwells below the true level of events."

"Why should it be wrong for the British nation to think about the supreme question of life and death, perhaps for the whole world, at a time when there is a general election?" Churchill said. "Is that not the one time of all others when they should think about it?"

Tito Reported Helping Refugees Flee From East

Trieste, Feb. 17 (NYHT).—Marshal Tito's secret police are beginning to open up an escape route across Yugoslavia, for refugees from East Europe, Allied officials disclosed today.

One night recently 109 refugees from Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria were convoyed by Tito's agents to Yugoslavia's western frontier and sent into the American-British zone of Trieste, according to A. J. Kellett, displaced persons officer of Allied Military Government.

The refugees said they were shunted around Yugoslavia on labor projects for weeks or months, then were taken suddenly to the border at night. Yugoslav guards fired shots over the heads of the group as they ran into the free territory.

3 Codefendants Plead Guilty

Communist, was hanged October 15.)

Vogeler is an assistant vice president and Eastern European manager of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., an American firm. Sanders was IT&T's Hungarian manager.

Imre Geiger, Hungarian manager of the Standard Electric Co., an IT&T subsidiary, and Zoltan Rado, former section chief in a Hungarian government department, were the other defendants heard today.

Baroness Odina Doery, identified as a "bar mistress" and sister-in-law of a former United States military attache here; the Rev. Istvan Justh, a Catholic priest, and factory manager Keleman Domokos did not testify at the opening session.

Sanders told the court he obtained military and economic information about Hungary for the British Intelligence Service and implicated several members of the British and American Legations in the alleged ring.

He mumbled several names reporters did not catch. The names understandable included those of Col. James B. Kraft and Lieut. Col. L. C. Hoyne, both Americans, and American Commercial Attache Jule B. Smith, now in Stockholm.

Sanders said Britain and America considered Hungary "a hostile country" after the Communists took over and that the Legations tried "to undermine its present regime."

The Britisher said he was taught "spying and counter-espionage" and came to Hungary as an Army captain in the British Military Mission.

"I was told to obtain information about Soviet and Hungarian troops," Sanders said. "I also had to obtain information about economic conditions . . . to make propaganda for the Anglo-Saxon world."

Sanders spoke slowly and distinctly, with his hands clasped tightly behind his back. He said he knew he had been guilty of "sabotage" and "a great offense against the sovereignty" of Hungary.

He said he had been ordered to build "obsolete" machines for shipment to Russia and other East European countries.

Geiger testified that Standard Electric sought to curtail production on Russian and East European orders, while speeding output for Yugoslavia or the West.

He said he had been an American agent since 1946 and that he had delivered reports to Vogeler in the past year.

Rado said he had discussed espionage tactics with Chapin.

(The United Press resident correspondent in Budapest, Ilona Nyilas, a Hungarian national, is reporting the trial. An application by the United Press for permission to send an American correspondent to Budapest was ignored.)

State Department Hints Of Brutality Confession

By the United Press

The State Department hinted yesterday that Pungary may have used brutality to wring a "confession" from Robert A. Vogeler, who went on trial in Budapest this morning. It all but said the Hungarian regime has judged Vogeler guilty.

Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said Hungarian officials, even before the trial began denounced Vogeler and his fellow defendants as "the vilest and most dangerous enemies" of Hungary.

As if anticipating a "confession," McDermott said the trial "requires careful observation and scrutiny" particularly "to note any indications that Vogeler has been subjected to coercion by intimidation, lack of food, drugging or other forms of mistreatment."

He rapped Hungary for admitting only one American reporter to cover the trial, after promising that full coverage would be allowed to the foreign press.

Mystery Man New 'Himmler' Of Soviet Zone

Berlin, Feb. 17 (AP).—Wilhelm Zaisser, Communist mystery man credited with training some 45,000 East Germans into a preparedness force, was named tonight to head the Soviet zone's new secret police.

As minister of state security, Zaisser will control a secret police network rivaling Hitler's dreaded Gestapo.

Indications are that Zaisser will launch immediately a slashing counterespionage campaign against the "Western reactionaries."

Communist Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl returned in a Soviet plane to the East German Republic late today from a six weeks "rest cure" in Moscow.

There had been frequent rumors —denied by the Communists—that Grotewohl was being liquidated or had attempted suicide. Grotewohl said he would resume his official duties immediately.

East Germany's Catholic and Protestant clergy have been ordered by their church leaders to shun the new Communist-led "National Front."

Both Roman Catholic and evangelical authorities issued such instructions in opposition to the new mass organization which the Communists two days ago announced would work for Germany unity and against the influence of the three Western allies.

French Reds' Strikes Fail; Alert Is Kept

Paris, Feb. 17 (NYHT).—French labor today turned a cold shoulder to Communist-inspired calls for general strikes on the railways and in the coal mines. There were no substantial interruptions on the transportation system, and less than 40 percent of the miners stayed away from work.

The Ministry of Interior, which had taken nation-wide police measures to guard against violence and sabotage, pronounced the strike effort "a complete failure." The railways were to have been paralyzed from 8 to 10 a. m., and the mines, where Communist following is greatest, were to have shut down all day.

Both strike actions were regarded as a test of Communist ability to paralyze two of the most important nationalized industries and thereby block shipment of French army supplies to Indo-China and delivery of American arms to France.

[The United Press reported that troops and security guards moved into France's key ports to take up positions well ahead of them in face of Communist threats to halt U. S. arms shipments scheduled to arrive early in March.]

Italy Reported Sending More Police to 'Red' Ports

Bishop Takes Oath, Czechs Say

Prague, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—A Catholic bishop and two high-ranking priests were reported today to have taken loyalty oaths to the Czech government in the first major break in the Catholic hierarchy's stand against the Communists.

The official news agency said the auxiliary bishop of Prague, Dr. Antonin Elkchner; Dr. Opatrny, vicar general to Archbishop Josef Beran, and Dr. Frantisek Kital, provost of Kromeriz, Moravia, took the oath.

Meanwhile, the head of the Mormon Mission here said the mission would close next week because the government refused to permit it to operate.

Prior to today, no high-ranking priest had taken the oath. The Czech Board of Bishops had given priests permission to take the oath, but had not extended it to bishops.

At the same time, the government has intensified its land collectivization drive by cracking down on farmers owning more than 50 acres, informed sources said.

The drive already has resulted in the arrest of 5000 to 10,000 "kulaks"—small property owners.

Weasels Fail In Yukon, Writer Says

With Canadian-U. S. Joint Maneuver Forces, Yukon Territory, Feb. 17 (NYHT).—The almost complete failure of the weasel, the U. S. Army's only vehicle for moving cross-country in the snow, has been the most startling result of the war games thus far.

The weasel has been far outstripped by the Canadian Army's penguin, which has twice the weasel's power and is less susceptible to breakdown. Of 100 new weasels brought here, nearly half have broken down. Of 32 penguins, only two are disabled.

The gears in the weasel are not heavy enough.

[The United Press reported deficits have ben revealed in the Canadians training, equipment and rations. Outstanding was a lack of substantial food and irregular feeding of men working almost 24 hours a day in temperatures around 30 degrees below zero].

[The seventh large military plane to come to disaster in the Northwest area of Canada and the United States in three weeks crashed Thursday on an icy lake between Donjek River and Northway, Alaska, the Associated Press reported].

[Only one of the four Canadians and 10 Americans aboard was injured. Land vehicles were sent to the plane, which piled up eight miles from the Alaska Highway near Snag].

By The Associated Press

Senator Malone (R., Nev.) told the Senate yesterday he is informed that a high commerce department official is a Manchurian-born Russian who was turned down for citizenship three times.

He proposed that the Senate Commerce committee inquire into the "loyalty" of Michael J. Lee, chief of the Far Eastern division of the Commerce Department's Office of International Trade.

Malone told the Senate that Lee's real name is Ephraim Zinovi Liberman.

He said he "is the man whom the Chinese blame more than any other individual for deliberately delaying vital shipments of aviation gasoline and other supplies to Nationalist China until the Red hordes took over.

[Later in the day, Commerce Department officials told newsmen that Malone's charges were not new, and that they had been thoroughly investigated by a Departmental loyalty board, which gave Lee full loyalty clearance.—Editor's Note]

Resolution for Inquiry

Malone said Lee was brought into the Commerce Department by Henry Wallace when Wallace was Secretary of Commerce.

Malone introduced a resolution for an investigation of employes of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce generally and particularly into the "qualifications, honesty, competency, efficiency and loyalty" of Lee.

He told the Senate that Lee recently headed a special government mission to Japan and served as an adviser on China and the Far East to the United States delegation at the United Nations.

Malone said Lee won citizenship "on his fourth try after changing his name to Michael Lee and marrying an American-born woman."

He said Lee was rejected for citizenship in 1935, 1937, and 1939 on these grounds: "not good character, not attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, incompetent witnesses."

Divorce Actions Blamed

[Commerce Department officials said the charge that Lee was refused citizenship was correct. But, they said, they understood that the reason lay in the fact he was involved in divorce proceedings, a circumstance they believed tended to delay or prevent the granting of citizenship.

[Loring K. Macy, acting director of the Office of International Trade, issued this reply to Malone's charge:

["This charge is not new. It has been made previously and has been thoroughly investigated.

["There is, of course, no reason why the Senate Committee should not investigate Michael E. Lee's loyalty or that of any other employe. But before going to the trouble and expense, it should be known that these charges have been thoroughly investigated by a loyalty board of the Department of Commerce; that Mr. Lee holds no policy-making position in the Department of Commerce, and has never made any decision with reference to shipments of aviation gasoline or other supplies to Nationalist China; that he was recently in Japan as the active head of a mission which was highly complimented by General MacArthur for the valuable help which it rendered to him."—Editor's note.]

Malone said that "several departments of Government have had Lee's loyalty and citizenship under investigation."

In addition, he said, "charges of maladministration recently were brought against Lee by other colleagues in the Commerce Department."

Navy Orders 700 Planes, Mostly Jets

The Navy has ordered more than 700 planes, with a heavy emphasis on jet fighters, it was learned yesterday.

Topping the list of purchases is a contract with Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp., Bethpage, N. Y., for 242 jet F9F Panthers and 72 AFs, propeller-powered attack planes for antisubmarine warfare.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the combined strength of United States armed forces was 1,512,900 on January 31, a decrease of 38,400 since the end of 1949.

All service branches except the Air Force shared in the drop. Air Force strength mounted 2200 to reach 415,500 at the end of January.

On the same date Army strength was 615,400, a loss of 25,800. The Navy lost 13,700 to reach a reduced total of 401,900, and the Marine Corps dropped 1100 for a January 31 total of 80,100.

The Navy, like the Air Force, has made no official announcement of aircraft purchases with funds provided during the current fiscal year ending next June 30. However, the Navy confirmed the order list after it appeared in some detail in American Aviation Daily, a trade letter.

Among the orders placed were these:

McDonnell Aircraft Corp., St. Louis, 140 F2H Banshees, a twin-jet fighter.

Douglas Aircraft Co., Santa Monica, Calif., 70 F3D Skynight twin-jet all-weather fighters and 53 Skyraider propeller attack bombers.

United Aircraft Corp., Chance-Vought division at Dallas, Tex., 60 F4U-5N Corsairs, a propeller fighter equipped for night operation.

Lockheed Aircraft Corp., Burbank, Calif., 45 P2V Neptune patrol bombers, the type that holds the world distance record, and 10 TO-2 jet fighter-trainers.

North American Aviation, Inc., Los Angeles, 15 AJ attack bombers, a three-engine plane with both propeller and jet.

Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, Md., five P5M Mariner patrol flying boats.

Piasecki Helicopter Corp., Morton, Pa., six or more Hup seven-place helicopters.

Congress appropriated $540,900,000 for 768 new Navy planes to be bought this year.

Hawaii Reds Facing Probe

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Charges of rampant communism in Hawaii, which have forestalled statehood for the island territory, will be investigated in April by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

John W. Carrington, chief clerk of the committee, said yesterday the inquiry, decided upon last month, would begin April 12. He did not know, nor did Committee Counsel Frank Tavenner, how many or which members of the committee would form the subcommittee charged with the probe.

Both Carrington and Tavenner said committee investigators had been in Hawaii for the last six months looking into reports that Communist influence was powerful in the islands.

Opposition to Hawaiian statehood, almost non-existent before the 178-day dock strike of May-October, 1949, developed during the strike to the point where it caused Congressional consideration of the move to be postponed. The Un-American Activities Committee voted last July 8 to investigate Hawaiian communism but decided to delay action until the end of the strike, which was settled October 25.

Admiral Assigned To New Office

U. S. Navy Photo
ADM. RUSSELL S. BERKEY
"Chief of Information"

Admiral Given New Position To Help Navy

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Navy yesterday created a new office under a high-ranking admiral and gave it the mission of gaining greater "public understanding and support" for the Navy and Marine Corps.

Vice Admiral Russell S. Berkey, now in command of the Seventh Task Fleet in Western Pacific waters, was ordered to Washington to take the post.

His office also will be charged with an internal "public relations" job—passing to the personnel of the service including the reserves "appropriate information on current policies and programs" of the Navy.

The move was viewed as a significant effort to: (1) present the Navy and Marines in a more favorable light to the Nation—through legitimate means; (2) weld the naval service more closely together, and (3) end propagandizing by groups within the Navy in behalf of projects not backed by the high command.

Admiral Berkey's title will be "Chief of Information." He'll "coordinate" both "public information" (press, radio, etc.) policies and programs and "civil relations"—contacts with labor, patriotic groups, etc. He'll keep his three-star rank in the job.

Officials said he'll report to both Secretary of the Navy Francis Matthews and Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations. Previously the functions of public relations have been directly under the Secretary.

Since last June, when Rear Admiral Edward Ewen was given a command in the Pacific, the Navy public relations office has been headed by an Acting Chief—Capt. Harry Sears.

Another change in the setup is that the new Information Chief will have greater jurisdiction over Marine Corps public relations.

Under the unified Office of Public Information of the Department of Defense, the Army, Navy and Air Force retain control of their public relations outside of Washington and have considerable to say about what goes out from the Pentagon.

Admiral Berkey, known as "Count" throughout the Navy, is a native of Goshen, Ind. An Annapolis graduate of 1916, the 56-year-old officer commanded cruisers during many of the Pacific battles of the war. He won the Navy Cross and both the Army and Navy Distinguished Service Medals. After the war, he headed the Navy's Civil Liaison Section. Berkey will take over his new office in the spring.

Miss Coplon Gets 3 Lawyers

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Judith Coplon switched lawyers today in the middle of her spy conspiracy trial.

At her request, Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan assigned three attorneys to replace stubby, excitable Archibald Palmer, who defended the former Government girl in a stormy Washington trial and in weeks of sometimes hectic court proceedings here.

Named to succeed Palmer were Samuel Neuburger, Sidney E. Berman and Leonard Boudin. The court acted because Miss Coplon has taken the pauper's oath.

Miss Coplon, 28, has been on trial since January 24 with 33-year-old Valentin A. Gubitchev, a Russian engineer. They are accused of plotting to pass United States defense secrets to the Soviet Union.

The trial was adjourned without explanation yesterday for conferences that led to today's announcement of the shift in defense lawyers. Palmer's successors are expected to ask for a further delay so that they can study the case.

Palmer's own comment was: "A woman has a right to change her mind."

The lawyer, who has said he was serving without pay out of friendship for the Coplon family, promised every help to his successors, expressed confidence Miss Coplon would be proved innocent, and added:

Views Conflict at Senate Hearing on Plan for World Government

By The Associated Press

Clashing views were heard at a Senate hearing yesterday on proposals that the United States take steps toward a world government to save the peace.

Representative Lawrence H. Smith (R., Wis.), reported that former Secretary of State Cordell Hull had told him such a move would "kill the United Nations." Smith himself is a vigorous critic of proposals to establish a global government.

On the other side of the argument, James P. Warburg, international banker turned author, declared:

"We shall have a world government whether or not we like it. The only question is whether world government will be achieved by consent or by conquest."

A score of witnesses appeared before a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee to submit their views on what should be done to head off the threat of an atomic conflict which in the opinion of some could reduce the earth itself to an insignificant cinder in interstellar space.

Variety of Resolutions

The Senators have before them a dozen resolutions, calling for everything from elimination of the big power veto in the UN to a true government of the world.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) granted the sincerity of those who favor a world government. But he said the result of the establishment of such a system would mean the end of the existence of the United States as a Nation of free people.

"Stripped of deceptive and confusing language," he said, "the present proposals, naked, stand forth as a clear attempt to induce us to scrap our Constitution, surrender our sovereignty, our right to plot our course in world affairs."

He directed his criticism alike at proposals for establishment of an Atlantic Union and a world government. Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) and 18 other Senators are sponsors of a resolution which would make world government the basic objective of United States foreign policy.

Disarmament With Inspection

One of the witnesses, Alexander Klein of New York City, referred to himself as "just plain Joe Citizen." He put forward a proposal for disarmament with inspection, a world government with an international police force to enforce its decisions, and a recovery program to ease economic tensions throughout the world.

Byrl A. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen told the Senators that world government would take the destiny of mankind out of the hands of the diplomats, generals and admirals and put it in under the control of the people.

But Mrs. E. F. Johnson of New York City, chairman of the resolutions committee of the National Society for Constitutional Security, expressed the conviction that the United States would be "committing national suicide "by giving up its sovereignty.

Arlington Schedules School Budget Hearing

A public hearing on the Arlington County School Board's proposed budget for the fiscal year 1950-51 was announced yesterday. It will take place at 8 p. m., March 16, at Thomas Jefferson Junior High School, 816 S. Fillmore st.

Details are to be submitted by the end of February to the county manager, and to the board by March 8.

Rain of Bullets Fells Gaming Ring Figure

Detroit, Feb. 17 (AP). — Maxie Sterns, reputed leader in a big Detroit gambling syndicate, was shot and wounded critically as he sat in a car tonight.

Police said his assailant apparently fired and fled. The 35-year-old victim was found staggering near a downtown cafe known as a gamblers' hangout.

Taken to a hospital by another syndicate head, Sterns refused to give police any information on the shooting. He had gaping wounds in his right side and arm.

Moses Joseph, 40, took Sterns to the hospital. Both men were named this week in a listing of gambling chieftains.

Joseph said he was sitting in the cafe and heard "a series of shots." He went to the door and saw Sterns staggering toward him.

Police theorized Sterns might have been wearing a bullet-proof vest, since only two of the nine shots fired at him entered his body. However, he did not have the armor on when he reached the hospital.

Sterns, an early member of Detroit's notorious Purple Gang, was sentenced last April to four years in Federal prison on a charge of violating the National Stolen Property Act. He was free pending appeal.

Witness Identifies Lawyer at Probe . . .

FACE-TO-FACE—John A. Edwards (right), appearing before the House subcommittee investigating District crime, stares at H. Clifford Allder (left), lawyer identified as having put up $50 for Edwards on a numbers writing charge. Allder said the money was furnished by someone else, who remains unidentified. fronted Allder with the record of his appearance as Edward's attorney, Allder said I'm positive I appeared for him, if it says so there on that record and that's in my handwriting, but I still don't remember defending him.

"Do you have any recollection of who paid you the $50—he said his lawyer gave him to pay his fine," Fischbach asked.

"No, sir."

"Did you advance it from your own funds?"

"No, sir, I don't make a practic of doing that."

"Do you have any recollection, after listening to Edwards' testimony, that anyone gave you some money to pay his fine?"

"No, sir. All I can say is some one must have given me the money."

Allder's testimony also led to the committee sending out a call for Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy, but word was returned that she was ill. Her name was the first of a local judge mentioned in the hearing as a possible witness.

In their quizzing of bondsmen, the committee and its counsel drove for information that would identify any gamblers as the employers of others who are arrested from time to time on gambling charges. Usually, it appeared from the testimony, the bigger shots have a lot of "friends" who get arrested on gambling charges, but the employer-employes relationship is hard to establish.

Called 'Ignorant Witness'

After some minutes of testimony by Bondsman Max Weinstein, Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) told Fischbach "it seems to me we're not getting anywhere. This is the most ignorant witness I've ever seen."

Max Weinstein said it was pretty hard to keep track of hundreds of cases for which bond was written.

Max Weinstein, a brisk, swarthy man in his mid-50's, is the son of Louis Weinstein, who stakes his sons, Max and Meyer, and grandson Leonard, in the District bonding business, but does his own bond writing in Arlington. Leonard, Max's son, was another witness yesterday.

Their testimony centered on the card records their firm keeps on the people for whom they write bond. From these cards Fischbach read out name after name of the persons who were listed on the "recommended by" line of the cards recording gambling case bonds.

"I show you," Fischbach said to Max Weinstein "a card which bears the legend 'recommended by Scar.'" Who is Scar?"

Max Weinstein said that Scar was a colored man with a large scar. He later recalled the man as Scar Foulson.

Convicted Gambler

[Leonard Weinstein later said he thought Scar Poulson's name was Alfred Poulson. Alfred D. Poulson is a convicted gambler, who was fined $300 in Prince Georges County in January 1948 for operating a lottery. He was arrested in the District last June on charges of operating a lottery and possessing numbers slips.]

"Who are M. S. and K. M.," asked Fischbach?

"M. S. would be Suter, I don't recall K. M.," said Max Weinstein.

"Who is R. S.?" asked Fischbach?

"Roger Simkins," replied Weinstein.

Simkin "Out of Town"

[Roger "Whitetop" Simkins is a convicted gambler, who figured in the underworld double shooting two years ago at the Brass Rail Restaurant, 1739 7th st., nw., now owned by his wife. Simkins was said at his home, 2823 12th st. ne., "to be out of town."]

Max Weinstein said he knew Simkins, but not his business, that the man was supposed to have a restaurant or liquor store.

Did he know a "Carroll"?—Weinstein said "No."

Did he know "Joe Chase"? The witness said "no."

Did he know Walter "Sonny" Mason?—Weinstein said he had known him and had done business with him, but not in matters related to gambling.

[Walter "Sonny" Mason committed suicide in his home at 760 Newton pl. nw., a few weeks after he was indicted April 8, 1949 on charges of promoting a numbers lottery. He was one of the 36 men indicted by the special District gambling grand jury.]

Fischbach came to a card with the name "Elzie Bibb.," and asked if Max Weinstein would write the bond on credit.

"Absolutely," said Weinstein.

"Who is Elsie Bibb?" asked Fischbach.

"I don't know," said Weinstein.

Fischback asked who were "E" and "Pick."

Weinstein said the "Pick" stood for Pickett, "a man that's in the gambling business."

"I Don't Know," Says Witness

"And a gentleman for whom you wrote bond worked for him?" asked Fischbach.

"I don't know," said Weinstein.

Who was "Lefty?" Weinstein couldn't say, or whether Lefty was connected with Suter or Simkins.

"Who is Sussman?" asked Fischbach.

"I know him," said Weinstein. "He's called me on several bonds. Sometimes he'd tell me a friend of his was taken into custody. Sometimes he'd give the friend's name, sometimes he wouldn't."

When he gets such a call, the witness said, he calls the 14 police precincts and headquarters or maybe the neighborhood where the arrest was made.

"Who is this charitable fellow, Sussman?" aked Representative Smith.

"He's a man I've known a couple of years," said Weinstein. "I presume he's in the gambling business, I can't say definitely he is."

Sussman was not further identified. When asked if he meant Hyman Sussman, 40, convicted gambler, Weinstein refused to answer, and Sussman could not be reached.

Max Weinstein said he knew a man named Goldston as a bootlegger, but did not know "Roy" or "Little Roy" or Rodriquez, and he "thought" a man named S. Berman was in the auto loan business. He said he didn't know Snags Lewis until a week ago, and didn't know who worked for Snags. He said he did not know "G" or "Pat" or "Nick." He said he knew Foots Dempsey as a bootlegger.

Leonard Weinstein, 31, wearing a sporty tweed coat, and brown trousers, and an expression of wide-eyed seriousness, took the witness chair to say that he, like his father, Max, holds a power of attorney to conduct bonding business in the name of his grandfather, Louis Weinstein.

Interviews Persons

He said his main job is to go to the precincts and get people out on bond. "I interview the person and, if he's a good risk, I get him out."

"Do you ever get calls from people you know as gamblers," asked Fischbach.

"Yes," said Leonard.

He said he had known Foots Dempsey about 10 years, and "I've gotten him out on all kinds of different charges."

He said he knew Suter, but didn't know Suter's business, nor did he get calls from Suter.

What about Poulson? asked Fischbach.

"Sometimes he calls me," said Leonard. "A lot of his friends get locked up."

"Are they friends or employes?" asked Fischbach.

"Friends," said Leonard.

Fischbach wanted to know what Leonard Weinstein finds out about the people he bails out of the precincts. Leonard said he finds out "if he's a good risk" by asking where the prisoner lives, whether he has people here, whether he's been in trouble before and if he has money to pay his bond—"most of them do" he said.

To another question, Leonard said sometimes he asked persons held on gambling charges who they worked for, but when Fischbach asked what they told, Leonard sat back in silence for a while, then declared:

"Usually a person arrested for lottery, I get them out; I don't ask any questions. Usually they're a good risk."

Fischbach asked Leonard if he knew "Rodriguez".

"I don't know him to personally," said Leonard, adding later "I think he runs a poolroom."

Leonard said he had known Joe Chase three or four months, and had met him by "getting out two people who were good friends of his." The two were held on liquor violation charges, said Leonard.

Meyer Weinstein, called back to the witness table, was asked by Fischbach, "Who is Joe Chase?"

"I know that an individual by that name exists," said Meyer Weinstein. "I would not know him if he ran into me. I would say I have never met him."

Saw Scar Poulson

Meyer said he had seen Scar Poulson, and as for Rodriguez "I think we've been on his bond."

When Fischbach asked Meyer Weinstein whether the name "Suter" on a bond card for some one else signified that "Suter" paid the premium, the witness said, "I'm not at liberty to say 'yes' to that question."

"Who has restrained you?" asked Fischbach.

"No one," said Meyer Weinstein, explaining that to answer he'd have to draw a conclusion not based on facts about which he had direct knowledge.

Fischbach wanted to know what happened if a man recommended by Suter skipped out on his bail, and Meyer Weinstein said he would call Suter "only as a last resort" but he did not think matters would get to that point.

In such a situation, he said, he would be concerned only with locating the defendant, and "at a time like that" would not give a thought to the payment of the bond premium.

Both Leonard and Meyer testified that when they give receipts for payment of bonds, it's usually on the back of a business card.

Fischbach wanted to know if a bondsman tried to learn the identity of a person who comes in to pay the premium for someone else's bond.

"No," said Leonard. "We don't ask those questions."

"Have you recognized some of those persons who paid premiums for others?" asked Fischbach.

"Once in awhile," said Leonard.

"Can you name some of those people who had paid money for others?" asked Fischbach.

"You mean different people," asked Leonard.

"Yes," said Fischbach.

"Lots of times it might be relatives," said Leonard.

"That's not what I asked you, Leonard," said Fischbach.

The question was read back by the official reporter, and then Leonard asked, "What kind of cases are you talking about?"

"Gambling cases," said Fischbach.

Answers After Delay

Leonard looked at the ceiling, forehead wrinkling slightly, and after some delay said, "I just can't recall the names."

Fischbach fired a series of names at him—Billy Mitchell, John Brown, Nelson, Dietz—Leonard said "no" to each until he heard "Osborn," then testified, "I think he called me one time on a whisky bond. I think he lent a friend of his the money."

Fischbach asked Leonard if he had done a lot of business with Suter.

"Not too much," said Leonard.

When Fischbach asked how much, Leonard told the committee "a few of his friends got locked up and I got them out, I'd say about 10 or 11."

He added that "most of the time the individual we get out pays."

Leonard identified "Little Roy" as a man who has a tailor shop on N st., but when Fischbach asked, "Is he involved in gambling?" Leonard said, "I really couldn't say."

Inactive Past Few Years

William P. Ryan, a bondsman with offices at 406 5th st. nw., told the committee he had not been active in the business for the past few years because of ill health, and that 90 percent of the bonds of his firm were written by Howard F. Hughes.

Before Hughes took the witness chair, Ryan testified that in the past it had been common practice for gambling bail bond premiums to be paid some time after the bonds were issued, and to be paid by people who employ others in gambling.

Hughes, a former deputy U. S. marshal and veteran of four years in the Army, said he went into Ryan's bonding business in 1947.

"Have you had calls from gamblers to bail out their employes?" asked Fischbach.

"Truthfully, no sir," said Hughes.

Fischbach asked if "employers" had paid the bond premiums of persons charged in gambling cases.

"I could not say employers," Hughes replied. "In some cases, it was friends, in other cases it was relatives."

"I Don't Know Him"

Most of the names Fischbach fired at Hughes brought a shake of the head, or an "I don't know him" or the reply that he knew only what he'd read in the papers. He said he'd heard of Puddinhead Jones from what he read in the papers, the same for Snags Lewis and Roger Simkins, and Sonny Mason. He shook his head to the names of Billy Mitchell, Pat, Foots Dempsey, S. Bergman, Sussman and Little Roy.

He said he knew Joe Chase "I had Joe Chase on bond charged with gambling."

Fischbach asked Hughes about a card record on Garner S. Barbour. Hughes said the card was dated before he entered the business.

[Garner S. Barbour died of a heart attack six weeks after he was arrested, March 25, 1949, in the newsstand which he operated at 427 10th st. nw. Barbour was indicted with eight others by the special gambling grand jury on charges of conspiracy, setting up a gaming table and bookmaking.]

Fischbach later told Hughes to pull out the bond cards in gambling cases for the past two years, and to be prepared to testify about them later.

Hughes said it was his experience that some persons charged with gambling do know, and some do not know, who they work for, but that all hesitate to tell.

But he declared that in the bond writing business "where you get cash or you just don't get it," the bonds written for gamblers are known as "preferred bonds." He said in his experience he'd never heard of a gambler skipping bond or leaving town.

"They're always at court," he said. "A gambler is a preferred risk."

Zampini Held in $500 On Lottery Charge

Louis A. Zampini, 36, of 1156 15th st. nw., proprietor of a newsstand at 1624 L st. nw., yesterday was held in $500 bond for a continued hearing February 24 on a charge of operating a lottery. Bond was set by Municipal Court Judge Walter J. Casey.

Zampini was arrested at his stand Thursday by Capt. Anthony Richitt and Cpl. J. C. Conway of the Third Precinct. Police said numbers and race bet slips were seized.

Arkansas Avenue Group To Hear Probe Report

Clifford Newell, president of the Arkansas Avenue Community Association, said yesterday Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.) has agreed to discuss the current House investigation of Washington crime at the March 2 meeting of the association.

He said the meeting wil lbe held in the Burdick Vocational High School, 13th and Allison sts. nw.

He said House District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) has agreed to attend the meeting, and that Major Robert J. Barrett, superintendent, and other ranking officers of the Metropolitan Police, are expected.

Miami Crime Body Asks Federal Help Against Criminals

By The Associated Press

The Greater Miami Crime Commission yesterday pleaded for Federal help in a drive against "nationally known criminals and hoodlums now centering their activities in south Florida."

Senator Holland (D., Fla.), through whom the appeal was made, said Attorney General McGrath told him he could not send FBI agents to investigate local law enforcement problems.

In a telegram signed by Jack R. Younger, president, the commission told Holland the State "has acknowledged its inability or unwillingness to cope with conditions" in the area "now beset with rackets controlled by interstate gangs."

Younger said the commission had appealed to the Governor of Florida for State help but "he has refused to cause our laws to be enforced." He said Federal help is needed "to halt a further breakdown of our law enforcement."

The appeal was the second from Florida in as many days for help in dealing with crime. C. V. Griffin, wealthy citrus grower, asked President Truman Thursday to act in a situation with which, Griffin said, "the Governor can't or won't cope."

There has been no word from the White House concerning Griffin's request.

11-Year-Old Boy Loses Battle To Continue Living With Dad

Blond 11-year-old Johnny Wilson, victim of a broken home, had put up a good fight but yesterday he lost.

Despite his tearful protestations to his mother in the District Court of Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech that "I don't want to go with you. I want to go with my daddy," the lad was led off by his mother, aided by her sister and a deputy marshal.

It was all strictly legal of course. The mother, Mrs. Irene Wilson of Covington, Ky., had been granted custody of the child by a Covington, Ky., court in 1947.

The father, Roger S. Wilson, 513 7th st. ne., by the court order was to have custody during school vacations.

The lad came to visit with his father and stayed on.

Last January, according to affidavits filed in the case, when Mrs. Wilson came to get him, the lad ran upstairs to his room, locked the door and leaped from the window.

He sprained his ankle in the leap but could not be located for several hours until he phoned his father.

Subsequently, Mrs. Wilson brought action here asking District Court to cite her former husband for contempt in failing to obey the Kentucky decree. The latter was represented by Attorney Joseph Sitnick while Clifford Allder represented Mrs. Wilson.

Yesterday Judge dismissed the contempt move and indicated that the father had not tried to influence the boy.

But this did not affect the Kentucky custody decree and the sobbing boy enmeshed in two pairs of arms and a tangle of legalisms was bustled off to Mrs. Wilson's waiting car.

Complex Of Fear

An admirably lucid interpretation of President Truman's views on American relations with Russia was given to the public the other day by Mr. Arthur Krock of the New York Times. Only, perhaps, by a public address (assuming that adequate communication facilities could have been obtained for the purpose) could the President have conveyed his ideas to the people more effectively. And even then, without Mr. Krock as a catalyst, it is by no means certain that so clear an impression would have been presented of a "serene" President "with undiminished confidence in the triumph of humanity's better nature and the progress of his own efforts to achieve abiding peace."

Two very interesting revelations are contained in Mr. Krock's account of "the mind and purpose of Harry S. Truman." One is that the President now thinks it was a mistake to have suspended lend-lease shipments to Europe in 1945 almost immediately after the surrender of Germany. This produced an atmosphere at Potsdam unfavorable to what the President wished to accomplish. And perhaps it contributed rather significantly to what the President, according to Mr. Krock, considers "the real trouble with the Russians—that they are still suffering from a complex of fear and inferiority where we are concerned."

The other major revelation in Mr. Krock's report is that if a political campaign had not been in progress here in 1948, the President would have sent Chief Justice Vinson to try to straighten out Stalin on this and on our real intentions. This was extensively bruited at the time, although from less authoritative sources. It is certain to be bruited again since Mr. Krock reports the President as believing that maybe it will be "the thing to do some time. But in nothing must we show any sign of weakness."

If the President really believes the Russians to be suffering from a complex of fear and inferiority where we are concerned—which is to say a misunderstanding of our motives—it is hard to perceive any sign of weakness in a straightforward attempt to make our motives understood.

News For The Voice

Underlying all the controversy on whether to admit representatives of the Voice of America to the Senate and House press galleries is a serious inconsistency on the part of the two largest wire services. The Associated Press and the United Press will not sell service to the State Department foreign information program on the ground that use of their stories by a governmental agency might reflect on their objectivity. At the same time they oppose news gathering by the Government.

Even the most resolute opponents of the information program are coming to accept its importance as an arm of foreign policy. Senator McMahon aptly described the present inadequate efforts when he called them the "Whisper of America." The current 29-million-dollar budget, for example, is less than is spent annually to advertise cosmetics. This sum is diminished by the fact that, because of the noncooperation of AP and UP, the State Department has been forced into the news gathering business.

Much of the confusion arises, it seems to us, from the erroneous idea that the aims of a free press and those of the foreign information program are somehow antithetical. Presumably neither AP nor UP holds itself responsible for the use made of its news by its clients, domestic or foreign. If they did, the Associated Press would be in an untenable position indeed—for AP news is available to the Russian government through an exchange agreement with Tass, the Soviet news agency. Tass, incidentally, is also admitted to the press galleries. Here the United States Government is denied access to the news reports which the Russians use for propaganda! If the AP and UP would abandon their hostility State Department representation in the press galleries would be pointless.

In the present situation, however, the Standing Committee of Correspondents must advise Congress, not on whether the information service is entitled to news, but on whether its representatives should sit in the press galleries. The answer should be no. The embarrassment to the press of having Government employes in the press room with the newspapermen is argument enough against it. However, the State Department should be permitted the services of the press gallery staff in obtaining copies of speeches and the like, and it should be given working facilities outside the press room. It also behooves newspapermen to realize that the foreign information program is an ally which is defending, among other things, the freedom of the press.

Coal Settlement

The gravity of the economic crisis caused by coal shortages will no doubt force the Government to institute contempt proceedings against the UMW, unless John L. Lewis and the operators arrive at a settlement of their dispute within the next few days. The Administration is understandably reluctant to take this step. For apart from the fact that that step would have adverse political repercussions, it is by no means certain that a back-to-work movement would be speeded by levying fines on the union since the miners are in a rebellious mood. If the miners stand on their rights as individuals to work or not to work as they choose, there is nothing that the Government or union officials can do to force compliance with a back-to-work order. Furthermore, if the miners were to return to work without a contract, the operators and the unions would be forced to carry on negotiations in an atmosphere of hostility not conducive to successful collective bargaining.

On the other hand, if the miners remained on strike following contempt citations, the Government would be faced with a situation calling for drastic measures, presumably seizure of the struck mines. Since the President says he lacks the power of seizure, special authorizing legislation would then be required to permit the Government to take over the mines. That would entail delays that might prove disastrous. And again, there is no assurance that seizure would be any more effective than an injunction. To be sure, Mr. Lewis indicated last fall that the miners would be willing to work for the Government under a "bona fide" seizure plan. In other words, under a plan permitting the Government to retain the profits from operating the mines. Nevertheless that would amount in effect to temporary nationalization of the industry, setting a dangerous precedent that neither Congress nor the Administration would be likely to indorse.

The fact remains that extreme measures of the kind mentioned are the only alternatives to collective bargaining. Realization of that fact may induce the operators and the miners to come to a compromise agreement before it is too late. At any rate, the Government has not abandoned hopes for a settlement of the dispute over the weekend. And, although reports of conference proceedings have not been too encouraging, there is good reason to believe that the basis for a compromise can be found. Instead of standing pat, the operators might offer to grant limited wage increases and make larger contributions to the welfare fund. Mr. Lewis' suggestion that the operators guarantee at least 200 days of work is also a hopeful sign that he is ready to talk more specifically about the terms of a new contract. The periodical work suspensions that he has hitherto defended as a union prerogative under the old "able and willing" contract clause are in good part accounted for by the inability of the industry to provide full-time work for his miners. Strikes and part-time work fit into the Lewis plan for spreading work and keeping up the price of coal and mine wages by reduction of output.

Although the Lewis methods of dealing with the problem of overproduction have aggravated the plight of the coal industry, there is no denying the need for remedial action. For during the thirties, according to figures supplied by the United States Bureau of Mines, miners worked on the average much less than 200 days annually. And the maximum number of working days recorded during the past 20 years was 278 days attained in 1944. Since 1946, working days have been much below that figure. If the operators could give some guarantees in respect of working time, it would help to regularize employment, although it is impossible to solve the long-range problems growing out of the industry's excess productive capacity under any collective bargaining agreement. In our opinion, Congress will have to deal with that problem eventually. Meantime a compromise settlement of the coal dispute would be the quickest and surest way of getting the miners back to work, averting the threatened paralysis of industry, and relieving the personal hardships and hazards of heatless homes, hospitals and offices.

Damage In China

Reports of the damage done to American property as well as of the havoc among the Chinese people by the bombing from the Nationalist stronghold in Formosa confirm the propriety of the American protest to Chiang Kai-shek. The protest, however, seems to have been in vain; the bombing will go on. By coincidence or not, the worst attack came in the penultimate stages of the Mao-Stalin negotiations in Moscow, and, if anything were needed to encourage the alliance that came out of those negotiations, this attack doubtless supplied it. In this topsy-turvy world in the Far East, the Russians may now be constrained to help the Chinese Communists in resisting these Nationalist attacks on American property!

Anything, at any rate, is possible in China, and American diplomacy has added to the complications by regarding international law and the American interest as quibbles. We declared the Nationalist blockade of the Chinese coast "illegal," then we advised our shipping not to run it, thereby making it in effect legal. We acquiesced in Nationalist shooting up our shipping with American guns mounted on naval vessels that we had either given or lend-leased to Chiang Kai-shek. We unsaddled ourselves from Chiang Kai-shek—in the President's Formosa statement of January 5—and then resaddled ourselves to him in the congressional extension of ECA aid, the price, evidently, of living up to our moral obligation to Korea.

In the meantime the remaining portion of the arms aid that Congress authorized in 1947 continues to be landed on Formosa. With this aid the Nationalists are now banging away at American targets in China—the American power station in Shanghai and the British-American Tobacco Co. plants across the river at Pootung. It's a mad world, my masters.

Atlantic Union

To give men's thoughts a direction is the highest mark of statesmanship. If the new direction points to closer ties for living and working together in amity, then the statesman is insuring his immortal soul. Moreover, such a direction inspires a drive in behalf of the good and the true which otherwise would remain potential. On this subject we have in the past quoted the great nineteenth century historian, Lord Acton. Lord Acton out of his erudition and wisdom observed that "the pursuit of a remote and ideal object which captivates the imagination by its splendor and the reason by its simplicity evokes an energy which would not be inspired by a rational, possible end, limited by many antagonistic claims, and confined to what is reasonable, practicable and just." This is the reason we have backed the resolution calling for a convention of the free world to discuss a union of the Atlantic community.

Now the State Department, playing Mr. Obstinate to this Pilgrim's Progress, thinks the pilgrimage is a will-o'-the-wisp. As the administrative unit of our foreign affairs, perhaps this was inevitable, though a better attitude might have been one of neutrality. It is hardly wise to include the illusion of the brotherhood of man in the current slaughter of illusions. The opposition, the department may be sure, will be no deterrent to this growing movement, nor to the friendliness exhibited toward it by so many of the legislators. Since the H-bomb decision members of Congress have been searching for a parallel line to pursue along with that of what may at any time be a provocative and a frightening line of militarization. The line on which the State Department was asked to comment has as its goal freedom and union. Surely that is the hope of the world.

Even the President shares the vision that the (more or less) world government or federation advocates are working to achieve. At any rate, on June 28, 1945, he said, "I am anxious to bring it home to you that the world is no longer county-size, no longer State-size, no longer nation-size—it is one world, as Willkie said. It is a world in which we must all get along. And it is my opinion that this great Republic ought to lead the way. It will be just as easy for nations to get along in a republic of the world as it is for you to get along in the Republic of the United States."

The way is more difficult than the President then seemed to envisage—a way that he seems himself to think is too full of roadblocks to venture further. But some of the roadblocks are imaginary. For instance, there seems to be an idea that if there were a union Europeans would throng their ports immediately and make for America. Not the slightest reason exists for this fear. Are any of the immigration quotas, except that of Italy, filled? Not at all. A State Department spokesman objected that few Americans would allow foreigners to outnumber them in a union parliament. This was a misstatement of the aims of the union movement. The fields of activity of an over-all body would be as limited as the constituents cared to make it, and the voting could be weighted—and might well be—instead of numerical.

However, the advocates of one form or other of union would welcome the ventilation of real as well as imaginary difficulties. That is the reason for this resolution. It simply calls for a convention. Such a convention would clearly put men's thoughts in the direction of ways and means of living together better, and togetherness is the only means of survival. Presumably the convention would dissolve into working committees which would seek agreement on details for further discussion. The process itself would be of great service in furthering existing American policy of cooperation, as, for instance, in making the Atlantic Pact a reality. In sum: the unionists have a goal, and they serve a purpose to the rest of us in showing us the end of the route toward which we are, presumably, walking. The trouble is that time is not on the side of the pedestrian.

THE MOUSE

I was at this and that
In the empty house,
When Death came creeping,
Quiet as a mouse.

Nibbling at the carpets,
Sidling up the stair,
Peeking 'round the corners
At me unaware.

"And don't let it frighten you"
He said, "in the house
I always come quietly
Quiet as a mouse!

I always find may way in
Though the passage's blocked,
I can use the back door
When the front's locked—"

So I didn't make an uproar
Greeting my spouse . . .
Death creeping, creeping,
Quiet as a mouse!

Lincoln Republicans

It was hardly surpising that there was nothing remarkable about the latest crop of Lincoln Day speeches. The problem of what a good Republican should say in a Lincoln Day speech has become an increasingly difficult one with each succeeding year. One does not have to be a student of history to realize that Lincoln the political leader, to say nothing of Lincoln the man, had little in common with the present-day Republican program.

Lured by the hopes of Dixiecrat support, the present-day Republican speaks much of States' rights. Lincoln outdid Jackson as a champion of the Federal Union. He ran on the Union ticket in 1864. The fact that he was a war President did much to strengthen Lincoln's nationalistic tendencies, but there is much about his career to make it appear that he had long realized that State lines are often artificial barriers which serve only to obstruct progress and protect selfish interests which may have secured temporary local ascendancy.

Lincoln was no socialist, but he did sign the Homestead Act. By approving this tardily enacted law, Lincoln did indicate that he realized that the national Government has a direct responsibility for the welfare of the individual citizen. No one can guess what stand Lincoln would have taken on questions such as employe retirement programs, public housing and nationalized medicine, but we can be pretty certain that he would not have taken refuge behind the shibboleth of "Leave that problem to the States."

Though it was the greatest ambition of his life, Lincoln freed the Negroes only after great soul searching. He well understood the questions of property rights involved, but Lincoln came to realize that human rights must always transcend property rights. Many modern Republicans can't exactly follow Lincoln there.

Many of these things have not been said in recent Lincoln Day speeches, but they are a part of the real Lincoln, who deserves emulation by all of the people of the country, Republicans as well as Democrats.

"North Carolina's Gain"

I realize it is not good taste to mar with a sour note your February 9 editorial praise of North Carolina's Gordon Gray, for such praise is undoubtedly one of the rewards of poorly compensated and much harassed Government officials. But there is a serious question as to why a young man of wealth should leave the service of his country as Secretary of Army at a time when the country is faced with grave dangers and needs its best leaders for its defense.

Mr. Gray, being the kind of a man he is, no doubt had high motives in making his decision; however, it would be most interesting to know the reasons that led him to believe he could more usefully serve the people as president of even so great and liberal a university as North Carolina than as Secretary of the Army during these particular times. Surely it is not that he is more concerned with the welfare of the people of his own State than with that of the people of all the country. The United States Government is having too hard a time to keep its good men in office for us to accept, without question, decisions to leave high Federal positions. Therefore the good that men like Gordon Gray may do while in office can be lost in the assurance their short terms of service gives to a certain type of bureaucrat who resists reforms and changes. Department heads come and go but they go on forever.

I know that many men, unlike Gordon Gray, have left for selfish reasons and it is therefore a real tribute that the criticism in this letter is based upon higher standards than apply to most other men.

"Screening Crime"

I read your splendid editorial of February 14, touching the congressional investigation of crime in the District of Columbia, with particular reference to the conduct of U. S. Attorney Fay's assistants.

I agree with your editorial in the main. But I can not agree with your suggestion for a system of magistrates, who, for the most part, would be people who are untrained in the law.

I have been in the law practice for 42 years, and my practice has carried me into practically all of the States. In every State I find that the matter of pressing a case or in presenting a case to the court is largely left to the discretion of the district attorney or State's attorney or prosecuting attorney, whatever he is designated. It is better and safer to entrust the hearing and recommendation in these matters to a staff of trained lawyers, such as Mr. Fay has—men who have sat at the feet of our judges and reaped the benefit of their long and rich experience.

Change this system and your criminal dockets will be cluttered as shamefully as your civil dockets.

PERRY W. HOWARD.

Equal Rights

In your editorial of January 29 in which you discuss the recent Senate debate on the equal rights amendment, you urge an intensified fight for the equal status bill which, in your opinion, should be a substitute for the amendment. Against this I protest.

The equal status bill, with its involved provisions, is in no sense a bill of rights for women, but would place them in a class apart outside the pale of human rights. While freeing women from common-law discriminations, it would fasten upon them another set of sex distinctions which would inevitably jeopardize not only equal pay for equal work but their basic freedoms. Who would decide the limits and implications of the "reasonably justified sex differences" specified in the equal status bill?

On the other hand, the equal rights amendment, patterned after the fifteenth and nineteenth amendments, would give women the best protection any citizen can have—equal rights under the law and the equal protection of the law.

I agree with you that certain types of protective legislation for groups of men and women are valuable and desirable. I believe that what is essential, such as maternity legislation, can be kept under the equal rights amendment, just as veterans' benefits are held constitutional, although all men, veterans and nonveterans, have equality under the law. The trend has been to cover both men and women in labor legislation, and this is the fairest method to pursue. There is nothing to prevent States from appointing commissions to study the revision of their laws which would be affected by the equal rights amendment, and probably only the impetus of this amendment will encourage this long-overdue procedure.

"Mrs. Sanger's Visa"

Aside from exhibiting a disregard for the basic moral issue involved, your February 15 editorial on the denial of a visa to Margaret Sanger to visit Japan presents an interesting study of The Washington Post's psychotic logic.

Because "she made a distinct impression . . . upon some of the leading Japanese women," the editorial concludes that "General MacArthur . . . certainly did not yield to Japanese wishes" in denying the visa and that "the Japanese know and respect Mrs. Sanger."

This leap from the particular to the universal is bridged only by The Washington Post's fond imagination. As a mater of fact, it is highly uncertain that even a majority of the Japanese know of Mrs. Sanger, to say nothing of their pining away, practicing infanticide, for this woman's doctrines and wares.

By its efforts to limit the quantity of American intellects, it is apparent that Sangerism has not as yet succeeded in improving the quality of The Washington Post's editorial intelligence.

REV. WILLIAM A STEFFEN.
Catholic University of America
Washington.

Barring of Margaret Sanger from Japan on the excuse—as reported succinctly in the Washington press—that her admittance might imply an indorsement of her views on birth control by General MacArthur's headquarters, is deeply shocking. Only in a totalitarian community is permission to speak ever an indorsement of the speaker's views.

While I was in Japan the subject of birth control was taboo in the headquarters. There was a fear in high quarters that powerful churchmen, more especially of the Roman Catholic persuasion, would criticize the headquarters for facilitating birth control information to the Japanese.

But Japanese population has a vegetative increase of over 1 million persons per year. And the Japanese are very conscious of the need for modern birth control information to substitute for their own methods of controls—used as late as the 18th century—of "weeding out" children. In English this means infanticide.

But indeed the point at issue is not whether birth control is suitable or not for Japan. The point is that a reputable person, of international stature, should have been forbidden a hearing.

Autocratic methods and a totalitarian mentality demonstrated in this affaire Sanger should be quickly reversed—or explained if our facts are wrong—by the Department of the Army. We can hardly expect the Japanese to value our democracy when we violate it so shockingly ourselves.

ALLEN HADEN,
Former Press Officer, Civil Information and Education Section; Information Officer, Office of the U. S. Political Adviser, Tokyo.
Washington.

I would like to applaud General MacArthur for his refusal to grant a visa to Margaret Sanger.

What Mrs. Sanger preaches, artificial birth control, is of its very nature evil, for it consists in performing a natural act, sexual intercourse, and at the same time attempts to destroy the natural effect of that act.

In Japan in particular, besides the rational and moral aspect artificial birth control is racially harmful because it is the comparatively small numbers of the "educated" classes that follow it's dictates.

Stocktaking By Parents

By Malvina Lindsay

Rearing Junior

ANOTHER RASH of discussion on how to rear children has broken out. Its nature reveals how deeply parents realize that the world they will hand their offspring won't be an easy one to live in.

One feature of this discussion is its tendency to soul searching by parents. Yet many parents of today grew up in homes where they were enjoined to be good in order to "make Mama and Papa happy." And a century earlier there were books for parents that pictured unruly tots punished by having their parents stricken with death.

The Town Meeting of the Air in a recent bout with the child-rearing question reached as one conclusion that parents needed a sense of humility and a sense of humor. Imagine how that would have sounded to many parents even 30 years ago! Yet one Town Meeting speaker quoted Juvenal (A. D. 60-1400) as saying "Great reverence is owed to a child."

However today's discussion, with its repeated question, "Are we spoiling our children?" veers away from the cult that Junior must never be frustrated in his self-expression. Children must be helped to become self-disciplined and self-reliant, educators and psychologists emphasize, if they are to be strong enough to live in the rigorous, dangerous world they are inheriting.

But in child rearing as elsewhere the defeatist attitude shows up. Some parents today are over-indulgent of their children because "it looks as if things will be so much harder for them later on."

ANTHROPOLOGISTS are telling parents they must learn to be flexible in a society largely on the move, undergoing great social change, confronted with prolonged danger of war. Only in this way can they give their children a sense of stability and develop in them the ability to adjust to rapid change.

Warnings against spoiling children take a modern slant. Overambitious parents are spoiling children on a widespread scale, by pushing them too hard and by cluttering up their lives, writes Dean Millicent C. McIntosh of Barnard College in the Junior League Magazine. Our competitive world, this educator believes, causes parents to impose on children standards of excellence and patterns of behavior that "often are wrong for them."

Not only must they excel in studies and sports, they must learn to dance, ride, sing, be masters of all social graces. They have no time of their own, no time to do things for themselves. People are constantly doing things to them. In fact perfectionist parents seem to be succeeding the overpossessive one just now in the attention of psychologists and pediatricians.

Parents generally seem eager for advice, even criticism. With such a great patter of small feet, and sound of not-so-small voices in households of the Nation, with new social forces changing family life, and a hydrogen bomb lurking around the corner, small wonder that how to bring up Junior has become such a lively topic.

Yet extending this stocktaking to parents who most need help—the unaware, indifferent, or complacently omnipotent—is not easy. The film is perhaps the best means of doing this.

This writer recently saw two effective films that the United States Public Health Service uses in its educational work. Called The Feeling of Rejection and The Feeling of Hostility, they were made by the Canadian Film Board which has pioneered in producing "films for thought," widely used by community discussion groups.

These films showed how children's personalities could be crippled seriously by anxious, possessive, perfectionist, overambitious, selfish, parents who fail to recognize their children's greatest need—that of a love deep enough to give security, unselfish enough to give freedom.

Every adult in the small audience that saw the film left with new resolutions of behavior, prominent among which were more self-reliance. "From now on," said a young man, "no one is going with me when I buy a suit." "From now on," said virtually every woman, "I won't buy a hat I don't want, even when I'm told it's youthful!"

The film can reach further, have a more lasting emotional effect than the lecture or printed word. More small movie projectors, more good short films on child rearing, more parent discussion groups would greatly aid the millions of young parents now beginning to wonder if they're "doing things right" in fields outside of feeding formulas.

Tetanus Serum

An item in your February 15 issue arouses righteous indignation to the boiling point because of the criminal negligence and stupidity involved. Alexandria [illegible] cuts arm on glass while hunting rats in a trash dump; dies of lockjaw.

Instead of eliminating all the rat-infested dumps, the "authorities" propose to dump filthy serum into clean bloodstreams (if any) even of infants! The qualification because, doubtless, most of the children have already been polluted by many other doctor-dumped serums.

Drift In Berlin

By Marquis Childs

Russian Squeeze On The West

EVERY intelligence channel supplies additional details of the plan being thoroughly and efficiently and persistently advanced by the Russians to drive the Western Allies out of Berlin. By every possible means the Western position in that strategic city is being undermined.

Childs

Whether the Western Allies are preparing plans of sufficient boldness to meet the attack is a question. It is a question deeply troubling many who are familiar with the precarious position of the western sector of the city and the Americans, British and French who are there presumably to see that this bastion is held.

Berlin could be another China. That may seem a fantastic exaggeration when the two areas are compared in terms of geography and population. But in Europe, Berlin has taken on such meaning as a symbol of Western intentions that its loss would shake the continent and its effect in western Germany could not be calculated.

Information reaching me from knowledgeable sources in Berlin indicates that the Western Allies are drifting with no very clear notion of how the challenge is to be met. This is reflected in a growing nervousness and tension in the German population.

Part of the uncertainty comes out of the American blunder in ordering the seizure of the Railway Administration Building. Then when the Russians seemed to threaten to reimpose the blockade, the order was given to surrender the building. That created a wave of doubt throughout western Germany.

ACTUALLY, of course, the origin of the trouble is much deeper than this incident. It goes back to the agreement signed by the Foreign Ministers in Paris in June of 1949 putting an end to the blockade. That agreement restored the controls over transportation existing in December of 1947 and January of '48.

Under those regulations the Russians can require bills of lading on each truck load leaving the city. Endless delays are possible while the bills of lading are checked against the goods on the truck. Thus an effective blockade can be imposed within the limits of the law.

Berlin is primarily a city where raw materials are processed. Those materials must come from western Germany and be shipped out again if the city is ever to make an economic comeback. The uncertainties of American policy have produced a skepticism which one west German businessman summed up as follows:

"The Americans give in now when the Russians make trouble. If I send raw materials to Berlin, how sure am I that I will get my goods back if the trucks are stopped? The Americans can pull out and where then is my investment? The risk is too great."

More American dollars are now being poured into Berlin. But the level of unemployment remains high. There have been enough Russian violations to justify reimposing the counter-blockade which would really hurt the Soviet zone.

SOME Americans believe the time has come for just such a bold step. They go even further and say that a revived airlift should be used not alone to feed western Berliners but to fly in raw materials and to fly out processed goods, thereby helping to restore the city's vitality.

This would, of course, cost a lot of money. The previous airlift cost 265 million dollars for 15 months. On a larger scale, encompassing at least a part of Berlin's economic life, the cost would be greater.

Here one comes up against the policy of curtailment and economy in Washington. The logic of that policy comes out of the prospect of another five-billion-dollar deficit for the fiscal year 1951. It is also directly related to the present determination apparent both in Congress and in the country to keep things on a business-as-usual level with each group in the population determined against any sacrifice of any part of its interest.

This puts the men who make policy under severe limitations. They are restrained from taking any new and dynamic line. The net result is drift, and the American people should know that drift can lead straight to catastrophe.

The complete communization of the Soviet zone is moving forward on a calculated timetable with periodic step-ups. The so-called folk police in the East zone are training with armed Russian units. In the non-Communist political parties that remain, all opposition elements are being ruthlessly and systematically eliminated. The "Free German Youth" are making powerful propaganda out of a proclaimed march on western Berlin on May 28 with 500,000 marchers armed with iron-pointed walking sticks.

If worst comes to the worst, then no American has the right to surprise or shock. The signs as of this moment are unmistakable.

2 More Tax Reduction Bills Voted by Senate in Maryland

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Maryland Senate rolled out two more tax-cut bills today and thus threw Governor Lane's revenue program into the House for a decision.

It voted to lower from 5 to 2 percent the rate on investment income not exceeding $500 when total income is not more than $10,000.

And it unanimously approved a bill to allow taxpayers who earn more than $10,000 a year to deduct $600 for each dependent. The allowance now is $400.

By its action, the Senate gave this standing to the administration's plan for income tax relief:

1. Sent to the Governor for signature, a bill hiking to $600 the dependents' deduction for persons making less than $10,000 a year.

2. In the House for action: The dependency measure for taxpayers in the bracket above $10,000 and the reduced rate on small investment incomes.

3. Returned to the House for concurrence: A bill to double to $2000 the personal exemption for persons 65 and older and to permit for the first time a $1000 exemption for dependents in the same age group. The Republican-backed allowance for aged dependents was written in the Senate; the House originally approved only the taxpayer's personal exemption.

While accepting Governor Lane's tax recommendations with few murmurs of dissent, administration Democrats joined others in entreaties for more State aid to private hospitals.

Both the Senate finance and House ways and means committees implored the Governor to dig up $331,000 more for the hospitals which treat impoverished Marylanders.

Lane has suggested $1,292,909 for the purpose in his budget. But the fiscal committees heeded distress calls from hospital authorities who said they got the same amount last year and couldn't meet expenses with it.

Earlier a hospital sweepstakes to raise money for Maryland hospitals was proposed by Delegate Milanicz (D., Balto. 1st).

Milanicz said he would introduce in the Legislature a bill to propose a constitutional amendment which would permit a State lottery simliar to the Irish Sweepstakes. He estimated it would produce over six million dollars a year.

Meanwhile, the House jammed down the brakes on another drive to require semiannual automobile inspections. Delegates passed a resolution requesting Lane to appoint a commission to study the proposal—an old-timer in the State Legislature.

By it saction, the House conceded no chance for a bill introduced by the Legislative council to order mechanical inspections of cars and trucks.

Taft's Campaign

By Mark Sullivan

Meaning For '52 Presidential Race

THE LINCOLN DAY celebrations by the Republicans, and their recent formal statement of party policy, look to two elections, the congressional one this year and the presidential one in 1952. To both elections there is one man who has a unique and accurately interlocked relation.

Sullivan

In the country-wide congressional election, voters in the respective States and districts know the names of the local candidates, of course. But ask any citizen to name one candidate outside his own State or district. In so many cases as to be almost universal, he can name just one, Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio. In the total of several hundred candidates for Senator or Representative throughout the country, Taft stands out. Taft's campaign to succeed himself has become a national campaign. Except that the voting is confined to Ohio, the outcome in November will be in effect a national election. This is a striking political phenomenon. Hardly ever in our political history has any Nation-wide election of a Congress been so dominated by one candidate in one State.

A PARTIAL reason for the Nation-wide interest in the Taft campaign is that if he wins he gains considerable momentum toward the Republican presidential nomination in 1952. Along with this goes another reason. If the Republicans carry Ohio in the senatorial election next November, it will be taken as a sign that they can carry the presidential election in the Nation in 1952. The converse, of course, is also true. In short, victory for Taft in Ohio would point toward his nomination by the Republicans in 1952, and toward Republican entry into the presidency. Incidentally, the Nation-wide interest in Taft's campaign in Ohio—so far as it is a friendly and supporting interest, as much of it is—is an asset for him in 1952; rooters for him now are likely to be active boosters for him then.

Most of this is conventional political reasoning or speculation. It rests largely upon a tradition which looks upon Ohio as a large and frequently pivotal State with a considerable balance of power between the parties. The tradition has been given force by the fact that in 21 presidential elections since the Civil War, the Republican candidates have been chosen from Ohio seven times.

But there is a broader reason for the phenomenon of Nation-wide popular interest in Taft's campaign. This is political thinking by the people on a high level, the level of contrasting ideas and schools of thought. Taft is the outstanding spokesman, legislative leader and symbol of opposition to the political and economic philosophy which is associated with the Truman Administration. A presidential contest between Truman and Taft in 1952, if it should turn out that way, would be one of the most clear-cut and directly head-on controversies on a deeply fundamental issue that American politics has ever seen.

AND A presidential contest between these two men would be very different from the one between Truman and Dewey in 1948. In the 1948 campaign, Truman focused his attack very largely on the Taft-Hartley labor law which the Republican Congress had passed under the leadership of Senator Taft. Truman denounced the law bitterly, promised that if he were elected the law would be repealed. After he was elected, and a Democraic Congress with him, partisans of Truman said that the election had been a "mandate from the people" for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law; and Administration leaders in Congress set about repeal confidently and resolutely.

But the law was not repealed. And for the prevention of repeal, Taft, as the Republican legislative leader in Congress, was largely responsible. In a sense it could be said that Taft vetoed Truman's 1948 victory. The presence of the Taft-Hartley law intact today is a verdict of public opinion, so far as public opinion is expressed in Congress, a verdict for Taft as against Truman. Besides, present and recent events related to labor, including paralyzing strikes, are likely to have made public opinion even less sympathetic to Truman's denunciation of the Taft-Hartley law than a year ago when Congress refused to repeal it—almost certainly less sympathetic to the point of view about labor which Truman vigorously expressed in his 1948 campaign or which has prevailingly been his attitude as President.

Senate Group Calls DP Chiefs Home From Germany for Quiz

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Top administrative officials of the Displaced Persons Commission will be brought from Germany to answer charges of fraud, corruption and sex blackmail in the DP program, the Senate Judiciary Immigration subcommittee announced yesterday.

Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) said DP Commissioners in this country—Ugo Carusi, Harry N. Rosenfield and Edward M. O'Connor—will also be asked to testify in open hearing, although the charges are directed against the officials now in Germany, and not against the commissioners.

No date has been set for the hearing because of the uncertainty of when the officials now in Germany can arrive. Committee aides predicted, however, that the session will crackle with fireworks.

Principal official coming from Germany is Alexandria Squadrilli, chief European coordinator of the DP program, who will be accompanied by some of the lesser officials. From Frankfurt, Germany, Squadrilli yesterday issued a denial to the Associated Press that a commission employe used sex blackmail on DP women trying to get to this country.

The charges were made in hearings before the subcommittee. A witness alleged that a Negro employe in the Frankfurt office of the commission blackmailed women DPs into having sexual relations with him.

"We investigated such rumors several months ago and found them unsubstantiated," said Squadrilli. "They seem to stem from the activities of a young man DP who was acting temporarily as a voluntary assistant in our Bremen embarkation center while awaiting his own shipment."

Squadrilli admitted that "some" displaced persons have won admission to the United States by fraudulent residence registration. He said the number may run as high as 500. Some charges have put the number as high as 30,000.

The Senate is expected to take up next week controversial legislation to revise the 1948 law. McCarran said he would not ask for any delay.

"I'm ready for it to come up at any time," he said.

Virginia Senate Lifts Rent Lids

General Laws Committee, by which it killed an amendment passed by the House to exempt Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William Counties and the City of Alexandria from State-wide decontrol.

A parliamentary question arose in the Capitol immediately after the Senate voted. It is whether the constitutional requirement of a four-fifths majority vote on bills with an "emergency" clause will be applicable when the House considers the Senate amendments, one of which is the June 10 emergency clause itself.

Speaker E. Blackburn Moore of Berryville, said he will rule on the question before a vote is taken, probably Monday.

Even if Moore rules that a simple majority can accept or reject the Senate amendments, it is possible the House will repeat its performance of last week, when it voted by a substantial majority to exempt the Northern Virginia area from provisions of the bill.

Committee May Be Named

The net effect may be that a conference committee will be appointed to resolve differences, with the possibility that certain areas will remain under control.

Senator Andrew W. Clarke, of Alexandria, who did not address himself to the Fenwick amendment, rose to comment on a proposal, later killed, to exempt Richmond.

"It may be my swan song," he declared, "But I think we are confronted with a principle, with which the Federal Government has attempted to leave on controls which are discriminatory and confiscatory."

Clarke said his "colleagues in the House" proposed the amendment to exempt the area he represents—Alexandria, Fairfax and Prince William—without even consulting him.

"In my community, rents are being decreased voluntarily," he continued. "There has not been a great influx into Richmond, and therefore I think the amendment on Richmond should be killed."

Also opposing the Richmond amendment was one of three Senators from the city, Frank S. Richeson. And he had a word for greater Washington:

"As for Arlington County—if our senior Senator (Rarry F. Byrd) could possibly succeed in cutting off the one or two million useless people on the Federal payroll, who are feeding at the public trough, Arlington would become a ghost town."

Fenwick Assails Bill

Fenwick had called the Boatwright bill "the worst piece of State interference in local affairs I've ever seen."

The population of Arlington has increased by 90,000 since 1940, he said. Living in apartment projects are 44 percent of the people, all of whom will be affected by decontrol of rents, he added.

Senator A. E. S. Stephens said rent controls, now that the emergency has passed, are an evil of the "Washington bureaucracy."

It is "always looking to control ond continuation of the law rather than the wishes of the people."

Senator Charles T. Moses of Appomattox offered the emergency clause amendment after all floor amendments had been rejected.

An administration spokesman said it is designed to prevent the possibility of Virginia having further rent control in the event Congress passes a new rent law in the meantime.

Delegate Frank P. Moncure of Stafford, who sponsored the House amendment exempting northern Virginia, has said he will not "ask the House again" for its approval.

Delegates Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria, and Edwin Lynch, Fairfax, said they would withhold comment until after the weekend. Delegates J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm of Arlington, were not immediately available for comment on their course of action when the Senate bill returns to the House.

day, and eliminate the necessity for additional legislation to meet new needs.

Powers said that the only differences between Sothoron's proposal and that which a charter form of government would bring would be that under Sothoron's proposal, the commissioners do not have bonding authority, may not enact penal ordinances which operate on a county's people, may not erect and maintain fences, and may not pass local fish and game laws.

Mrs. Bogdanoff was joined in her summation of defects of the proposed legislation by most of those who spoke. Among them was William R. Turner, president of the Chillum Civic Association, who called the bill a 'vicious piece of legislation," and added that the "failure of Senator Sothoron to take citizens into his confidence is to be deplored."

The text of the bill, Turner said, was "not available to many of us until early this week—time has been required to find competent analysis of the measure. As a result few civic associations have had an opportunity to present this legislation to their memberships. Only a bare mention of the bill could be made at the last meeting of my organization. Yet Democratic organizations and leaders were able to comment favorable on the day the bill was presented."

Might Be Excused

Turner said Sothoron's failure to inform county citizens and organizations might be excused by the county Senator on the grounds "that the bill did not exist four weeks ago. This in itself would be a basic condemnation of legislation carrying the import of Senate bill 43."

Mrs. Bogdanoff declared that under terms of Sothoron's bill, the only mandatory provisions upon the commissioners in the new government would be that they "receive more money, have a full-time commissioner and meet at least twice a week." The rest of the bill she termed "permissive" legislation. "In other words," she said, "you can if you want to, but you do not have to."

"The proponents of this bill," she said, "neither asked nor desired to know what the people of Prince Georges County want. No efforts were made to find out what the needs of the county government are; nor was the public invited to any planning or fact-finding meeting of the makers of this bill."

The league representative charged that for the past several years "the county commissioners have not been favorable to, nor receptive to any ideas, suggestions or recommendations for the modernization of the county governmental procedure and structure; nor, indeed, to the idea of a survey to find out in what direction any possible modernization would lie.

As a result she predicted the bill's provisions to this end "would surely die from lack of action... The reluctant conclusion we must come to is that the same group who are responsible for the status quo we find ourselves in today, will be the same group responsible for the so-called "modernization."

On the subject of the full-time commissioner, Mrs. Bogdanoff asked, "What will be the criteria for the position for this man to meet? Will we be asked to accept someone to run an eight-million-dollar cencern, which is our county government today, without proper background and experience to do an effective job?

Also, ordinarily people would at least have the right to vote yes or no against the name of the man up for this important office, but this bill denies them even that basic and fundamental privilege."

Turner asked the Prince Georges County delegation hearing the testimony, "If you insist on deciding what's good for Prince Georges County behind locked doors, leaving the public in a virtual vacuum, how can you expect an aroused public opinion?"

"The lack of public discussion and the high pressure tactics behind (the bill)," Turner said, "are indicative of the haste with which it has been prepared. There is circumstantial evidence of political conspiracy."

Turner warned that under terms of Sothoron's bill, the new government "can be established before the election this fall with no recourse to public opinion."

Nicholas Orem, jr., Hyattsville attorney, who spoke in favor of the bill, said it was "commendable" because it provided for more full time executive attention to county functions.

He said that if the Maryland assembly had a session every six monthes it would not be sufficient to keep up with changes in Prince Georges county and added:

Can't Wait 2 Years

We in Prince Georges County can't wait two years at a time to come down here for local legislation. This bill would take away the fetters to the county imposed by the legislature."

Orem added that he thought it was "admirable" that the legislature has "seen fit to relinquish" some of the fetters.

During the hearings, charges were made that a county group (the league of women voters) had called up a number of county residents and asked them to appear in protest against Sothoron's bill.

Preston Tate, a VFW delegate for the Seat Pleasant post, answered this charge by saying 10 of his group had come down to the meeting and "none of us is going to drive 35 miles just because somebody told us to."

Nearly 200 persons attended the hearing, which was crowded out of its original meeting in the Senate Finance Committe room.

County residents jam packed the Maryland House of Delegates chamber, and many stood during the 2½-hour session.

Albert F. Bird of Temple Hills, vice president of the county civic federation, opposed the bill and declared the citizens should have the right to a competent study of county needs.

Mrs. Virginia S. Wolfe of the Berwyn District Civic Association opposed the measure, stating, "There is nothing about the bill that we like and everything we don't like."

Donald Pierce, representing the Beltsville Grange, said the bill would have the effect of "bringing Tammany Hall or its counterpart to Prince Georges County."

Fred T. Ridgeway of the Vannsville District Citizens Association, said his group was "left out on a limb. We didn't even get a copy of the bill," and registered his opposition.

Mrs. Zella Saylor, representing Adelphi of Hyattsville, challenged county residents to assume their duties as citizens and participate in the county government. She said there had been increasing rumors that the county now has "an oxcart government. Apparently there is enough concern at those remarks that the masses might ultimately come to listen" that the bill was introduced. She said the suggestion that Sothoron's bill provided home rule" has an immensely important psychological effect on the masses of Prince Georgeans.

HomeRule Put At 40 Pct. in Montgomery

Montgomery County has only 40 percent of a real home rule government, Mrs. Harold A. Stone, first vice president of the League of Women Voters of the United States, told members of the county league yesterday.

Mrs. Stone, who is also author of several books on home rule, spoke at the county league's meeting at the Bethesda Methodist Church.

She declared the league's efforts for a "representative, responsible and responsive government" has still more than 50 percent of the way to go "to attain real efficiency in government." This, she said, is because 60 percent of the county's government is administered by agencies appointed by the Governor of Maryland. She mentioned the Maryand-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Board of Education and Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

In its business session, the league recommended "support of the referendum calling for a State constitutional convention for 1950" to the State league for action.

Mrs. James V. Bennett, president of the county league, and Mrs. John Scharf, local government chairman, presided.

Flanagan Succeeds Rogers As Senate Probers' Counsel

Appointment of Francis D. Flanagan as chief counsel of the powerful Senate Investigating Committee was announced yesterday following the resignation of William P. Rogers, noted pilot of several sensational Senate inquiries.

Chairman Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.) announced that Flanagan, former assistant counsel, would succeed Chief Counsel Rogers, who resigned as of March 1 to join the New York law firm of Dwight, Royall, Harris, Koegel & Caskey.

Senator Hoey said that Rogers will be in charge of the firm's Washington law office at 1000 Vermont ave. One member of the firm is former Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall, who was summoned for questioning before the committee a number of times when Rogers was chief counsel.

Flanagan, 37, formerly an administrative assistant to FBI Crief J. Edgar Hoover, worked with Rogers on the major Senate investigations of the past few years.

These included the inquiry into the war contract dealings of Maj. Gen. Bennett Meyers, the investigation of Howard Hughes, and Air Force procurement, and the recent "5 percenter" probe.

Prior to that Flanagan, as chief investigator for the old Senate War Investigating Committee, worked on the May-Garsson case, which resulted in the conviction of former Representative Andrew May (D., Ky.) and Henry and Murray Garsson on war fraud charges. He also investigated the case against Senator Theodore G. Bilbo (D., Miss.).

In announcing Rogers' resignation, Hoey said he had written his chief counsel expressing appreciation for Rogers' "very splendid service" to the committee in which he demonstrated that he was "capable, intelligent, and courageous, as well as fair and just."

Churches to Observe Ash Wednesday, First in Series of Special Lenten Services

Lent, Christianity's major period of fasting and prayer, begins Wednesday.

The 40-day observance (Sundays not counted) will come to an end at noon on Holy Saturday. Easter this year falls on April 9.

First day of Lent is Ash Wednesday, so called because of the custom in the Roman Catholic church of placing ashes on the heads of worshipers. The ashes are obtained from burning palm branches consecrated during the previous year's Palm Sunday observance.

On Ash Wednesday, traditional services will be held in all Catholic and Episcopal churches. Many Protestant churches have announced holy communion services for Wednesday.

Pope to Broadcast

Pope Pius XII is expected to launch the children's part of the 1950 campaign of the Bishops' Fund for Overseas Relief with a broadcast to boys and girls in America on Ash Wednesday morning.

Noonday Lenten services will be held at several downtown churches. The Washington Federation of Churches will hold its services at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw.

Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw., again will have noonday services, with a series of guest speakers.

Capitol Hill noonday services will be at the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, 212 East Capitol st. nw., with clergymen for neighboring churches as the speakers.

On this Sunday and next, children in Episcopal Churches in the diocese of Washington will receive Lenten mite boxes in which to collect pennies for the mission work of their church. They will be returned at a children day service at the Washington Cathedral in May.

Mid-Week Services

During Lent, many Protestant churches have scheduled special mid-week services, lectures, and fellowship dinners.

Others have planned short services at the end of the working day so that those who are unable to attend midday service may worship briefly.

The Rev. Andrew R. Bird will begin a series of Lenten sermons on the basic essentials of the Christian faith at 7:45 p. m. Sunday at the Church of the Pilgrims, 22d and P sts. nw.

At Waugh Methodist Church, 3d and A sts. ne., the Rev. Hirl A. Kester will speak on "The Challenge of Lent" at 11 a. m. Sunday. At the same hour at Grace Reformed Church, 1401 15th st. nw., the Rev. Robert Olewiler will speak on "Lent and I."

A pre-Lenten showing of the film "King of Kings" will be given Sunday in the parish hall of Atonement Lutheran Church, 2 Rhode Island ave. ne. at 4, 6 and 8 p. m.

Women of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 15th and Church sts. nw., will serve a traditional Shrove Tuesday pancake supper at the church from 2 to 7 p. m. Tuesday.

At Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle nw., a similar supper will be served from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. Tuesday by the Washington Womens League of Gettysburg College.

Bishop Dun to Help Honor Washington

The annual Washington's Birthday corporate communion of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew will be held at 8 a. m. Wednesday at Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G st. nw.

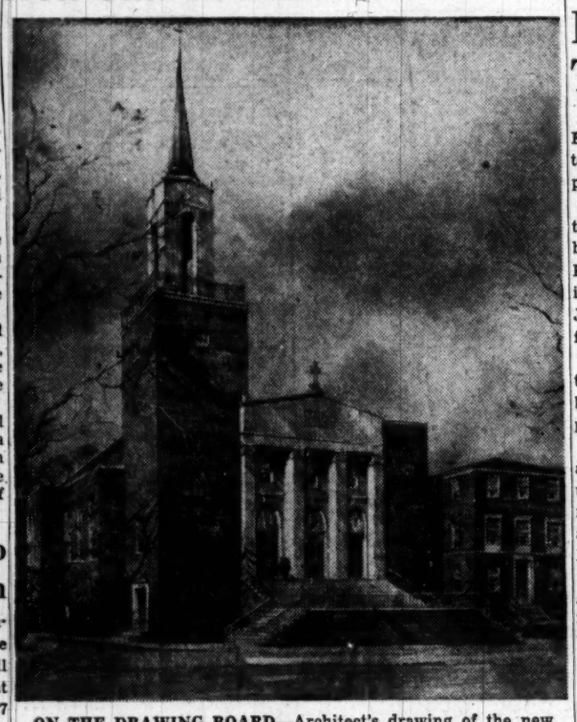
The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will be the celebrant. Following the service, breakfast will be served at the Washington Hotel. Speaker at the breakfast will be the Rev. Arnold M. Lewis, executive director of the Presiding Bishop's Committee on Laymen's Work of the Episcopal Church.

2d Century Service At Calvary Methodist

Worshipers at Calvary Methodist Church, 1459 Columbia rd. nw., will participate in a service conducted in the manner of the second century Christian church at 8 p. m. Sunday.

Music at the service will be ancient Gregorian chants and the congregation will be seated in a circle. The service was prepared by Dr. Robert H. Bogue, Bureau of Standards scientist whose hobby is ancient religious literature.

New Church Planned . . .



ON THE DRAWING BOARD—Architect's drawing of the new St. Thomas the Apostle Church, to be erected soon at 27th st. and Woodley rd. at a cost of $300,000. The church will be constructed over the existing basement of the building, which was completed in 1925 and has been in use for religious services ever since Completion of the St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic Church at 27th st. and Woodley rd. nw., will begin as soon as a building permit is issued, it was announced yesterday.

The church will be built over the existing basement, which was constructed in 1925. Since then, services have been held in the basement of the building.

The basement will be extended forward to carry the vestibule and front steps of the church, which will seat more than 700 persons.

Total cost of the new construction will be about $300,000, the Rev. Joseph Moran, pastor of the church since 1936, said. While construction is under way services will continue in the basement unit.

Designed by Murphy and Locraft, the new church building will be of modified Colonial design in red brick trimmed with Indiana limestone. A new rectory will adjoin the church.

In addition to the nave, the church will have space for three confessionals, two side altars and two special shrines.

The rectory will contain living quarters for the pastor and two assistants, three guest rooms, a parish office, two instruction rooms, a dining room and a kitchen.

Teen-Age Address

Dr. Hugh Smith, principal of Jefferson Junior High School, will speak at 6 p. m. Sunday at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., on "The School and the Teen-Ager."

Priest Presents Metric Prayer To President

Twenty-five years ago the Rev. Francis C. Young wrote a prayer to be used at an American Legion program in Chicago.

Since then the 16-line verse, titled "Our Nation's Prayer", has been seen and approved by four Presidents and has received the indorsement of chaplains of the Jewish, Catholic and Protestant faiths.

Father Young came to Washington this week to present a leather-bound hand-embrossed copy of the prayer to President Truman.

Because of the press of National affairs, however, Mr. Truman was unable to see him and the priest returned to Chicago to wait for another opportunity to meet the President.

He hopes soon to be able to add a personal letter on the prayer from Mr. Truman to the collection of letters he has from Presidents Harding, Coolidge, Hoover and Roosevelt.

The simple prayer has been reprinted in many Middle-Western newspapers, and last week appeared in the Congresional Record. It was used in a Chicago archdiocese civics book along with the salute to the flag.

Father Young, known as the "poet priest" conducted a program of his own poems over a Chicago radio station for many years. Since becoming pastor of St. Juliana Church in Chicago 10 years ago, he has found little time for poetry writing, he said.

This is the prayer:

O Lord, a sacred peace we crave.
For this, with all our leaders brave
We pray that Thy almighty hand
Will guard and guide our wondrous land.
We'll melt with love the swords of men
To make of them the noblest pen.
With this, dear God, our hope and aim,
Let us enshrine Old Glory's fame.
For us, our fathers died by sword
And loved ones spent their lives, O Lord.
Give us unselfish hearts like theirs
To prove our worth as loyal heirs.
Direct our thoughts to holy deeds,
Let love abide among all creeds;
Pray, keep us in Thy watchful care,
We seek, dear God, Thy help in prayer.

Amen.

Services Planned

World Day Of Prayer Set Friday

Members of the Washington Council of Church Women will observe World Day of Prayer with two services on Friday.

At 11 a. m. leaders of the council will conduct an hour-long period of meditation and prayer at National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th and Columbia rd. nw.

The evening observance will be at 7 p. m. at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw. It will be preceded by a dinner at the church at 6:15 p. m.

Theme of this year's observance is "Faith for Our Time," according to Mrs. Carleton M. Long of Brookland Baptist Church, chairman of the local observance.

Sponsored by the United Council of Church Women, the day of prayer is observed in 90 countries on the first Friday in Lent.

Offerings from the interdenominational observance, which last year totaled a quarter of a million dollars, will be used for mission work in the United States and abroad, Mrs. Long said.

Day of Prayer Set for District College Students

Students from greater Washington colleges and universities will attend a universal day of prayer for students service at 3:30 p. m. Sunday at Western Presbyterian Church, 1906 H st. nw.

Speaker will be Dr. Buell Gallagher, special consultant to the United States Commissioner of Education.

Students representing several nations, schools and churches will participate in the service. It is sponsored by the Student Life Committee of the Washington Federation of Churches and student Christian groups from the different campuses.

Thurman Arnold To Speak at Temple

Thurman W. Arnold will be the guest speaker at the annual Brotherhood Sabbath service of the Washington Hebrew Congregation at 8 p. m. Friday at the temple, 822 8th st. nw.

The service is sponsored each year during Brotherhood Week by the Men's Club of the temple. Arnold, now in private law practice, was formerly head of the anti-trust division of the Justice Department.

2 Preaching Missions Set Next Week

Preaching missions have been scheduled for next week at two Washington churches.

Dr. Wyatt Aiken Smart, chaplain of Emory University, will speak at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw., three times this Sunday and next and twice daily Monday through Thursday.

At National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw., the Rev. Louis H. Evans of Hollywood, Calif., will preach twice on Sunday and will conduct services each evening Monday through Friday.

Dr. Smart, who will speak at Mount Vernon Place Church at 9 and 11:15 a. m. and 6:45 p. m. on the two Sundays and at 12:10 and 8 p. m. each day, is associate dean of the Candler School of Theology and professor of biblical theology.

Dr. Evans will preach at National Church at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday and at 8 p. m. each night during the mission.

First Presbyterian Church in Hollywood, of which he is pastor, is the largest Presbyterian church in the Nation. It has a membership of more than 5000 persons and a Sunday school with more than 4000 enrolled.

Dr. Evans' lecture series is being presented under the auspices of the Charles Wood Foundation of the National Church.

He will speak to Young Adults of the Presbytery of Washington at 5 p. m. Sunday at National Church.

Dr. Banks to Hold 5-Day Healing Mission

The Rev. Dr. John Gayner Banks will begin a five-day healing mission at St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette sq., at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Dr. Banks, director of the Fellowship of St. Luke, will also speak at 7:30 p. m. Sunday, and Monday through Thursday at noon and 8 p. m. at the church. In addition to being a priest of the church, Dr. Banks is a graduate psychologist.

Educational Director Resigns Post Here

E. L. Markert, educational director at Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne., has resigned his post to become educational director of the First Baptist Church, Little Rock, Ark.

Pastor of the Little Rock church is the Rev. Dr. K. Owen White, who was minister of Metropolitan Church until January 1.

Group Urges Taxing To Cut Inequalities

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 17 (AP).—A group of 450 Protestant churchmen from nearly all sections of the country voted today that "extensive use of taxation to reduce inequalities" is desirable from a Christian standpoint,

They voted as individuals at one of six town meeting-style discussion panels of a conference on the role of Christians in the economy of the Nation and the world.

The conference, which ends Sunday, is sponsored by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. The panel groups will bring their findings before a full session of the conference Saturday for action.

Laymen — including men from labor, management and agriculture—outnumber clergymen two-to-one at the gathering.

The taxation vote was by an overwhelming show of hands in a discussion panel on "Organized Groups" headed by Victor Reuther, educational director of the CIO United Automobile Workers.

In the discussion, Frank W. Rising of Detroit, general manager of the Automobile Parts Manufacturers Association, declared, "I am not persuaded that inequality is a bad thing or that equality is a good thing in some respects. Inequality of income is not so important as equality of opportunity in America."

The group approved a statement that "it is a responsibility of a Christian society to assure all people, without discrimination, full access to modern medical and surgical care and other health services."

The group adopted, by a vote of 55 to 24, this resolution: "In the field of stabilization of employment, the major responsibility rests with the Government, since the Government is the only agency which represents all of us as individuals, and further, that this responsibility is shared by business, labor, farm and consumer groups."

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

The Right Rev. Robert Fisher Gibson, Bishop Suffragan of Virginia, will make his first official visit to Immanuel Church-on-the-Hill to confirm a class of 27 adults and children at 11 a. m.

After the service there will be a reception for Bishop Gibson, former minister in charge of the church, and new members of the congregation.

Dr. F. Paul Douglass, president of American University, will speak at a service of the Rockville Layman's Association at 8 p. m. Sunday at the Rockville Christian Church.

The Rev. Dr. Henry W. Snyder will conclude his series of pre-Lenten sermons at 11 a. m. when he speaks on "Going on Before" at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw. The service will be broadcast over station WWDC.

The Washington Cathedral and the Washington Fellowship (formerly the Interchurch Fellowship) will jointly sponsor a brotherhood service at the Cathedral at 4 p. m.

Dr. Frank T. Wilson, dean of the Howard University School of Religion, will preach on "Possessed by a Dream." Also participating in the service will be the Rev. Robert M. Williams, pastor of Asbury Methodist Church, and the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington.

Laymen's Sunday will be observed at Wesley Methodist Church, Connecticut ave. and Jocelyn st. nw., at 11 a. m. Senator John C. Stennis (D., Miss.) will speak on "A Free Church in a Free State"

"A Man Must Have a Point of Reference" will be the Rev. Dr. Seth R. Brooks' sermon subject at 11 a. m. at Universalist National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw.

The seventieth anniversary of the Baptist Home, 3248 N st. nw., will be celebrated at a silver tea from 2 to 5 p. m. Wednesday, February 22. It is sponsored by the board of lady managers of the home.

Chevy Chase Baptist Church, 5671 Western ave. nw., will observe Christian Friendliness Day at 11 a. m. when the Rev. Dr. Edward O. Clark preaches on "Jeremiah and the Coming Man."

A patriotic service in memory of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington will be conducted at 7:30 p. m. at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw.

Christian Heritage Held Unknown to Mass Mind

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 17 (AP).—The great majority of people can't even understand "what the lofty concepts of the Christian heritage are all about," a Baptist church official said today.

"The mass mind," Dr. Benjamin P. Browne, director of Christian publications of the Northern Baptist Convention, told the International Council of Religious Education, "has become so thoroughly secularized or so drugged with the stimulants of gadgets and sex as to be incapable of even understanding what the lofty concepts of the Christian heritage are all about."

Plywood Horses—Early Starters

The Washington Post

ENTRIES FROM ITALY—Workmen erect plywood models of bronze horses which some day will be permanently erected on abutments at Memorial Bridge. Four of the statues are to be cast in Italy by the Italian government in gratitude for American postwar aid

The Memorial Bridge landscape took on a startling different appearance yesterday with the placing of two mustard-colored, 19-foot, plywood, equestrian-group models on the pedestals on the District side.

They are "Valor" and "Sacrifice." Bronzes of these and two other groups destined for the Memorial area are now being cast in Italy.

The two-dimension models were put up to solve a question the Fine Arts Commission is pondering: Will the statues interfere with the view of Lincoln Memorial as one comes over the bridge from Virginia?

The commission is due to motor out and see for itself when it meets here Monday.

If the statues do block the view too much, one alternative would be to reduce the height of the pedetals, a National Capital Parks spokesman said.

The status are being cast by the Italian government as a $500,000 gesture of friendship. The casting is being carried out in Rome, Naples, Florence and Milan.

"Valor" and "Sacrifice" are the work of Leo Friedlander of New York City and White Plains, N. Y. The other two groups, which will stand at the entrance to Rock Creek and Potomac pkwy., near Lincoln Memorial, are by James E. Fraser, of Westport, Conn., former member of the Commission of Fine Arts.

Pope Assails Press Curbs By Dictators

Rome, Feb. 17 (NYHT).—Pope Pius today published an apparent denunciation of press censorship in Spain and Argentina as well as Communist countries. He appealed to Catholic newspapermen to have the courage to resist attacks of dictators against a well-informed public opinion.

The Pope sent his message to a convention of Catholic newspapermen here. Fourteen Spaniards and several Argentines are among the 200 taking part. More than 20 other countries, including the U. S., are represented.

Officials of the Spanish Embassy to the Holy See said they could not believe the Pope meant to include Spain, since the latter has 112 Catholic papers and no anti-Catholic ones.

"To drown the voice of the citizen, to reduce it to a forced silence, is, in the eyes of every Christian, an attempt against the natural rights of man," the Pope said. "It is a violation of the world order which God established."

Pope Pius had intended to read the message, but was unable to because of a mild attack of influenza.

Former Missionary In Poland to Speak

The Rev. Gaither P. Warfield, former Methodist missionary in Poland, will speak at 8 p. m. Sunday at Clarendon Methodist Church, 6th and Irving sts., North Arlington, Va.

Dr. Warfield, who first went to Poland in 1924, was in Warsaw when the war began. In the early days of the war he was taken into custody as an enemy alien first by the Poles, later the Russians and finally the Germans when troops of the three countries swept down on the city.

Rep. Elliott Guest

Members of the Men's Bible Class of Francis Asbury Methodist Church, 3146 16th st. nw., will honor their new teacher, Representative Carl Elliott (D., Ala.) at a breakfast at the church at 8 a. m. Sunday.

Rev. Ross Weston Named Arlington Unitarian Minister

The Rev. Ross Allen Weston has been named minister of the Unitarian Church of Arlington, 4451 1st pl., South, Arlington, Va.

Weston

He succeeds the Rev. Gilbert A. Phillips, who resigned early in December because of ill health.

Mr. Weston, minister of the First Congregational Parish, Unitarian, Kennebunk, Me., is expected to begin his work in Arlington about the middle of March. He preached at the church last Sunday.

Educated at Syracuse University and Union Theological Seminary, he served eight years as a Methodist minister before becoming affiliated with the American Unitarian Association in 1946. He is married and has three children.

C. U. to Hold Round-Table Discussions

The Roman Catholic viewpoint on current problems will be discussed at a seven-week series of round-table discussions at Catholic University beginning Sunday.

The series is sponsored by the law school of the university and is open to all.

Preceding each discussion, the Rev. Henry J. Browne, university archivist, will celebrate low mass at 10:45 a. m. in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Discussions will begin at 11:30 a. m. in McMahon Hall.

Subjects to be discussed are: February 19, "The Catholic Layman: His Social Responsibility;" February 26, "The Catholic Approach to the Field of Psychiatry;" March 5, "The Catholic Church and the Labor Problem;" March 12, "Catholic Education, Present and Future;" March 19, "Euthanasia and Modern Morality;" March 26, "The Church and State, an American Achievement;" April 2, "Easter, Victory in Defeat."

MR. JONES, MEET THE MASTER
Sermons and Prayers of Peter Marshall
Late Chaplain, U. S. Senate

As a special Lenten feature, The Washington Post presents this collection of the richest passages from Peter Marshall's most vigorous sermons. His sermons attracted thousands to his church at 13th Street and New York Avenue. And his prayers when he was Chaplain of the Senate won him a national reputation.

Famous Gustave Dore paintings depicting the life of Christ will illustrate the series.

Peanuts In the Bag For Seal Fans

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17 (AP).—Paul I. Fagan, completely routed in his battle with the lowly peanut, came up smiling today with an offer to make amends to the goober.

Fagan, president of the San Francisco seals, wanted to ban peanuts from his baseball stadium. But protests from the fans sent him scurrying in retreat yesterday.

Today, Fagan decided even he could stomach the little brown nut.

He announced that come opening day, April 4, he's going to hand out a free bag of peanuts to each customer.

He figured that'll amount to 18,000 bags—or about 900,000 individual peanuts.

More down to earth, it'll mean at least 20 million peanut shell fragments for the janitors to clean up. The $20,000 Fagan figured it cost him a season to clean up peanut leavings was what started the battle in the first place.

His opening day handout will cost him about $3000, the Seal prexy figures.

"I'm going to do my share toward helping dirty up the place," the new Fagan declared. "Usually I break a peanut shell into only three or four pieces, but I going to crumple them into hundreds of tiny bits from now on and let the janitors do all the worrying."

But the statement was part wishful thinking. Fagan already had word that the janitors want more money. Dick Libes, their union spokesman, said his sweepers want $1.50 an hour this season—15 cents more than they got last year.

If the raise isn't forthcoming, say the janitors, the peanuts shells will just pile up and pile up.

Louis-Charles Bout All Set, Ezzard Says

Pittsburgh, Feb. 17 (AP).—Ezzard Charles said tonight a full-fledged heavyweight title bout between him and Joe Louis only awaits an announcement of the time and place by the Detroit former titleholder.

The National Boxing Association king made his declaration before shuffling off to Buffalo, N. Y., for his third title defense against Freddie Beshore on February 28.

But the Cincinnati Negro appeared more interested in "the old man" as he calls Louis than Beshore. Of Louis he said:

"Sure he's going to fight me," Charles said as he cut off his bandages. "He's just waiting until the time is ripe."

The narrow-waisted Negro had a quick answer when asked if Louis might be afraid he'd lose to him. Snapped Charles:

"No, the old man's not afraid of me or anybody else. But I'm not scared of him either. I won't say how I'd do against Louis but I can assure you I'd do my best."

Beshore, a 26-year-old unknown from Harrisburg, Pa., caused little concern to the broad-shouldered stylist.

"I don't know anything about this fellow," Charles said. "So I won't make a prediction except that I don't expect to lose."

Terp Frosh Boxers Win

In a nine-bout card, featured by three technical knockouts, the University of Maryland freshmen boxing team won a 6½-2½ decision over the University of Virginia yearlings at College Park last night.

The victory gives the Terp yearlings a 2-0 record. It was the first meet for Virginia.

125 POUNDS—Letzer (Maryland) decisioned Gurner.

130 POUNDS—Aitcheson (Maryland) won by tko over Tuck, 1:20 of the first round.

135 POUNDS—Maryland won by forfeit.

145 POUNDS—Theofield (Maryland) and Whitely drew.

150 POUNDS—McKinzie (Maryland) decisioned Platt.

155 POUNDS—Rosenberry (Virginia) won by tko over Harryman in 1:00 of the second round.

165 POUNDS—Dye (Maryland) won by tko over Fields in 1:50 of the second round.

175 POUNDS—Ortell (Maryland) decisioned Waidner.

UNLIMITED—Hicks (Virginia) decisioned Quinstedt.

Alexander's 131 Leads; Heafner and Burke Tied

By Claude Ramsey

Hallingen, Tex., Feb. 17 (U.P.)—Skip Alexander, a personable North Carolinian, came out of a two-year golfing slump today to take the midway lead in the Rio Grande Valley Open with a 131 score for 36 holes; 11 under par.

Alexander, who hasn't won a penny this year and who last won a tournament in 1948, hit the comeback trail at the loose but windswept municipal course. He carded a 65 yesterday and a 34-32—66 today on the par 35-36—71 course.

Wednesday in a practice round he equalled the link record of 62.

He was two strokes ahead of Jack Burke, jr., rising star from White Plains, N. Y., Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., who had 133 apiece.

Haas Has 30 Going Out

The 18-hole leader, George Fazio, of Conshohocken, Pa., was at 134 along with Dave Douglas, Newark, Del., Pete Cooper, Ponte Verda, Fla., and Fred Haas, jr., New Orleans, La.

Haas had an impressive 30 for the first nine and if he hadn't missed a 2-foot putt would have carded a 29. But, on the way back, he went one over par 37 for a 67, the same as yesterday.

It wasn't all easy for Alexander as he bogeyed No. 5 when he overshot the green and had to three-putt to get in the cup. On No. 4 he missed an 18-inch putt.

But he birdied twice on the way out and did it again on No. 12. On the fourteenth hole he sank a 25-footer for a birdie and chipped a stroke off at Nos. 15 and 16.

Alexander, who hasn't had much luck since he won the National Capital Open in Washington in 1948, believed he was heading for the chips again.

"For the first time in a long time, I can hit the ball and know where it is going," he said.

Catholic U. Boxers Lose

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Syracuse University's Eastern championship boxing team came up from behind to whip Catholic University of Washington, 5-3, tonight at the State Fair Coliseum.

Tied 3-all, going into the light-heavyweight bout, Syracuse turned on the steam. A substitute 175-pounder, George Kartalian, won handily over Cliff Sisler and then Marty Crandell, collegiate heavyweight champion, came from behind to defeat Heavyweight Charley York by a single point in the final round to win the bout and meet for Syracuse.

Two Eastern intercollegiate champions, Tom Cronin of Catholic, and Jim Rollier of Syracuse, were held to draws. Jim Huba was given a draw with Cronin. Bill Maher dropped Rollier in the second but was held even after that.

Catholic's Jack Redmond scored a quick TKO over Syracuse's Charley Pechette in the 130-pound bout.

SUMMARIES

Syracuse, 5; Catholic University, 3.

126-pound class—Jim Huba (S) drew with Tom Cronin (C).

135-pound class—Tim Curley (S) decisioned Joe Incarnato (C).

145-pound class—Ben Dolphin (S) knocked out Joe Jennings (C) in 34 seconds, third round.

Hoyas Not Invited to Run In Maryland Meet Tonight

Terps Insist G. U. Send Its Varsity

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The University of Maryland's third annual invitational track meet takes place tonight at College Park with Georgetown absent from the entry list for the first time.

We weren't invited. I guess Maryland just wants to race the soft touches," said Hoya Coach Frank Sevigne.

Maryland Coach Jim Kehoe replied, "Georgetown wasn't invited because Sevigne told me a few weeks ago that some of his boys were going to the National A. A. U. track championships in New York on the night of our meet.

Split Squad Brings Trouble

Sevigne's explanation was, "we wanted to send some of our men to New York and some to the Maryland meet. Georgetown has been doing that for the past two years."

"That's just the trouble," said Kehoe. "During the past two years, Georgetown sent its best men to New York and its junior varsity and second stringers here.

"We're crowded in our little armory," continued the Maryland coach. "We can accommodate only about 200 contestants and 200 spectators.

"So we concentrate on Southern Conference schools, Navy, our State rival, and Catholic U., one of our area friends. We'd like to have Georgetown if it would send its top-flight men."

Georgetown finished next to last in both previous Maryland meets, nosing out only Catholic University both times. The Hoyas scored two points in 1948 and one in 1949.

Kehoe said he was sorry if Georgetown feels slighted. "Rather than have such complications arise, we'll call off this meet in the future—until we get our big field house and we can invite everybody."

Meet Starts at 7 P. M.

The Hoyas and Terps were unable to get together on dual indoor or cross country meets this year. But they'll clash outdoors this spring.

Tonight's Maryland meet begins at 7 o'clock. The Terps will fefend their title against nine schools, Navy, C. U., Virginia Military Institute, Wake Forest, North Carolina, Duke, N. C. State, Virginia Tech and William and Mary.

North Carolina is the chief contender with its Olympic Star Bill Albans a threat to win both hurdles events and the high and broad jumps.

Eleven varsity and three freshman events are on the agenda. Bobby Jones, former national scholastic mile and half-mile champ from George Washington High of Alexandria, will represent N. C. State in the ¾-mile freshman race.

Ballston Wins, 29-16

The Ballston Indians' 125-pound basketball team defeated the North Arlington County Boys' Club, 29-16, in an Arlington County Recreation League game last night at Swanson Junior High School.

Georgetown Competes in A. A. U. Games

New York, Feb. 17.—Georgetown University will represent area colleges in the National A. A. U. track and field championships tomorrow at Madison Square Garden.

The Hoyas are sending up their varsity and freshman 2-mile relay teams, their varsity sprint medley quartet, and hurler Billy Mitchell and sprinter Jim Fielding.

Their varsity 2-mile team of Pat O'Brien, Dave Boland, Dave Smith and Joe Deady are conceded a good chance of setting a new meet mark.

With clockings of 7:41.1 and 7:42 which broke records at the Boston A. A. and New York A. C. meets, the Hoyas are within two seconds of the A. A. U. meet mark of 7:39.8, set by Seton Hall in 1942.

Fielding is returning to the boards after three weeks of recuperation from an injured leg tendon. He won the 60-yard runs at the Evening Star Games and the Boston Knights of Columbus affair.

Armstrong, Dunbar, Cardozo and Phelps are in the high school competition which takes place in the afternoon. Cardozo's 800-yard team of Joe Walker, Earl Storm, Aloysius Jones and George Carter, will be closely watched.

That quartet set the meet record of 1:44.5 last year. They'll defend it against 40 schools which have entered teams in that event alone.

In the open events, which take place at night, the 3-mile race and the shot put will attract a good deal of interest.

In the marathon race, Fred Wilt, Curtis Stone and Horace Ashenfelter will be chief contestants. Jim Fuchs, who has been breaking shot records across the Nation, will try to surpass 55 feet, 8¾ inches, the meet mark held by the late Al Blozis of Georgetown.

Caps Take on Groza and Co., Western Division Leaders

Alex Groza and three other former Kentucky All-Americans invade Uline Arena tonight for a National Basketball Association engagement with the Caps at 8:30.

Groza, the association's second leading scorer, will be accompanied by Wallace "Wah Wah" Jones, Ralph Beard and Cliff Barker, all of whom made Kentucky the best college team in the Nation for three years.

They organized the Indianapolis team by themselves, put up the cash, and are now beginning to rake in the profits.

Groza, 6-foot, 7-inch center, is right behind George Mikan in the race for N.B.A. scoring honors. Alex has an average of 23.5 points per game.

Don Otten, 7-foot giant acquired from Tri-City recently, will draw the guarding assignment on Groza, but even if he stops Alex, the Caps will still have quite a bit to contend with.

Jones and Beard are capable of protecting their business interests when their ace-in-the-hole has an off night. Beard has a 13.9 average and Jones a 12.3 mark that has put Indianapolis at the top of the Western Division with a record of 29 victories and 20 defeats.

The Caps are in third place in the Eastern Division with a 24-28 mark.

Tonight's battle will be the finale between the two teams, the Olympians having beaten off the Caps, 88-81 at Indianapolis earlier.

Freddie Scolari, who hit for 24 points against Tri-City Wednesday night, will guard Beard and Bones McKinney will try to stop Jones.

In a preliminary at 7:15, Safford-Chandler opposes the Henderson Hall Marines.

Final Interhigh Triple-Header Finds Standings in Big Mix-Up

The final Interhigh triple-header of the season is set for 1 o'clock this afternoon at Uline Arena.

Today's games pit McKinley Tech against Roosevelt in the opener, while Anacostia meets Coolidge in the second game; Western vs. Wilson game winds up the afternoon's activities.

Two teams which have completed their seasons, Central with a 5-1 record and Eastern with a 4-2 slate, are assured of at least a tie for a playoff berth but McKinley Tech, Coolidge, Western, Chamberlain and Anacostia, all have a chance to gain a playoff spot.

The scrambled standings were brought about when Wilson had two of its players declared ineligible Thursday and forfeited the three games it had won in the series.

Tech suffered a blow to its chances when its leading scorer, Tony Sgro, suffered a shoulder injury in the Alumni game Wednesday night. Sgro at best will see only limited service today and may not be able to play at all.

Sonny Boy Starts Fast, But Champ Is Too Good

By Jack Hand
Post Reporter

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Ike Williams chopped down Sonny Boy West tonight like a lightweight champ should handle a 20-year-old "kid," winning by a knockout in 43 seconds of the eighth round of a nontitle bout at Madison Square Garden.

Referee Petey Scalzo stopped the bout without bothering to count after Williams flattened West with a jarring right hand.

Williams, heavy at 141, dropped the 138-pound Washington, D. C., Negro for a 5-count late in the seventh. Sonny Boy was in bad shape at the bell.

Pressed into action as a 48-hour sub for ailing Bernard Docusen, ill with the flu, West was in over his head with the stiff-punching champ from Trenton, N. J. He simply didn't have the equipment or experience to deal with Ike.

West Starts Fast, But——

The crowd didn't think enough of West's chances to make a price on the underdog. Whatever betting action there was centered on his chances of going the route.

A bobbing dancer with a flicking jab, West did himself proud in the first round and probably would have won the second if Scalzo hadn't penalized him for a low blow.

After that it was all Williams, always stalking his man. It was just a question of time as he pentrated West's unorthodox style.

Ike's left hook seemed to almost unhinge West's head in the third. Still in the fifth he dared to stand toe-to-toe with the champ and swap right hands. That was his second most important mistake. The first was signing for this match before he was ready.

8170 See Bout

Always with the underdog, the crowd of 8170 that paid $26,107 gave a few "Come on, Sonny Boys" from the gallery in the fifth. They didn't have a chance again.

A left hook staggered Sonny Boy in the seventh and a right dropped him for five. Early in the eighth the end came.

Baby-faced Jimmy Rooney, sensational young featherweight from Bridgeport, Conn., knocked out George La Falgio of New York's Bronx tonight in 1:16 of the first round. Rooney weighed 127¾, La Falgio, 132.

With his head near the ring apron under the ropes, La Falgio didn't stir until Referee Petey Scalzo reached the count of eight. He tried to make it but was just starting to get up when Petey tolled 10.

Rochester Beats Boston

Boston, Feb. 17 (AP).—After trailing for nearly three full periods, the Rochester Royals opened up the throttle in the final session to defeat the Boston Celtics 81-73 tonight in a National Basketball Association game efore 2386 fans at Boston Arena.

Bob Davies led the visitors to victory as he tossed in 11 of his 20 points in the first five minutes of the final period.

Track Star Studies So Hard He Graduates Out of Competition

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Capt. John Zegger of Columbia's track team will not be able to compete in next Wednesday's triangular meet here with Princeton and Penn, it was announced today.

Know why? He studied too hard the past semester.

A Columbia prof, making a routine check, discovered that John had passed in so many subjects that he technically became a graduate student and no longer is eligible for varsity competition.

It came as a surprise to John and as a blow to his teammates. He won the 60-yard dash in the past two meets against the Tigers and Quakers.

GW High Whips W-L, Wins Group 1 Title

George Washington High of Alexandria won the Northern Virginia Group I championship last night by nosing out Washington-Lee High of Arlington, 39-36, on the loser's court.

Erwin Jones, working in the pivot post for the Presidents, was the game's high scorer with 19 points as George Washington finished its Northern Virginia schedule with a 5-0 record to W-L's 5-2 slate.

Both teams used only six men as G.W. dumped the Little Generals for the second time this year. The Presidents turned the trick last time, 42-33.

The George Washington victory snapped a nine-game winning streak for Washington-Lee and marked the first time in nine starts on their home court that the Little Generals have been beaten.

The Little Generals pulled up to a 24-24 tie at the end of the third period after trailing until that time but Jones and John Oliver tossed in two quick field goals to put G.W. ahead to stay. Smiley Moore's ball-handling for George Washington was outstanding throughout the game.

High scorers for W-L were George Russell and Mouse Warden, both with nine points.

Fordham, Beaten 10 Times; Upsets St. John's, 70-64

New York, Feb. 17 (AP).—Fordham University, beaten 10 times this season, scored a major basketball upset tonight as it tumbled St. John's University of Brooklyn, 70-64, in an overtime contest. St. John's which dropped its third game in 23 starts, was ranked fourth in this week's Associated Press poll.

Holy Cross Wins 22d in Overtime

Providence, R. I., Feb. 17 (AP).—Only after their toughest fight of the season, their second with the same foe, the unbeaten Holy Cross Crusaders tonight won their 22nd consecutive basketball victory by downing Rhode Island State, 70-62.

Only eight days ago the Crusaders, ranked first nationally among major college teams, were forced to their utmost to beat the Rams, 74-69.

American U. Host Tonight To Loyola

Loyola U. of Baltimore which has dropped only four games in three years of Mason-Dixon Conference play invades American University at 8:45 o'clock tonight.

Loyola is out to extend its ten-game undefeated string in conference play against the team that has administered three of the four lickings the Greyhounds have suffered in that span.

The Greyhounds, topping the conference standings with a 10-0 record, beat American, 50-44, in their first meeting this year after the Eagles had led for the first 35 minutes.

American has an 8-1 conference record and a win tonight is necessary if the Eagles are to stay ahead of Bridgewater, 10-3, in the loop standings, and thus set up a third meeting between the Greyhounds and Eagles in the conference championships.

The Maryland Terps entertain Davidson in another southern conference battle at College Park. Maryland and Davidson, with identical 3-10 conference records are both out of contention for a playoff spot.

Lynchburg at Catholic

Lynchburg plays at Catholic University in another Mason-Dixon scrap, put both are out of contention for a playoff berth.

Brown goes to the Naval Academy for an afternoon game with Navy. The Middies have a 12-5 record.

The Colonials dumped Duke, 62-55, here and are hoping to repeat the performance tonight on the Blue Devils' court.

Terps Host to Davidson

The Colonials will again count heavily on big Bud Goglin and Ace Adler under the backboards and Art Cerra outside.

Both teams are assured of playoff berths but are still battling for preferred ranks.

Georgetown's Hoyas, still smarting from their loss to George Washington in the closing six seconds, play at Gettysburg College. The Hoyas have a 10-7 slate.

Kansas Star Sets Scoring Mark With 39

Your Host Favorite in $100,000 'Anita Derby

11 Others Named for Rich Event

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 17 (AP).—Your Host and 11 other horses were named today for tomorrow's thirteenth Santa Anita Derby. For the 11 others, it looks like an unlucky affair.

Those nominated for the rich classic are, in addition to Your Host, Sun State, Convidado, Great Circle, Deep Blue, Hawley, Alderman, Feudal, Sturdy One, Top Production, Pension Plan, and a single filly, Fleet Rings.

All will carry 118 pounds over a mile and one-eighth. Sun State and Sturdy One are coupled as an entry of Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Phelps; Fleet Rings and Pension Plan as a Mrs. Connie M. Ring entry.

Sunny skies and a fast track are in prospect.

If there must be an upset in the $100,000 race, it will be a big one; probably the most surprising in the 13 runnings of the derby.

Your Host, the fleet chestnut Californiabred owned by film executive William Goetz, long since has been installed as a prohibitive favorite.

Won Two Preps . . .

The colt, an offspring of Alibhai, by prearranged strategy has raced in only two races at Santa Anita's current meeting, won them both in decisive manner, and now heads into the third and biggest race on his program.

The stable frankly believes he will not only win the Santa Anita 3-year-old fixture but may prove a winner in the Kentucky Derby and other classics for the sophomore division in the 1950 turf campaign.

The last time a California-bred colt won the Kentucky Derby was when Morvich came through in 1922, but many astute horsemen think Your Host is a definite threat this year.

Keenest rival, but still given only an outside chance against Your Host, is Great Circle, racing for the Yolo Stable of John T. De Blois Wack of Santa Barbara. Great Circle has yet to win a stakes—his earnings are a paltry $25,900 compared to Your Host's $133,970—but he's been groomed for the Santa Anita Derby distance. He won three races as a 2-year-old and might develop into a threat.

Austrian Mother Wins Ski Title

By Harold Claassen

Aspen, Colo., Feb. 17 (AP).—Trude Beiser-Jochum of Austria, who became a mother four months ago, won the women's world downhill ski title today in a race that sent Margaret Owen of Canada to the hospital with a sprained right ankle and a neck injury.

The 22-year-old Canadian government employe, who fell six times in Wednesday's race, spilled at the start of today's mile and three-quarter slide down the icy side of Mount Aspen at a spot known as the "Point of No Return."

She was brought down the 1830 feet from the starting line on a stretcher, cradled on a toboggan.

Mrs. Jochum's victory was registered by zooming almost 50 miles an hour. She was clocked in 2:06.6, edging out teammate Erika Mahringer by nine-tenths of a second.

Tax Cut on Liquors, Tobacco Urged at House Group Hearing

Congressional tax-drafters got pleas yesterday for cheaper drinks, smokes and chews, by a slash in the excises on whisky, beer, wine, cigarettes, cigars, and plug and twist.

President Truman's proposal for excise cuts does not include these items.

The alcoholic beverages industry recommended to the House Ways and Means committee a cut in the liquor excise, from $9 a proof gallon to $6—which would mean that drinkers would pay about $500,000,000 less in taxes a year.

Thomas F. McCarthy, chairman of the industry's tax council, testified that present high taxes are shifting consumption "from tax-paid, legally-produced distiller spirits to moonshined tax-avoiding distilled spirits"—thus denying the government millions in taxes.

Spokesmen for the beer industry asked that the excise be cut from $8 a barrel to $7, and winemen asked reductions of the levies in the varid categories of their products.

One witness suggested that the Federal Government close a 75-million-dollar tax "loophole" by taxing State-operated liquor businesses.

F. M. Parkinson, speaking for the tobacco industry, appealed for relief of cigarettes and other tobacco products "from the monstrous, unconscionable and discriminatory tax yoke."

"In our American way of life," he said, "cigarettes are no longer considered a luxury item."

Speaking for "Plug and Twist," Taylor Brothers, Inc. of Winston Salem, N. C., said these chewing and smoking tobaccos are used by "overall-wearing" Americans who have always required a big piece of tobacco at a low price.

Arch B. Taylor, president, told the committee the industry needs an easement on excesses to offset consumer resistance to mounting costs.

Gov. Frank Carlson of Kansas asked the committee, on behalf of the Council of State Governments, to repeal the 20 percent excise tax on movie theater tickets, and leave this tax source to local governments.

Debate With Taft Proposed

"Add to these the President's public embrace of chronic deficit spending, and you have a non-stop, highspeed highway to socialism, with or without an insulted intelligence."

Representative Woodruff (R., Mich.), proposed that President Truman and Senator Taft (R., Ohio), debate the issues of 1950 from a platform in Taft's home State. He was prompted to make the suggestion by Mr. Truman's announcement that he would campaign in Ohio this fall.

Said Woodruff:

"I would like to hear, and the people of the Nation would like to hear Senator Taft and Mr. Truman debate publicly on the trend to socialism, the mounting costs of Federal Government, the entire lack of economy in government, and the ever increasing tax burden on the people. I feel sure that Senator Taft would be delighted to meet the President on the hustings."

Brown Found Truman 'Amusing'

Representative Brown (R., Ohio), had this to say about President Truman's speech:

"I was amused by Mr. Truman calling the Republican Party a cuttlefish squirting out black ink to confuse national issues. I prefer the black ink of a Republican cuttlefish to his red herring and the red ink in which it writes its deficits."

Representative Curtis (R., Neb.), said Mr. Truman once more "has proved he is a prisoner of the irresponsible, left-wing spendthrift groups—predominnantly C.I.O.—in our country."

Senator Lucas of Illinois, Democratic leader of the Senate, said Mr. Truman's speech was an excellent answer to the Republicans' "phony slogan, 'Liberty Against Socialism.'"

"It seemed to me," Lucas added, "the President gave that phrase a complete knockout. I predict that before long they will be talking about some other slogan."

George Asks Excises' End

Senate Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.) yesterday came out for outright repeal of all wartime excise taxes, excepting only levies on alcohol, gasoline and tobacco.

He estimated it would cost the Government up to 2.4 billion dollars, but predicted half of that amount would be recaptured by the Treasury as the indirect result of the incentive given business.

The remaining revenue loss, George said, could be made up by cutting Government spending and going "all out" in plugging tax loopholes.

Opposing the Administration's proposal to make "selective" cuts of around 60 million dollars in such wartime levies as urgently need relief, the Georgian said that would "simply postpone a job we ought to do now."

The man who generally sets Senate tax policies said he agrees substantially with the position taken Wednesday before the House Ways and Means Committee by Leon Henderson, former OPA administrator, who originally recommended some of the wartime boosts.

"The 1941, 1942 and 1943 increases were imposed chiefly to check consumer purchases of war-scarce commodities and services," he said. "That need passed after the war, but the excises stayed on. Nearly all of them are having a regressive effect upon business.

"You can't handle that sort of thing 'selectively.' We should be wise enough and bold enough to make these readjustments now."

Prefers to Use House Bill

George said his Senate Finance Committee may temporarily lay aside hearings on the Social Security bill when the House completes initial tax action, in order to clear Finance Committee tax proposals quickly to the Senate floor.

Both George and Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) have "pledged" the Senate it will have a chance to vote on excise tax cuts before Congress adjourns. A bill now on the Senate calendar would cut the wartime excises nearly 700 million dollars, but George said he prefers to use the House tax bill now under way as a vehicle.

He told newsmen he is ready to "go the limit" in plugging tax loopholes to help offset the excise slash, but opposed increasing levies on estates, gifts and big corporations "at this time."

Sliding Scale of "Credits"

George said he hoped his committee could do something to level off the high 53 percent "notch" or transition rate on corporations earning between $25,000 and $50,000. In lieu of the Administration's formula for relieving taxes in this corporation bracket, he suggested a sliding scale of "tax credits" to help this group of companies over the "notch" and encourage them to expand.

The Georgia Senator said his Finance Committee will close present hearings on the House-passed Social Security expansion bill and then spend about two weeks preparing a Senate version of the measure.

Bill Bennings Says

Dear Folks: A new high in intra-race track cordial relations will be reached on February 22 when Sunshine Park at Tampa will celebrate a "Gulfstream Park Day." The sport would be a lot better off if the tracks exchanged courtesies more often instead of being at each other's throats. The results of the Santa Anita Derby will be eagerly awaited by those with interest in the Kentucky Derby, mainly because of the appearance of Your Host on the coast. California appears sold on the 3-year-old as a Blue Grass classic prospect. We shall see what we shall see. Big Dial, owned by George Jacobson of Washington and trained by Ernie Hart also of Washington, is at Gulfstream Park drilling for the big stakes at that point. Fourteen more days to Charles Town.—Bill

Little Hoyas Routed by St. John's

By Jules Loh

St. John's maintained a firm grasp on first place in the Catholic High School Basketball League last night, routing last-place Georgetown Prep, 73-31, in the Catholic University gym.

In the second game, St. Anthony's nosed out De Matha, 45-42. The win gave Gonzaga, idle last night, the second place position with a 3-2 record, and dropped De Matha to third with a 3-3 record.

St. John's displayed a powerful man-to-man defense that held the little Hoyas to six field goals during the entire first half, and an equally capable offense which rolled up a 44-21 margain at the intermission.

The win gave St. John's a 6-0 record in league competition and a 20-3 count for the season.

Little Bobby McLindon, St. John's star guard, registered 16 points for the game's high scorer, with teammate Bob Reese netting 14 for second place.

Phone Workers Ask 15-Cent Pay Boost

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

An offer of a 15-cent-an-hour average wage increase could head off the Nation-wide telephone strike set for next Friday, the CIO Communications Workers of America said yesterday.

This was the first specific demand the union has made in the deadlocked negotiations.

For the past few weeks bargaining has lagged with the company arguing that it had no specific proposals before it and the union refusing to make any until, it said, the company "indicated a willingness to bargain."

Yesterday, CWA President Joseph A. Beirne declared here:

"We want to get bargaining off dead center and eliminate any possible excuse for further company stalling in negotiations. So we've made a package demand of an average of 15 cents an hour for all money items.

"If company negotiations will get down to business, we may yet be able to reach mutually satisfactory agreements and avert the strike set for next Friday. If they don't there'll be a strike for sure."

A spokesman for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., C. H. Johnson, vice president and general manager criticized the timing of the offer.

He said this was the first time since bargaining began locally on February 1 that the union divisions have disclosed "the magnitude of their demands."

"The unions did not further clarify their demand at today's meetings. In the few days remaining before the strike deadline, the company representatives must now endeavor to have the unions clarify and justify their demand.

"This maneuver of the unions in waiting till the final hours to make a specific demand is an obvious attempt to bring about the substitution of Government intervention for real collective bargaining," Johnson said.

How the 15-cent "package" would be divided up is a matter for negotiation between the 25 CWA divisions around the country and the Bell system, a union spokesman said. In some areas, union members might want the increase applied entirely to basic wages, in other areas, shortening up of wage progression schedules or reclassification of jobs and towns for wage purposes might be insisted on, he said.

In Washington, Mrs. E. Jane Palmer, president of Division 50, which includes 2500 operators and clerical workers, said negotiators will concentrate on a shorter progression schedule and an increased basic wage, reclassifications being of lesser importance here.

At present, a telephone operator moves up from a starting wage of $36 a week to $52 at the end of eight years, she said. The step-ups are $1 a week and are granted three months apart at first, at 6, 9 and 12 month intervals.

Mrs. Palmer said union negotiators will meet with the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. negotiators Monday at 2 p. m.

The second Washington union contingent, Division 36, which includes 3500 plant workers, commercial and accounting clerical workers, will drive for a 5-cent increase in basic wages and reduction of present progression schedules to five years. The latter will cost the company about 10 cents an hour, according to Glenn E. Watts, division president.

At present central office repairmen, cable splicers, PBX installer-repairmen and clerks in commercial and accounting departments start at $37 a week and move up to $86 at the end of eight years. Step-ups are at the rate of $2, $3 and $4 raises and come at 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 8, 9 and 11 month intervals, Watts said.

Watts said his division has not yet scheduled a bargaining session with the company for next week.

Next Friday's scheduled strike involves 100,000 workers, including 350 equipment installers, salesmen and warehousemen in Washington. In addition, 150,000 other members of CWA would refuse to cross picket lines, CWA said. The latter group would be technically eligible to join the walkout on March 1 under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Yesterday the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. denied a union charge that dial exchanges would put 100,000 operators out of work in three years. The company noted that it had only 93,0000 operators in 1939 when 55 percent of its telephones were dial-operated, while it now employs 185,000 with 70 percent of the exchanges dial controlled.

Plane Survivor's Return . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

MOTHER'S WELCOME—Col. Daniel V. Mcdonald of Arlington, Va., survivor of the B-36 plane crash in Canada, is reunited with his mother, Mrs. Ruth W. Macdonald of Portland, Ore., at McChord Air Force Base in Washington State. She visited him in a hospital there yesterday. Last night the colonel was scheduled to land at Washington National Airport with his wife for a reunion

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 17 (U.P.)—A cry for help and gun shots today buoyed hopes that the remaining five members of a 17-man crew of a B-36 superbomber would be found alive on lonely Princess Royal Island off the gale-swept British Columbia coast.

Eight search teams, including members of the Vancouver, B. C., Alpine Club, were scattered through the desolate island in stormy Queen Charlotte Sound, searching for the five missing members of the B-36 crew which bailed out of its stricken plane Monday night on a flight from Alaska to Texas.

Twelve of the crew have been rescued. Lieut. Col. Daniel V. MacDonald, Arlington, Va., remained at McCord Field Hospital.

Four parachutes sighted dangling from trees, a man's cry for help and a volley of gun shots kept hopes high that the five remaining crew members would be found to have survived exposure and hunger.

Arlington May Erase Zone Clause

Action by the Arlington County Board to eliminate a clause in its proposed master plan which would permit semi-detached homes in the current R-5 zone area appeared likely last night. The R-5 zone includes only single-family and duplex homes.

About 80 persons were present last night at a final public hearing on the plan held in the Thomas Jefferson School. The plan is scheduled for adoption March 14 by the board.

Following objections to the semi-detached zoning by several residents in the Courtland and Virginia Highlands areas, Board Chairman Daniel Dugan indicated he favors cutting out semi-detached homes in the R-5 area.

Dugan said the changes could be "worked out." Other board members voiced no dissent.

Dugan denied that the board has "swapped" commercial zoning on certain property owned by builder Frank Lyon for a right-of-way on the proposed Spout Run connection of Lee Highway and North Washington Memorial Parkway.

The charge was made by J. P. Wagstaff of 1915 North Danville st., who referred to an area on Lee Highway near Kirkwood dr., and said that "all the zoning Mr. Lyon asked for has been granted. That's going to be awfully hard to explain."

Dugan, said the area was zoned "on the advice of our planners."

U. S. Friendly, Rayburn Tells Jap Visitors

House Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) told members of the Japanese Diet yesterday that America looks upon the people of Japan as "friends and allies if democracy ever is attacked again."

Rayburn spoke in his office to members of a Japanese group studying democratic principles in the United States. A number of the visitors are members of the Japanese Diet (Parliament).

Rayburn's remarks brought this reply from Takeshi Yamasaki, former speaker of the Japanese House of Representatives and leader of the delegation:

"You have said you recognize us not as enemy nations but as friends from across the Pacific. This is an encouraging word."

Yamasaki said his delegation considers the visit to Washington as the most important part of their trip to this country.

"We are going to see in this building (U. S. Capitol) real democracy in action," he said.

He added that Japanese leaders "want not only to democratize our country but to play a part in the world family of nations."

Representative Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.), former Speaker of the House, helped welcome the Japanese. "We hope you will join with us in working for a better world," Martin said.

Representative John W. McCormack (Mass.), House Democratic leader, told the group that Government "revolves around its public officials." He expressed hope the Diet members will continue to work for peace.

Easter Parade On Conn. Ave. To Be Revived

The Connecticut Avenue Businessmen's Association yesterday decided to string along with the contractor's promise the Dupont Circle underpass will be completed by April 7.

Its board of directors met yesterday and voted to go ahead with plans for an Easter parade on Easter Sunday, April 9.

The parade was originated by the association in 1948 but was not held last year because of construction work on the underpass.

Horace J. Meyers, president of the association, said he had been assured by J. N. Robertson, District Director of Highways, that John McShain, Inc., contractors on the Dupont Circle project, can finish the job by April 7 if the weather is favorable.

McShain has added six men to the project and a crane has been added to the equipment to do excavation work north of Dupont Circle.

Earlier, Meyers had sent telegrams to Robertson, Commissioner John Russell Young, Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), chairman of the Senate District Committee, and Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), chairman of the House District Committee, that read:

"It is imperative to our very lives that we respectfully request that you use your high office to insist upon the contractor's maximum use of manpower and machinery for completion of the Dupont Circle underpass by April 1. The present lag is unnecessary and further delay will mean ruin to most merchants."

Dismissals Predicted By Agencies If Forced To Absorb Pay Raises

The Securities and Exchange Commission would have to fire 125 employes before June 30 if it's forced to absorb the cost of last year's pay raise bill. The agency has 720 employes here; 322 in the field service. Its 1951 budget proposes 84 new jobs . . . Accumulated annual leave of SEC employes has a money value of $1,023,485. The agency would have to shut down most of its offices if it's forced to wipe out all accumulated leave and absorb the pay raise cost by June 30.

The Tariff Commission is in an equally bad way. It has only 225 employes and 40 of them would have to be fired to soak up the pay raise cost. Its employes have 8217 days of annual leave piled up which represents a cost of $173,000. The commission, incidentally, has recommended GS-16 jobs ($11,200 to $12,000) for the five members of its planning and review committee. It's asking Congress for 15 new jobs.

Chairman J. Monroe Johnson says his Interstate Commerce Commission "is seriously undermanned." ICC employment, he said, is 2139, or about 660 under what he believes it should be. The agency has more than 100 vacancies and no money to hire people to fill them. ICC employes have accumulated an average of 41 days of annual leave. Twenty-seven percent of the 794 employes who are paid more than $5000 have 90 or more days of accrued leave.

ICC Officials have told the House Appropriations Committee that they can't absorb the cost of the pay raise bill unless they furlough or fire employes. In fact, there was a hint that some few employes may have to be furloughed anyway. The ICC 1951 budget proposes no personnel increase.

General Accounting Office is seeking funds for 8970 employes during the 1951 fiscal year. It now has 8636 employes. Comptroller General Lindsey Warren has informed Congress that a number of personnel shifts will be made soon between his various divisions.

Additional personnel, he said, will be required in Accounting Systems, Corporation Audit, Transportation, and the Comprehensive Audit Divisions. The office now has 264 vacant jobs. Also, GAO will shift a few more employes to its field offices. During this fiscal year, there is an average of 6112 employes here; 2788 in the field. Next year the average will be 5942 here; 2958 in the field.

As of February 1, GAO employes had accumulated 1,903,218 hours of annual leave, representing a cost of $3,964,983. The agency has had a sharp drop in employe turnover during the past several years. Turnover is now running about 1 percent a month.

Federal Communications Commission employes have an average of 41 days of annual leave to their credits. The cost to pay it off would be $1,096,628. The agency has 1329 jobs and no vacancies. It would be forced to curtail most of its work if Congress ordered it to wipe out accumulated leave and absorb the pay raise cost. FCC is seeking a dozen new jobs in its 1951 budget.

At Veterans Administration, Creighton E. Hays has been appointed director of the central office coordination service to succeed Luther E. Ellis who retired. Hays was manager of VA's center at Denver . . . Rural Electrification's athletic association is having a Mardi Gras dance next Tuesday evening at the Washington Hotel . . . A discussion on what employes expect of personnel offices will be held by the Society for Personnel Administration next Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Archives Auditorium. Speakers will be Luther C. Steward, president, National Federation of Federal Employes, and Jerry Keating of AFL's letter carriers.

The Civil Service Commission has ordered the firing of Joseph H. Liebman, personnel chief of the Army's big St. Louis finance center. Commissioner James Mitchell said Liebman had exaggerated his experience in applying for the job. Representative Karst (D., Mo.), chairman of the House subcommittee investigating the center, said Liebman's firing was 'just the beginning. We are going to clean it up." Other inquiries of the agencies are being made by the Army and General Accounting.

Flier Forced To Wrestle With Blonde In Mid-Air

Veteran Pilot Calls Experience With Affectionate Passenger 'Worst'

A gallant, but unwilling, copilot wrestled with an affectionate blonde in a small chartered plane early yesterday for 15 minutes before the craft finally settled into National Airport.

T. C. Sallee, 32, the copilot, who flew round the world with the late Bill Odom, later reported "it was the worst experience in my 3000 hours of flying."

This, despite the fact that Sallee admitted his good-looking 37-year-old blonde passenger was trying to shower him with kisses througout the ordeal.

Trouble erupted, Sallee said, when the four-place Beechcraft Bonanza started "rocking" at 3000 feet just south of Washington on a New York to West Palm Beach, Fla., flight. Sallee thought his passenger was having a nightmare.

But when he reached around to shake her, Sallee said, "she grabbed me around the neck and tried to pull me into the back seat."

His affectionate passenger, Sallee said, was kicking the back of the pilot's seat at the same time, which was mashing pilot K. Howard Dubanowich into the control wheel and sending the plane into intermittent dives.

Father of Twins

"I figured I might as well go back and try to quiet her," Salleee, the father of twins, said Dubanowich figured he might as well head for National Airport and asked the tower to have an ambulance handy

She kept kicking and battling, Sallee said, and kept wanting to know whether the copilot loved her "I answered 'madly' to quiet her," he said.

Close to the ground, diving the plane became dangerous, so Sallee took emergency measures. "If I held my arms around her and let her keep her arms around me and kiss me, she'd be quiet," Sallee said, "but if I tried to move my arms she'd yell 'you don't love me!' and started kicking again." Sallee finally smoothed out the makeshift arrangement by pinning the woman's legs and the plane finally landed safely.

"Dubanowich was yelling 'Conk her—hit her with something' but I didn't want to hurt her if I could calm her this way," Sallee said.

Taken to Hospital

At the airport, the woman was whisked to Alexandria Hospital and transferred to the psychiatric division of George Washington University Hospital after her mother arrived from Selma, Ala. Doctors last night said the woman was resting well.

She was identified by a driver's license as Miss Willie Jane Frost of Coral Gables, Fla., and Los Angeles, Calif.

At Teterboro (N. J.) Airport, where Sallee works for the Odom Aviation Corp., he said yesterday that he'd had no inkling of the forthcoming turmoil when he was called to LaGuardia Airport at 2 a. m. to pick up his charter passenger.

"She was very pleasant and attractive and it seemed like it was going to be an ideal trip," Sallee said. "She said she was in a hurry to get to a sick friend in West Palm Beach."

Screams Fill Court as Man Is Sentenced

A 30-year-old peddler of marihuana cigarettes was sent to prison yesterday amid the screams of his pregnant wife and his sister.

The incident occurred in District Court when Nehemiah Clark of 1246 Florida ave. ne., was sentenced to serve 20 months to five years in prison for selling 18 "reefers."

Judge Alexander Holtzoff first said:

"Any one who deals in narcotics is a serious menace to the community, an evil person. You certainly are not a good citizen. You wife supports you, your child and herself. That's the pity of it all. You seem to come from a decent family."

Then, when sentence was pronounced the courtroom was pierced by the wail, "Oh, Lord Jesus," coming from Clark's sister, Mrs. Helen Pearson.

Clark's wife, Bessie, rose and cried aloud.

The women were led to a first-aid room, and Clark to the cell block.

In another case, Judge F. Dickinson Letts sentenced Mrs. Laura Copeland, 53, a housemaid, to serve one to three years for stealing $5300 in jewelry from the home of Rear Admiral Dwight Dickinson, jr. (ret.) at 2212 R st. nw. Included in the loot was a $1200 lorgnette.

Winston Sims, 49, and Ben Hillman, 50, of 2315 Champlain st. nw., both of whom pleaded guilty to numbers lottery charges, were sentenced to serve four months to a year in prison each. In the same case, Lucy Brown, 28, of 2378 Champlain st. nw., received a two-year probation term because she had no prior record.

Small Bank Branch Scene of $28,000 Robbery . . .

SHORTLY AFTER YESTERDAY'S ROBBERY, BUSINESS WAS RESUMED AS USUAL INSIDE THE BANK BRANCH

Bank Holdup Nets $27,851

Hamilton National Bank, who hurried to the scene, said the theft would mean no loss to depositors since the entire amount was covered by surety bonds.

The bandits overlooked an undisclosed but large amount of cash in one cash drawer and in the safe, he said. Business went on as usual at the bank within minutes after the hold-up.

Bank employes gave this account of the robbery to police:

Two of the three men entered the bank about 11:40 a. m. There were no customers at the time in the bank, which is a one-story brick building with a large plate-glass front window.

Bank Teller Herman O. Sikorra, 58, of 16 Lincoln ave., Takoma Park, Md., was standing behind the bank counter at one of the four cash drawers. The counter is about 22 feet back from the front door.

Standing to his left and near the safe behind the counter was Bank Manager H. R. Bauckman, 43, of RFD 2, Fairfax, Va., busy with some papers. George W. Everdale of 67-A Bates st. nw., janitor and handyman, was in the store room just to the rear, wrapping up coins.

One Guarded Door

One of the two bandits remained on guard at the front door and said not a word. The other man walked up to Sikorra and placed a light tan leather suitcase he was carrying on the counter, stating: "This is business."

"He opened up the suitcase, and I expected him to take out some money. Instead he drew out a blue steel revolver and pointed it directly at me, stating loudly that it was a stick-up," Sikorra said.

With the revolver still trained on Sikorra, the bandit then walked about 12 feet along the counter to a chin-high door, which was closed but unlocked.

After he went through the door and into the back of the counter, he spotted Everdale through the open door to the storeroom and ordered him to come out. All three men were then ordered to turn around, walk through the storeroom and into the men's toilet, which leads off it.

"Don't turn around and don't move. Don't come out and you won't get shot," the bandit warned, as he pulled the door part-way shut.

Moved Quickly

He then returned to the counter, where he scooped the cash from three of the four cash drawers and then from the safe, whose doors were closed but unlocked. He apparently put the money in the suitcase, picked up a coin bag, containing $800 in dimes, and walked out.

Police said the whole job was pulled in about "three or four minutes." The cash was in $1, $5, $10, $20, $50 and $100 bills. They would not say whether the bank had a record of the serial numbers.

A fourth employe at the bank, Miss Margaret A. Slifer, 28, of 7129 9th st. nw., had gone to the ladies' restroom a few seconds before the bandits entered the bank. She said she was in there the entire time of the hold-up and was unaware anything had happened until she came out several minutes after the bandits had gone.

"I'm just glad I didn't walk out into that gun," she declared later.

Several persons in the Roberts A. Latimer Real Estate Office, which occupies the other half of the building at 7733 Alaska ave. nw., were unaware of the hold-up.

Miss Janie Browning, a secretary, said she glanced out the front window and saw two men, one of them carrying a suitcase, get into a black sedan and drive off. She did not know they were bandits, however, until one of the bank employes came running into her office to tell about the hold-up.

Bank President Waller said the present location of the Shepherd Park Branch is only a temporary one. It has been there about two years, he said. Although the Hamilton Bank plans to build a permanent branch bank in that vicinity, it has not yet decided on the exact site, he added.

When asked if he now plans to install a burglar-alarm system in the branch robbed yesterday, Waller replied:

"I don't think so. After all, a thing of this kind is very rare. I've been in the banking business for 40 years and it's the first time it has happened in any bank I've been connected with."

Waller said the bank usually has its largest amount of money on hand on Fridays, when many businessmen depositors come in for cash to meet their payrolls.

Police said it was the first bank robbery here since the Southeastern Branch of the old Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, at 8th and G sts. se., was held up and $8000 in cash was taken on April 6, 1933.

Police recalled, however, that on March 30, 1945, two armed men robbed two messengers of the National Bank of Washington of $24,600 at 7th and C sts. nw. Just last November 3, two men held up the East Falls Church Bank and escaped with $13,468.

Police said the car apparently used by the bandits was parked at 35th and Prospect sts. nw. about 9 a. m. by its owner, A. L. Loffler, of 8113 Fenton st., Silver Spring, Md, who is a claim adjuster for the Capital Transit Co. He did not discover it was stolen until shortly after 1 p. m., when he reported it immediately to police.

Sailor Is Killed, 4 Others Injured In Taxicab Crash

Auto, Out of Control Overturns; Victim In Earlier Accident Identified by Police

A 24-year-old sailor was killed early yesterday in a traffic accident near Largo, Md., in which four other persons were injured, two of them critically.

The dead man was identified by Navy papers as Willie E. Ford, jr., of Annapolis. He was a passenger in a cab that went out of control and overturned after glancing off three trees on Central ave., about a quarter of a mile east of Largo, Prince Georges County police said.

He died of a crushed chest and was pronounced dead at the scene.

Other occupants of the cab, according to police, were Della Clark, 32, of Spring Valley, Md., who suffered a possible fractured skull; Howard Phroneberg, 23, of 21 N st. nw., who had a fractured left arm; Earlie Fox, 23, another sailor from Annapolis, fractured left arm and leg, and Charles F. Harper, 30, of 1719 Willard st. nw., treated at the scene for shock and bruises.

Both Phroneberg and the Clark woman were reported in critical condition last night at Casualty Hospital. Fox was transferred from Casualty to Bethesda Naval Hospital where his condition was described as satisfactory.

Policemen Charles Perrygo and Donald Forst said Harper first told them he was the driver of the cab, but then denied this a few minutes later when he learned that Ford was dead.

Meanwhile, Maryland State Police at Waldorf identified the victim of an earlier Southern Maryland accident as Raymond F. Farrell, 43, of Mechanicsville, Md. He was identified yesterday by members of his family. Farrell was burned to death Thursday night when his automobile overturned and caught fire on Route 5, about five miles south of Waldorf, police said.

Bethesda Court

Motorist Fined $150 in Traffic Death

Thomas E. Copeland, 41, of 7237 Arlington ave., Bethesda, was fined $150 yesterday in Bethesda Police Court on a charge of manslaughter by an automobile.

Copeland was found guilty Monday in connection with the traffic death of Bennie E. Janak, 28, of 11817 Goodloe rd., Viers Mills Village, last December 27.

On Monday, witnesses testified Copeland was driving on the wrong side of the road when his automobile struck Janak's motorcycle headon. Janak died the following day.

Judge James R. Miller told reporters he considered Copeland's previous clear traffic record over more than 20 years of driving and the rainy weather on the night of the accident in determining the sentence. He added that the intersection of Georgia ave. and Seminary rd., Silver Spring, where the accident occurred is considered a hazardous spot.

A $25 fine for reckless driving was suspended.

One Fined, Another Freed On Drunk-Driving Counts

A fine of $100 and a 30-day suspended jail sentence were imposed yesterday on Marion W. Jones, 29, of 5728 N. 7th st., Arlington, on a drunk driving charge, by Judge Hugh Reid in Arlington County Court. Jones was arrested February 11 on Wilson blvd.

Judge Reid acquitted Hubert L. Stone, 36, of 65 N. Bedford st., Arlington, of a similar charge.

El Salvador Envoy Heads U. N. Lawyers

Dr. Don Hector David Castro, El Salvador Ambasador to the United States, last night was elected president of the United Nations League of Lawyers.

Dr. Castro is also his country's representative to the United Nations.

The election of international officers took place at the league's annual meeting

Other officers elected were:

Executive vice president, Dr. Pierre Georges Le Paulle of Paris.

Deputy vice president, Dr. Melquiades J. Gamboa, counselor of the Philippine Embassy.

Secretary-General Dr. H. Milton Colvin of Washington and Richmond, who is also president of the league's United States Division.

Assistant secretary-general, Eli E. Nobleman, counsel for the Senate Committee on International Organizations.

Treasurer, Mary Conley, Veterans Administration attorney.

Assistant treasurer, Owen L. Davis, first secretary of the Australian Embassy.

Elected to the league's international executive council were Dr. Brenden F. Brown, dean of the Law School of Catholic University; Dr. Alessandra Lucini Del Russo of Milan, Italy; James E. Palmer, jr., president of the Federal Bar Association, and Frank C. Sakran, author and lawyer.

Principal speaker was John C. Ross, deputy United States representative to the U. N. His topic was, "The United Nations and a Divided World."

Patent Lawyer Killed in Fall Down Stairs

John J. Darby, 53-year-old District patent lawyer, died last night after falling down stairs in his home.

Darby, a member of the firm of Cushman, Darby and Cushman and a practicing lawyer 30 years, failed to regain consciousness after tripping about 7:30 p. m., police reported.

He was pronounced dead several hours later at his home, 1605 Buchanan st. nw.

The attorney, a District native, is a graduate of Gonzaga High School nad Georgetown University.

A former president of the American Patent Association, he was also a member of the District Bar Association, the National Press Club and the Columbia Country Club.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Margaret Snyder Darby; a son, John Joseph, jr.; and four daughters, Miss Marianne D. Darby of the home, Mrs. Margaret Louise Hurley of Alexandria, Mrs. Joan Marie Stohlman of Ordway Gardens, Connecticut ave. and Ordway st. nw., and Mrs. Joyce Elizabeth Coyle of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dapper Jack's Not Only Date In Her Life, Says Mrs. Blake

Mrs. Dorothy S. Blake, a Dorchester House divorcee, was quizzed for five hours yesterday on the part that men, money, racehorses and telephones play in her life.

She told District Court Judge Charles F. MacLaughlin that she goes out with several men. So far as "retired" gambler John B. (Dapper Jack) Keleher, 68, is concerned, her dinner dates with other men are "none of his business," she said.

She testified that because her wants are small—she does her own laundry—she is able to make out on her $3200 yearly income. That includes, she insisted, her $93.50-a-month apartment, and a Cadillac.

Watching horseraces, she said, was no more than an occasional pastime, and if she is seen at a resort track with Keleher, it is never a prearranged affair.

She admitted that she had so many long-distance telephone calls—about 200 in 1948-1949—that she could remember neither the purpose nor the correspondent on many of them.

And last, the 46-year-old divorcee said with some vigor:

'I'm not afraid of anyone."

Mrs. Blake has been named as the "other woman" in the limited divorce suit charging cruelty against Keleher by his 51-year-old wife, Mrs. Anna T. (Dolly) Keleher, of the Woodley Park Towers.

Mrs. Blake denies the accusation that she is more than a friend to Keleher. She said they have no "love" for each other and have never so much as stolen a kiss "to my knowledge."

Meanwhile, Judge McLaughlin directed the marshal's office to attempt to reach Clyde Powell, who Attorney Laughlin said was a Federal Housing Administration official and an acquaintance of Mrs. Blake. According to the Congressional Directory, Clyde L. Powell is listed as an assistant commissioner of FHA.

The action of the judge followed Laughlin's statement that he has "reason to believe" that Powell is evading service of a subpena to be a witness in the case.

The tone of the entire case is such that Keleher's lawyer, Alvin L. Newmyer, declared in court that he wondered whether Keleher was being divorced from a "woman or from a horse."

Mrs. Blake was asked to identify every one of the long distance telephone calls made to or from her apartment in the past two years, and she always denied that they concerned gambling. Many of them, she said were made by Keleher, but none that she could remember were before noon or after 6 p. m.

Laughlin asked her for the date of her birth, and she replied that it was in November, 1903.

She hesitated when he asked her what her age would be this November.

"I withdraw the question," Laughlin said. "Some women are sensitive about telling their age."

$50,000 Given for Cancer Care

A $50,000 program to provide home care for cancer patients here is being set up under the Alexander and Margaret Stewart trust fund, it was announced yesterday.

Grants of $25,000 each have been given to George Washington and Georgetown Universities from the trust fund established by the late Mrs. Mary E. Stewart, in memory of her parents.

Mrs. Stewart died October 16, 1947, at her home here. Her will provided a trust fund of approximately four million dollars, the income from which was to be used for cancer research and for the care of cancer patients.

Other initial grants announced yesterday include $5000 to the Home for Incurables here for care of cancer patients, and $30,000 to the University of Wisconsin for cancer research at its McArdle Memorial Laboratory, in Madison, Wis.

The cancer home-care program is designed to help some 40 patients, fund trustees said. It will be made available primarily to those unable to pay anything towards their own care, but also to those who can pay all or part of the costs.

The university grants are for one year. Fund trustees, however, have indicated they hope to continue the projects if they meet the needs for home-care of those afflicted.

Trustees of the fund are Mrs. D. B. Devore of 2000 24th st. nw., a sister of the late Mrs. Stewart; L. W. Holbrook, fund manager, and the Union Trust Co. of this city.

Checks totaling $21,095, representing 1949 savings of the Hospital Service Agency, have been sent to 18 Washington area hospitals, it was announced yesterday.

HSA is the Community Chest agency which certifies patients whose hospital costs are paid from Chest funds.

Willard C. Smith, HSA administrator, also reported yesterday that the agency last year arranged for more than 6700 hospital admissions, resulting in nearly 63,000 in-patient days, and 7238 clinic passes on which more than 45,000 visits were made. Total hospital billings for the services were $703,077, he reported.

The agency's savings, he said, were distributed under an agreement made last June when the hospitals accepted a 20 percent cut in their rates because of dwindling Chest funds.

The surplus, however, did not accrue because of the rate cut, but resulted primarily from savings in HSA's operational budget. The money was distributed on a ratio of in-patient days each hospital served HSA patients in 1949.

Lewis Cogan Dies After Short Illness

Lewis L. Cogan, 63, building and grounds superintendent of Library of Congress, died unexpectedly yesterday at Sibley Hospital after a two weeks illness.

Born in Calverton, Va., Mr. Cogan lived most of his life in Washington. He began as an electrician with the Library of Congress in 1920.

A past master of Petworth Lodge No. 47, F. A. A. M., Mr. Cogan attended Woodside Methodist Church in Silver Spring. He was also past patron of Bethany Chapter, No. 24, OES.

For the last 10 years, he has lived at 702 Dale dr., Silver Spring.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nellie Dorsey Cogan; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Myers of Hyattsville; two brothers, Ernest of Silver Spring, and Carl T. Policeman, Truck Driver Pull Double Play, Arrest 2 in Theft

A policeman and a truck driver worked a double play yesterday afternoon and tagged out two men who allegedly stole packages of clothing from the driver's truck.

The prisoners identified themselves to police as Raymond Hewlett, 39, and James W. Shores, 41, of no fixed address.

The driver was John A. Crowe, 1630 Lincoln rd. ne. His truck was parked in the 1200 block of F st. nw., he said, when he saw the two snatch three packages of clothing. He chased them to 11th st., and then southward. Pvt. William Nevin of the Traffic Division, saw them coming and collard Hewlett before he reached Pennsylvania ave.

Shores disappeared temporarily into the lobby of the Evening Star building, Nevin said, and emerged minus his hat and coat.

Nevin told Crowe to hold Hewlett while he grabbed Shores. Police said both men admitted taking the packages, admitted being narcotic addicts, and said they sought to get to a Federal institution for curing addicts. Police said a narcotics needle was found on Hewlett.

Both men were charged with grand larceny and will go to Municipal Court today.

Miss Mary F. Houlihan

Miss Mary F. Houlihan, 80, retired Treasury Department official, died Thursday night at Providence Hospital.

A resident of 4115 Wisconsin ave. nw., Miss Houlihan fell at 3d st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. on February 3, and was taken to Providence Hospital by police where she remained until her death.

Born in Washington, she attended local schools before working at a money counter at the Treasury Department for more than 45 years. She retired 15 years ago. Miss Houlihan attended St. Aloysius Church, North Capitol and I sts., where a requiem mass will be sung Monday at 10 a. m. Burial will follow in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

No immediate relatives survive.

Charles S. Leary

Bradenton, Fla., Feb. 17. (AP).—Charles Sidney Leary, 64, former Minister of Public Works for British Columbia, died unexpectedly at his island cottage near here.

Leary had been suffering from a heart ailment, and he and his wife had been visiting Anna Maria Island for his health.

He served at his public works post for 17 years. His home was Nakusp, B. C., where he was president of Big Bend Lumber Co.

John F. Mudd Dies; Political Figure in Md.

Bryantown, Md., Feb. 17 (Spl.). John F. Mudd, 65, former member of the State Legislature and holder of several State positions, died yesterday of a heart attack at his home after an illness of several months.

Mr. Mudd was in the House of Delegates from 1910 to 1914, when he was elevated to the State Senate for a six-year term. Later he was a member of the State Roads Commission, the State Racing Commission and People's Counsel to the State Public Service Commission.

He was a first cousin of Thomas B. R. Mudd of La Plata, who has been mentioned as a Republican nominee for Governor. He also was a distant relative of Dr. Samuel Mudd, who treated John Wilkes Booth, President Lincoln's assassin.

A native of Charles County, Mr. Mudd had resided in the county nearly all his life. He was a graduate of St. John's College, Annapolis, and the University of Maryland Law School.

His legal career began as a member of the law firm headed by Chief Judge Walter J. Mitchell of the Seventh Judicial Circuit. In recent years, he practiced with his son, F. De Sales Mudd with offices in La Plata.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Amy Turner Mudd; four daughters, Miss Dorothy A. Mudd, supervisor of Harford County, Md., schools; Mrs. Merlin J. Stem, Orange, N. J.; Miss Mary Helen Mudd and Mrs. George W. Gibson, both of Bryantown; three sons, F. De Sales Mudd, John T. Mudd, a Bryantown merchant, and Patrick C. Mudd, Circuit Court clerk for Charles County; two sisters, Mrs. James J. Edelen, East Orange, N. J., and Mrs. Milton Aker of Boston.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow at St. Mary's Catholic Church. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Charles R. Kennedy

Los Angeles, Feb. 17. (AP).—Playwright Charles Rann Kennedy, author of "The Servant in The House" and a dozen other plays, is dead at the age of 79.

Kennedy, also an actor and stage producer, died yesterday at his Westwood home. A native of Derby, England, he had resided here since 1940. He had been in the United States since 1903 and became a citizen in 1917.

Giovannini Buried With Masonic Rites

Scottish Rite services for Philip W. Giovannini, 70, American businessman and later State Department official in the Orient, took place at 3 p. m. yesterday at the Hines chapel, 2901 14th st. nw. He was a 32d degree Mason.

Mr. Giovannini died unexpectedly of a heart attack on January 22 at Manila, where he was attached to the American Embassy handling veterans' welfare activity.

Born and educated in San Francisco, Mr. Giovannini went to Manila shortly after the turn of this century, and for 10 years was connected with the city government there. About 1912 he entered private business in Manila, then in 1920 went to Shanghai, where he conducted his own business.

During his years in Shanghai, he became a past master of all Masonic bodies there.

In November, 1942, he was made a prisoner of the Japanese and was not released until September, 1945.

Mrs. Giovannini, who now lives at McLean Gardens here, was interned a few months after her husband was taken prisoner, but was later repatriated. She has lived in Washington for six years.

Beside his wife, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Max Buchner, and two brothers, Romeo and Arthur Giovannini, all of San Francisco.

Mrs. Annie L. Hunt Dies; Native of District

Mrs. Annie L. Hunt, 66, widow of Harvey W. P. Hunt, former pressman, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, died from a heart condition yesterday morning at Garfield Hospital.

A native of Washington, she was a graduate of Eastern High School and Wood's Commercial College. As Miss Annie L. McLean, she married Mr. Hunt in 1925.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Lewis Ryce of 2755 Macomb st. nw., and Mrs. Mord Hyams of Los Angeles, Calif.; and two cousins, Mrs. Ashmun N. Brown of 3133 Connecticut ave. nw., and Frank B. Bermon of Friendship Heights, Md.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 11 a. m. at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will follow at Congressional Cemetery.

C. M. Cowling Dead at 75 In Alexandria

C. Milford Cowling, 75, retired bank employe, lifelong resident of Alexandria and Fairfax County, died Thursday at Circle Terrace Hospital after a month's illness.

A Fairfax native, Mr. Cowling lived at 2335 Duke st. 70 years. He retired several years ago from the safety deposit department of the National Savings & Trust Co., after 31 years. Prior to that he was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, in the general passenger office.

Mr. Cowling worked for the Southern Railway before joining the Pennsylvania line. He was an active member of Christ Episcopal Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Annie Brown Cowling; two sons, Jack E. and C. Milford, jr.; and one daughter, Miss Anne Lee Cowling, all of Alexandria.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 11 a. m. at Christ Episcopal Church, Alexandria. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery. The family requests flowers be omitted.

Mr. Parkinson, a brother of attorney Kenneth N. Parkinson of 6313 Oakridge ave., Chevy Chase, was a graduate of George Washington University Law School and was employed in the District and Federal Governments here.

Transferred to California by the United States Maritime Commission in 1944, he was in the real estate business in Oakland at the time of his death.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Virginia Brockinridge Parkinson, also a member of the District Bar and one-time vice president of the Women's Bar Association of the District.

H. W. Wayson Dead; Noted Bay Skipper

Baltimore, Feb. 17 (AP).—Harry W. Wayson, who sailed many a load of oysters and watermelons to Baltimore from Annapolis, died at the home of a daughter today. He was 87 and had been ill since Thanksgiving.

Tasker Oddie, Once Senator, Dead at 80

Tasker L. Oddie, prominent in the gold and silver mining industry of the Far West and former Nevada Governor and Senator, died yesterday in San Francisco. He was 80.

Born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. Oddie went to Nevada in 1898 to engage in mining operations. He was one of the original locators and in charge of early development of the famous Tonopah Mines.

From this, he entered politics, serving first as district attorney of Nye County, Nev., then as a member of the State Senate for four years. In 1910, he was elected Governor of Nevada and then served two terms as U. S. Senator.

A life member of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, Mr. Oddie was at one time president of the Gold Mining Association of America. During the war, he was a member of the Nevada State Council of Defense and chairman of the State district of the War Resources Commission, which cooperated with the Resources and Conservation Section of the War Industries Board.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Daisy Rendall Oddie; a sister, Mrs. Frederick J. Siebert of Palo Alto, Calif., and a brother, Clarence Oddie, San Francisco attorney.

Mardi Gras Queen Reigns At Colorful Louisiana Dance

By Nicha Soure

A BIT OF NEW ORLEANS was transplanted to Washington yesterday when the Louisiana State Society held its annual Mardi Gras ball at the Statler Hotel.

About 600 festival-minded former Pelican Staters and their guests gathered to celebrate a festival dear to the hearts of all Louisianians. Talk around the tables, which were grouped around the dance floor, centered on the home State. "Any floods down in your section?" and "how long since you've been back home?" could be heard everywhere.

Festival Queens from Louisiana who came to Washington to take part in the State Society ball, were Miss Rita Favre, Yambilee Queen; Miss Barbara Rodriguez, Rice Queen; Miss Margaret Gustafson, Orange Queen; Miss Joan White, Paper Queen; Miss Betty Adams, Rose Queen; Miss Bonnie Wascom, Strawberry Queen; Miss Beverly Ann Moncla, Camellia Queen; and Miss Adela Gertrude Broas, who represented the City of New Orleans.

But the queen chosen to rule at the dance was not one of the festival queens. She is Mrs. Marjorie Gauthier Basnight, formerly of Lafayette, La. The king of the ball was Representative Otto E. Passman.

At 10:30 the colorful pageant began, as each festival queen, complete with vivid crowns and scepters, circled the ballroom, bowing graciously to her "subjects."

The queens were escorted to the steps leading to the throne where they took their places beside their prince escorts. When all the queens had entered, Felix Broussard, president of the Louisiana State Society, said "Will the chamberlain tell me whom the king has chosen to be his queen?"

A hush fell over the audience as the chamberlain whispered in Mr. Broussard's ear. When Mr. Broussard brought Queen Marjorie in from a neighboring room, she was greeted by a rising ovation.

A grand march for the festival queens and the Queen of the Ball followed the pageant. Guests then met the queens, who formed a receiving line, while a court jester, Eugene Henry, pages and guards—all in costume—lent carnival color to the gay gathering.

Missourians to Mark Jubilee

Fifty years ago, an employe in the Census Bureau inserted this advertisement in a local paper:

"If there are any Missouri people in Washington who are as lonesome as I am, meet me at Oppenheimers Hall, 520 Ninth st., nw., at 8 p. m., Saturday evening, September 15, 1900. Signed, Joe J. Manlove."

The Missouri Society will be celebrating its 50-year history in the Capital with a banquet tonight in the Carlton Hotel, 7 p. m.

The list of honored guests includes the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, Senator and Mrs. Forrest C. Donnell, Representative and Mrs. Clarence Cannon, Representative and Mrs. Paul C. Jones, Representative and Mrs. Frank M. Karsten, Representative and Mrs. Richard W. Bolling, Representative and Mrs. Leonard Irving, Representative and Mrs. Clare Magee, Representative and Mrs. Morgan M. Moulder, the Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Stuart Symington, Associate Justice, United States Court of Appeals, and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Louis H. Renfrow.

Alabamans Masquerade

A MASQUERADE ball in February? Sure, on the 23d, sponsored by the Alabama State Society.

The gay ball will be held from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. in the Continental room of the Wardman Park Hotel. Jack Morton and his orchestra will furnish music for dancing.

The prettiest, tackiest, most original and most glamorous costumes will be awarded prizes. But don't let a little thing like no costume keep you away. As the Society says:

"Or if you'd rather be yourself,
Just leave your costume on the shelf.
Come informal or formal with a friendly grin,
Knock on the door and we'll let you in."

Alabamans may obtain membership cards from the president, Mrs. Pauline V. Byrd, 3208 Wellington rd., Alexandria, Va. (Alexandria 7992). Membership cards and guest tickets will be available at the door the night of the dance.

Hoosiers to Mark 150th Year

SUNDAY'S the day the Hoosiers will be celebrating with a Sesquicentennial brunch. But it won't be Washington's Sesqui—it'll be their own!

The brunch commemorating Indiana's 150-year history will be held in the dining room of the National Airport, 10:30 a. m.

The Hoosier water-colorist, Paul Hadley, designer of the official Indiana State Banner in 1917, will be among the honor guests.

Indiana's senior Senator, Homer E. Capehart, will give a brief resume of Indiana history since the founding of the Indiana Territory in 1800. "Indiana Has Just About Everything," is the title of a 20-minute movie of the State which will be shown. Group singing of Hoosier songs will also be included on the program.

Home Folks to Honor Veep

THE ever-popular Veep and his bride will be presented to the "home folks" on Friday, February 24, when the Kentucky State Society honors the Vice President and Mrs. Barkley at a reception and dance.

The reception will begin at 10 p. m. to be followed by dancing until 1 a. m. in the Shoreham Hotel.

South Trimble, jr., president of the Blue Grass group, has appointed the following members to serve on the reception committee: Henry Iler, chairman; Edward Seiller, Miss Lela Mae Stiles, Miss Mary Hamilton O'Neal, Clyde Watson and Gilbert W. Kingsbury.

Plan Colonial Ball

A FORMAL George Washington ball will be on the Virginia State Society's calendar for February 24 at the Carlton Hotel.

The reception from 9 to 9:30 p. m. will be in honor of the Washington Sesquicentennial Commission. Dancing will follow from 9:30 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Dr. M. L. Combs, president of Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia, and Mrs. Combs will attend the society dance. On the entertainment program during the intermission will be 12 Mary Washington coeds who, gowned in Colonial costumes, will dance the minuet and other George Washington era dances.

Burma-Bound Mrs. Key Is at Home in Any Land

By Marie McNair

MRS. DAVID KEY, whose husband was appointed United States Ambassador to Burma this week, needs no briefing for her job.

A daughter of the Army and the wife of a Foreign Service officer, Mrs. Key has led a nomadic life, is at home in almost any country. She's quietly efficient—the American Women's Volunteer Service Motor Corps, would tell you that—for she headed that branch of the organization in wartime Washington. She has reared three children in various European capitals and she turned an old mill in Conecticut into a charming, liveable home.

That house in Essex with its pond for swimming in summer and ice skating in winter, she has been forced to leave, for she flew with Mr. Key as soon as his post was confirmed, and they're already in Bangkok for the conference of American Ministers.

Daughter of a General

The former Majorie Wright, Mrs. Key is the daughter of the late Major Gen. William Mason Wright, and Mrs. Wright, who has lived in Washington for many years. Her brother is a handsome Navy Admiral, Jerauld Wright, whose "to heck with your clothes—save the oars," made World War II history when the Americans landed in Africa.

A frequent visitor to her grandmother here, Marjorie Key, who is staying behind this trip with her two brothers, Albert and David, now graduated from Harvard, and also at the family home in Essex.

Texans Greet Visitor At Pair of Parties

A VISITOR from Texas—Mrs. Edward Bartley of Bonham—was guest of honor at two parties yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Pittman entertained at a reception at the Carlton yesterday afternoon and earlier Mrs. C. Raymond Wire was hostess at luncheon.

Mrs. Bartley is a sister of Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House, and is here to see her brother and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bartley.

Mrs. Wire's party was held at her home, Wirelawn, on Bradley lane. Mrs. Fred Vinson was among the guests and the company also included a Texas group, Mrs. Tom Clark, Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, Mrs. Clark W. Thompson, Mrs. Wright Patman, Mrs. Ken Regan, Mrs. Eugene Worley, Mrs. Luther Johnson, Mrs. Fritz Lanham, Mrs. Dale Miller.

Also Mrs. A. C. McAuliffe, Mrs. Frank Wozencraft, Mrs. Robert Bartley, Mrs. Jack Ingram, Mrs. George E. Muth, and Mrs. Ralph Pittman, Mrs. Clifton Carter and Mrs. Walter Wyatt.

Speaker Rayburn In Receiving Line

SPEAKER RAYBURN was in the receiving line with Mr. and Mrs. Pittman and Mrs. Bartley, welcoming more than 200 guests in the Carlton Room.

Vice President and Mrs. Alben Barkley and Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson were there and others were Justice and Mrs. Tom Clark, the Secretary of the Senate and Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Senator and Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, Mr. and Mrs. John Steelman, Gen. and Mrs. F. M. Brannan, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Edward F. Witsell, Commissioner and Mrs. John Russell Young, Admiral and Senora Luis Merlo Flores and Miss Mary Helen Merlo Flores.

Judge Marvin Jones was there in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond P. Brandt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Freer, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris and Mr. and Mrs. William S. Shelton.

Mrs. Pittman's gown was of flamingo chiffon with ankle length pleated skirt. Pinned to her pearls were camellias to match her frock. Mrs. Bartley wore a floor length black crepe trimmed in lace and a shoulder spray of purple orchids.

Bust of Nicaraguan Hero to Be Presented

THE Ambassador of Nicaragua and Senora de Sevilla-Sacasa have sent out invitations for Tuesday, to a ceremony and reception in the Hall of the Americas, Pan American Union, at 5 p. m. A presentation will be made of a bust of Nicaragua's national hero, Don Migue' Larreynaga. The reception will follow.

The Irish Minister, Sean Nunan, has returned to Washington after a visit of several weeks in Ireland. According to unconfirmed reports, the Irish legation will be raised to the status of embassy within a month.

Another traveler, Ambassador M. A. H. Ispahani of Pakistan, has also returned to Washington after a visit of three months in Pakistan.

Artist to Entertain Group at Tea

MRS. RANDOLPH WINSLOW who signs her portraits, Marcella Comes, will entertain at tea today in her house in Georgetown for Miss Rose Standish Nichols and a small group of her friends.

Mrs. Winslow will show the portrait of Miss Nichols which she finished last year in Miss Nichols's old Bullfinch home on Mount Vernon st. in Boston. In the painting Miss Nichols is seated before the fireplace with the bust made for her by her uncle, the noted sculptor, Augustus Saint-Gaudens, on the mantel in the background.

Mrs. Charles Richard was hostess to a company of eight at luncheon yesterday at La Salle du Bois. Entertaining there at dinner Thursday evening were Col. Joseph Loiret of the French Mission and Madame Loiret.

Pair Are Feted At Cocktail Party

JOHN GREER gave a cocktail party yesterday for Hugo Gouthier, retiring Counselor of the Brazilian Embassy and Forrest Tucker, whose latest picture is "Sands of Iwo Jima."

And the last in a long series of parties for Patricia Moore who becomes Mrs. James Shanahan today, was the buffet supper given last night by Col. and Mrs. Raymond J. Williamson.

The Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. Hume Wrong entertained for a company of 20 at a dinner last evening at the Embassy.

'Washington Rhumba' Goes Round the World

"Washington Rhumba," written by two local women, had its round-the-world premiere last night over the Mutual Broadcasting System's program, "The Air Force Hour." The broadcast was relayed around the world by the Armed Forces Radio Network to military posts overseas.

The song, written by Mrs. Charles L. McClasky and her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Arnold of 4310 Chesapeake st. nw., has already been recorded by another Washington musician, Evelyn Tyner, pianist, for Decca records and will be released March 20. It is also being printed as sheet music.

A fourth of the royalties from the song will go to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund at the request of Mrs. McClasky and Mrs. Arnold. The lyrics refer to Washington as "queen of the show" and the "Star Spangled Dream of the U. S. A."

The mother-daughter composing team has also written "Springtime in Washington" and "Hi, Harry," both of which are scheduled to be recorded and published soon.

Slimming With Ida Jean Kain

Diet—For Overweights Only—Starts Monday

By Ida Jean Kain

AFTER dealing in streamlines for these many years, I'm convinced that more often than not, it's the wrong girls who go on diets. Those with 5 to 10 pounds of pleasing plumpness are the ones who hasten to take off weight.

MISS KAIN

Let a girl catch a glimpse of her silhouette in a settled posture, perhaps at the end of the day when she is tired — her waist doesn't appear as slim and, with indifferent posture, hips do not look so svelte as she wishes they were. Does she say, "My, I must exercise to tone up?" No, indeed. She screams excitedly, "Heavens, I've got to take off 10 pounds!"

Chances are the young lady does not need to take off a pound—she might even have more bounce by adding 5. She could improve her figure with exercise, for physical activity puts tone in muscles, and with well-toned muscles, anyone's figure is more shapely. But if she diets when her weight is not above normal, she will undermine her health.

Complacent Heavyweights

ON THE other hand, the woman who is in the neighborhood of 20 to 40 pounds above the top weight for her height and frame, is quite apt to take the view that there is no use taking chances with her health by dieting. She may even rationalize that it might harm her health to stop overeating! So she goes merrily along until one day the doctor puts her on a strict diet to bring weight and blood pressure down.

Excess fat is never healthy, for it increases the work of all the vital organs. But while excess fat is a burden, extreme thinness is a drain and the ultra-thin woman has that false, "going-on-nerves" kind of energy that has no endurance back of it.

We really need to hit a happy medium on this weight question. Who is to blame for "the thinner the better" craze? Is it fashion? Hollywood? Is it men? If anyone has the notion that this dietitian wants women to be slim as fashion models or movie queens, he or she is greatly mistaken.

Depends on Frame

NORMAL weight depends on individual frame, and it frequently varies as much as 15 pounds with the same height. But normal weight is always the weight at which a person has the highest vitality and feeling of well-being.

All this is leading up to an announcement of a new slimming series . . . but is is only for overweights. It is the women who are considerably above normal who seem to lack the willpower to diet. So in the new How to Put Starch in Your Willpower series, something new has been applied to slimming . . . psychology. Weight normalizing can be habit-forming, too. There is a new Willpower Building Diet with menus adjusted to the Lenten season.

The series starts Monday, February 20, in the Women's Section of The Washington Post.

On the Club Front

Diplomats' Wives Each Has Hostess

By Genevieve Reynolds

SWITZERLAND learned about life in Kentucky. And Missouri heard about customs and mores in Thailand. In fact, there was wholesale swapping of ideas of other lands and regions of this Nation yesterday. Occasion was the Congressional Club's reception honoring diplomatic wives in the clubhouse at 2001 New Hampshire ave.

A club member played individual hostess to each envoy's wife in a plan devised by Mrs. Olin D. Johnston, wife of the South Carolina Senator. Arranging the entire reception was Mrs. Homer Ferguson, wife of the Michigan Senator, who is program chairman for the club's Friday programs.

Marine Band Plays

As the scarlet-coated Marine Band played, hostesses and guests paired off for chats or a round of introductions.

Mrs. Ludwig Kleinwaechter, wife of the Austrian Minister, was squired around by Mrs. Albert Thomas of Texas. Mrs. Lawrence Brooks Hays of Arkansas and Mrs. Paul Kilday of Texas chatted with Mrs. Hume Wrong, wife of the Canadian Ambassador.

Mrs. G. C. S. Corea, wife of the Ambassador from Ceylon, and Mrs. Walt Horan of Washington paired off as did Mme. Vladimir Outrata of Czechoslovakia and Mrs. James E. Van Zandt of Pennsylvania. Ditto Mme. Henrik de Kauffman of Denmark and Mrs. Clifford Davis of Tennessee, Senora Altagracia de Thomen of the Dominican Republic and Mrs. Frank A. Barrett of Wyoming.

List of Pairings

Add to the line-up Senora Sophie de Dillon of Ecuador with Mrs. Wesley D'Ewart of Montana; Mme. Jutila with Mrs. Edward McLaughlin; Mme. Henry Bonnet of France with Mrs. Hal Holmes of Washington; Lady Franks of Great Britain with Mrs. Sheridan Downey of California; Mme. Dendramis of Greece with Mrs. Millard Tydings of Maryland; Mme. Erkin of Turkey with Mrs. Joseph R. Bryson of South Carolina.

Other diplomatic and congressional line-ups were Mrs. G. P. Jooste of the Union of South Africa with Mrs. James C. Davis of Florida; Senora de Pocaterra of Venezuela with Mrs. Percy Priest of Tennessee; Italy's Senora Alberto Tarchiani with Mrs. Richard Wigglesworth of Massachusetts.

Still other included Switzerland's Mme. Bruggmann with Mrs. Emmett O'Neal of Kentucky; Jordan's Mme. Haikal with Mrs. Karl Stefan of Nebraska; Latvia's Mme. Feldmans with Mrs. Carl Curtis of Nebraska. Senora de Callejon with Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, jr.; Thailand's Princess Wan Waithayakon with Mrs. Clarence Cannon of Mo.; Mexico's Senora de Colina with Mrs. Aime J. Forand of Delaware; the Netherland's Mme. Van Kleffens with Mrs. Will R. Whinngton of Mississippi; New Zealand's Lady Berendsen with Mrs. Kenneth S. Wherry of Nebr.; Luxembourg's Mme. Le Gallais with Mrs. Rolla C. McMillen of Illinois; Nicaragua's Senora de Seville-Sacasa with Mrs. Ralph E. Church, president of the club.

Wives of the House and Senate Foreign Affairs Committee took turns presiding at the tea tables. These included Mrs. Brien McMahon, Mrs. Bourke Hickenlooper, Mrs. John Kee, Mrs. Walter Judd, Mrs. Omar Burleson, Mrs. Mike Mansfeld and Mrs. Lawrence H. Smith.

Democrats Fete Members

A special party honoring approximately 100 new members who joined the Woman's National Democratic Club since last October was given yesterday by the club at its headquarters on New Hampshire ave. Tea arrangements were in charge of Mrs. William E. Warne, membership chairman.

Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Secretary of State and Mrs. George C. McGhee, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, were among the new members taking turns in the receiving line as were Mrs. Vincent Burke, Mrs. David Lillienthal, and Mrs. Adrian Fisher.

One of the club's founders—Mrs. Emmett Gudgers of Montana, was among those present.

Montgomery Seeks More Jail Control

From Fire

Mother Saves Grandson of B. K. Wheeler

Mrs. Richard B. Wheeler and her infant son, Burton K. Wheeler 2d, escaped to safety about 10 a. m. yesterday when a flash fire broke out on the ground floor of their home at 3920 47th st. nw.

The 1-year-old youngster is the namesake grandson of former Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D., Mont.).

Mrs. Wheeler said she was on the second floor with her child when she smelled smoke. She bundled Burton in bed clothes and rushed him to a neighbor's house where she called the Fire Department. Engine Company No. 20 and Truck Company No. 12 responded and quickly extinguished the flames.

The fire, apparently caused by a short circuit in a living room light switch, destroyed a bookshelf, furniture and several books.

Mr. Wheeler, son of the former senator, is a salesman at Station WTOP.

Annapolis, Feb. 17.—A bill to place full control of the Montgomery County jail and custody of its prisoners under the County Council's authority was introduced here today by the Montgomery County delegation.

The bill gives the County Council the right to appoint a jailer or warden and necessary qualified assistants.

These persons will be responsible for "safekeeping, care and feeding" of all prisoners in the jail at Rockville from the time they are committed until they are discharged, released, or withdrawn from the jail by the sheriff.

In effect, the bill thus removes from the sheriff the responsibility for the prisoners while they are in the county jail.

The bill state that there "have been two successful jail breaks, one attempted jail break, and one instance of assault upon the warden by a prisoner" during the past year. It points out that the Federal Bureau of Prisons "has made certain recommendations to prevent any recurrence of such violence," and that the change in the jail's administration was recommended by the Maryland State prison inspector.

District Asked To Foot College Incidentals

School officials yesterday recommended that equipment, supplies and clerical service now paid for by assessment of students at the two public teacher colleges be supplied at public expense.

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning sent Board of Education members copies of reports prepared by the two first assistant school superintendents calling for appropriations to cover costs of library books, periodicals, teacher supplies and personnel services.

First Assistant Superintendent Norman J. Nelson said that Wilson College students now are assessed $23 a semester to cover the expenses. Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson reported $17.50 assessments at Miner Teachers College.

The two school officers said that inereased Federal appropriations should be secured by the board for expenses essential to maintaing the colleges and that a small student fee sufficient to cover only student activities be authorized.

The assessment of students for college expenses was brought to the attention of the board several months ago when students at Wilson Teachers College sent in a petition asking for school board action.

Man Hangs Self By Leather Belt From Closet Door

The body of Albert C. Day, 46, of 605 Raleigh pl. se., was found yesterday, hanging by a leather belt from a closet door, according to a report to police.

It was found by his sister, Mrs. Ruth E. Barker, who, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allie Day, lives at the same address. Mrs. Barker told police that her brother was unemployed for some time and that earlier, he had talked of going to a hospital.

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

Mississippi Threatens New Floods

Chicago, Feb. 17 (U.P.).—Flood-stricken residents of Louisiana were warned to flee "while you can" today as the lower Mississippi River and its tributaries threatened widespread new floods.

Fair weather prevailed over most of the Nation, giving respite to the rain-weary eight-State flood basin.

A few snow flurries were reported in the East, and the southern California coast was shrouded in a heavy fog which hampered motor traffic and harbor shipping, and grounded airplanes.

But despite good weather, officials said "things are getting worse" in the lower Mississippi Valley, where 38,000 persons already are homeless in Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee.

Brig. Gen. Raymond Hufft of the Louisiana National Guard estimated 700,000 acres of lowland were flooded in that State alone and the figure would soar to one million acres by March 1.

Hufft advised residents of affected areas to get out while they could and the Coast Guard moved in a rescue unit to help them.

Hearing on Area Milk Price Cuts Set for March 1

A hoped-for cut in milk prices over Greater Washington by March 1 has been ruled out by the Virginia Milk Commission in failing to set a hearing on the subject this month.

The commission yesterday slated a hearing on lower milk prices for 10:30 a. m. March 1 at the Cameron St. Recreation Center, Alexandria. Three area dairies and the Virginia Milk Producers' Association requesed the hearing early this month.

Michael Burchell, manager of Alexandria Dairy Products Co., Inc., one of the dairies, said he had hoped for a price cut by March 1.

"Perhaps the best we can expect now is a reduction sometime in March," he said.

Brass and Woodwind Group Hailed at Library Concert

By Paul Hume

The winds blew strong and clear last night in the Coolidge Auditorium of the Library of Congress.

There the New York Wind Ensemble played music for combinations of brass and woodwinds.

Their program was divided between the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries and our own times, with a single bow to Beethoven. Brass instruments played music of fascinating rhythmic vigor by Purcell, Pezel, Holborne, and Gabrieli.

Constantly Alive

Not only was the rhythm of those early centuries constantly alive and frequently changing but harmonic schemes often sound amazingly daring. This same thing is true of the music of our period. Thus, suites by Ingolf Dahl and Paul Hindemith bore modern resemblances to the same inventiveness as the early music.

These two periods made the Beethoven seem rather lacking in both rhythmic variety and harmonic imagination. It was an arrangement for five instruments, oboe, flute, bassoon, clarinet, and horn, of the sextet, Opus 71.

The playing of the musicians was excellent all evening.

Their director, Samuel Baron, might be said to double in brass, for he not only led the brass ensemble, but played flute and picolo in woodwind works.

Heard With Real Delight

A program refreshing enough to present music by a composer whose name we had never heard and could not find in several standard sources is a rare thing these days. But Johann Pezel was heard last night with real delight.

Paul Hindemith's chamber music for wind instruments was perfect from start to finish in its humor and endless life within formal bounds. Dahl, now teaching in southern California, is young. He is obviously of Hindemithian persuasion and of unusual gifts.

Personal Bond Practice Ends In 'Drunk Court'

The Municipal Court of Appeals opinion Thursday outlawing release on personal bond was reflected in "drunk court" sentencing yesterday.

Minimum sentences of $1 or two days were passed out to a number of first offenders who ordinarily would be freed on personal bond with a promise not to repeat the offense. No cash is put up when personal bond is taken.

Judge Frank H. Myers remarked to one defendant that the law forbade his taking personal bond but that he would make the sentence as light as possible and decreed the $1 or two-day sentence.

One on the Aisle—

Pre-Hitler Hatreds Motivate a Story

By Richard L. Coe

"THE AFFAIR BLUM," at the Little, is an engrossing German film on how justice can be juggled. Specifically, it is a story of anti-Semitism in the days of the Weimar Republic, 1926, before Hitler's rise.

Beginning slowly, it fits its pieces precisely into place, then allows a determined detective to solve the crime, closing with telling shots of the acquitted innocents wondering what the future holds for them.

We watch an unemployed thug murder for profit, hide the body in his basement and give himself away by passing forged checks. The provincial authorities, their ears already alerted to the Jew-hatred of the nascent Nazis, think they have an angel that will suit their cause when they discover that the missing man was about to reveal tax frauds on the part of a Jewish-owned firm which had recently employed him.

The case then becomes a public "proof" of the anti-Semitic theory, that Dr. Jacob Blum, in order to protect his firm's lawless dealings, had murdered the man who threatened exposure. The authorities go to endless lengths to try to prove their diabolical point. They refuse Blum and his chauffeur their legal rights, keep from their lawyer all of the accusation against Blum and reward the thug with petty promises for making it seem that their anti-Semitic case will hold water.

One top politician, a friend of the Jewish accused, risks his governmental career by taking up for him and drawing a dogged inspector into the case. The latter goes his own way, turns up irrefutable proof that the case has been formed from whole cloth and forces the immediate freeing of the innocent.

Then, in an impressively dramatic finale, we watch the quiet family celebrations of Dr. Blum and his chauffeur. Both their wives tell them that they should be of good cheer, they are free, that there has been a happy ending. But they've been through enough to wonder what the future holds for a German of 1926.

Effectively Directed

In cinematic terms, the director's touch is exact and sure. The pace is never hurried, almost maddeningly detailed at first, but as the wires tighten the effect is almost breathless and the final scene is shrewdly achieved.

And by this determined use of pacing, the detective story level becomes an engrossing foil through which glitters the more awesome truth the picture has to state. That the law and misguided or ruthless people can work to destroy the innocent is one of the lasting perils of organized society.

While the actors are not known over here, they serve their roles brilliantly. Erich Engel directed, evidently in the Soviet zone of Berlin, but there is no trace of propagandizing. Strict attention to the facts of this real life story has resulted in a picture that can be seen with profit on either side of the Iron Curtain.

"THE AFFAIR BLUM," Central Cinema Corp. release produced in Berlin by Deutsche Film, A. G. Screen play from the records by R. A. Stemmle. English subtitles by Charles Clement. Music by Herbert Trantow. Directed by Erich Engel. At the Little.

Net of Lincoln Service Climbs 36% in Year

By S. Oliver Goodman

Lincoln Service Corp., small-loan firm with headquarters in Washington, showed new records in earnings and loan volume in 1949, President Charles Delmar reported yesterday.

Delmar

Net income for the year, he said, totaled $526,455, an increase of 36 per cent over the $386,389 in 1948. Earnings on common stock were $13.08 a share, as compared with $8.99 a share in 1948.

Net addition to surplus, after dividends, was $347,566 last year against $224,087 in 1948.

A record total of $11,442,626 in loans was made during the year, against $9,147,580 in 1948, Delmar added. Loans receivable as of December 31, 1949, aggregated $6,-4 6,638, against $4,923,703 on the same 1948 date.

During the year, Lincoln Service acquired five additional operating subsidiaries, bringing the total up to 43 offices in seven states. Headquarters are in the Woodward Building here.

RECORD HECHT SALES: The Hecht Co. yesterday reported record sales of $34,058,256 for the 12 months ended January 31, a gain of 1.5 percent over the $32,799,909 in the previous fiscal year. For the three months ended January 31, net sales totaled $25,936,769, or 2.1 percent more than the $25,392,623 in the same 1949 period. The Hecht Co. operates department stores in Washington, Silver Spring (Md.), Baltimore, Annapolis, Easton (Md.) and New York City. The figures were announced yesterday by President Samuel M. Hecht.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: John C. Bates has been appointed Washington zone manager of Pontiac Motor, succeeding Charles F. Devereaux who has become Philadelphia zone manager . . . Keene A. Roadman, formerly of the United States Labor Department, has joined McCormick & Co., Inc. of Baltimore as assistant director of human relations . . . Willis D. Evans is the new general sales manager of Elgin National Watch Co. . . . John H. Elliott has been named assistant general manager of operations for the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp.

DIVIDENDS: Woodward & Lothrop yesterday announced regular quarterly dividends of 50 cents a share on common stock and $1.25 a share on preferred stock, both payable March 28 to stock of record March 9.

VARIETY: Stuart O. Thompson, president of Washington Chapter, American Savings & Loan Institute, will lead a delegation of 19 Washingtonians to the midwinter parley of the parent group, February 22-25, in Chicago . . . Silk shantung suits for men, a throwback to the early days of the century, will be put on sale this year by one manufacturer . . . Brockton, Mass., faces loss of its W. L. Douglas Shoe plant, which will be consolidated with production of the Douglas plant in Scranton, Pa. . . . The SEC, in a reply to testimony given by Cyrus Eaton, said it would be "utterly fantastic" to assume that a 50-share stockholding in Kaiser-Frazer Corp. held by one of SEC's 1039 employes, "could possibly influence" a commission's decision.

REBUILDING: A $100,000 reconstruction of Harry Kaufman, Inc., department store at 1316 7th st. nw. was announced yesterday by President Bertram Wise. Annex of the firm was virtually destroyed by fire last November and the main building was damaged. Wise said the rebuilding and renovation are expected to be completed in the latter part of March. Meanwhile, the store remains open for business.

EARNINGS: Republic Pictures Corp. reported net income of $486,-579 or 5 cents a share for 52 weeks ended October 29, 1949, against a net loss of $349,990 in the 53 weeks ended October 30, 1948. Other earnings statements:

Phoenix Insurance Net Climbs Sharply

Hartford, Conn., Feb. 17 (AP).—The Phoenix Insurance Co. and its seven affiliates reported today 1949 earnings of $9,196,900 compared with $3,725,362 in 1948.

The companies transferred five million dollars of the earnings to market fluctuation and contingency reserve, increasing the surplus to $46,069,075. Stockholders approved an increase in the capital stock from six million dollars to $7,500,-000, to be financed by a transfer from surplus. The 150,000 additional shares of $10 per value will be issued to stockholders on a one-for-four basis.

Studebaker Dividend

Directors of Studebaker Corp. declared a 60-cent dividend on common shares payable march 30 to stockholders of record March 13. Payments last year were 25 cents in March, 50 cents each in June and September and a year-end of $1.25 in December.

As Long as I Live

I miss you, my darling, with all of my heart . . . And more than my lips can say . . . I long for your smile in the beautiful while . . . Of our marvelous yesterday . . . I dream of the dusk and the silver stars . . . That fashioned a crown for you . . . And the magic night when the moon was bright . . . And the world was young and new . . . I cry and sigh for your loving lips . . . And I pray on my bended knee . . . But dim is the dawn, and your laughter is gone . . . And nothing can comfort me . . . Wherever I go and whatever I find . . . It never is quite the same . . . For I am alone and forever unknown . . . And no one remembers your name . . . Yet as long as I live and as long as I breathe . . . And as long as the sand may run . . . Whatever I do, I shall treasure you . . . My wonderful, wonderful one.

Count the letters in your first name. Subtract four if the number is six or more. Add three if the number is less than six. Then you have the key number. Check each key number left to right. The letters under the checks form a message.

"Housebroken male dog, mixture of beagle and cocker spaniel, 1 year old; wonderful with children." (Union 2486.)

"Fat 6-week-old female pup, part fox terrier." (Victor 7164.)

MAIL BAG

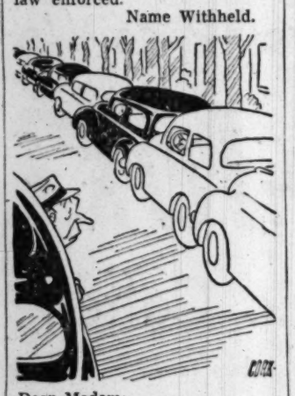
Dear Bill:

We live in the 1500 block of Monroe st. nw. Parking is permitted on only one side of the street, and we often have to wait an hour or more to find a parking space because many residents of the area do not move their cars except over the weekend.

In other words, they use the street as a storage garage, Monday through Friday.

You say that the law forbids parking for more than 18 hours. If that's true, I'd like to see the law enforced.

Name Withheld.



Dear Madam:

I'm sure that if you complain to your neighborhood police precinct, the law will be enforced.

But that won't solve the problem.

Through the years, we have permitted too many private homes and apartments to be built without proper garage facilities.

What's worse, we're still continuing this foolish practice, with the result that we're making the parking problem progressively worse.

Tens of thousands of people in Washington are forced to park on city streets. They have no choice. No other facilities are available.

If the police were to arrest everybody who violates the 18-hour law, we'd need five new jails. But that wouldn't help the parking problem one whit.

This is not a matter of legislation, or enforcement. It's a matter of construction—and the longer we put off a realistic approach to the problem, the harder it will be to solve, and the more it will cost us.

Bill

WHOSE BUSINESS IS GOVERNMENT BUSINESS?

Most of Washington's reporters are buzzing about President Truman's recent blast at the press.

The President granted an exclusive interview to a favored correspondent. When the other correspondents asked about it at the next press conference, Mr. Truman told them off.

He acknowledged that White House custom was against exclusive interviews, so that news would be available to all comers. But he said he'd break the custom whenever he pleased.

What troubles the reporters is the bad dream that they'll some day find themselves playing a scene like this:

REPORTER: Sir, I'd like to check on a report that your Department plans to spend a billion dollars on kumquat support prices. Is that true?

OFFICIAL: Are you on the Administration's favored list?

REPORTER: Yes sir; here's my card.

OFFICIAL: Has the Office of the Coordinator of Logrolling okayed you?

REPORTER: My credentials, sir.

OFFICIAL: Ummm. Everything seems to be in order. Have you signed seven copies of the standard pledge to print only the authorized version of the story, as we give it to you?

OFFICIAL: Good. You will meet one of our undercover men at 2:10 next Friday morning in the lobby of the Chancellor Hotel in Parkersburg—third potted palm from the Market st. entrance. Our secret courier will hand you the official version of the story. And make sure you're not followed; we don't want this information leaking out to the working press.

LET THE STATUS BE QUO

There has been entirely too much monkeying around with baseball in recent years. Cherished traditions of the National Pastime have been ruthlessly swept aside by too many front office moguls.

But possibly the most outrageous proposal of all came from the San Francisco Seals the other day. The Seals said they were going to stop selling peanuts in their park, because it cost too much money to sweep up the shells.

The result was such a roar of indignation from West Coast fans that the Seals were forced to reverse themselves, and promise that the goobers would stay.

It was a glorious victory for The American Way. And I hope it will serve to discourage others who have ideas about tampering with baseball.

As a matter of fact, I am in favor of only one change introduced by these insidious radicals in the past decade. I think they did well in banning the sale of drinks in bottles.

Since the introduction of the non-lethal paper cup, the life expectancy of umpires has risen so sharply that some insurance companies have begun accepting the men in blue as normal risks for accident policies.

This is a step in the right direction. I do not think a man should be discriminated against simply because his eyesight happens to be going bad.

McCarthy's Red Charges Fizzle

By Drew Pearson

You have to have a card-index system these days to keep up with the accusations of certain Congressmen regarding Communists in the Federal Government.

Sen. McCarthy

Unfortunately the average citizen doesn't have time to keep a card index, so gets confused over harum-scarum Senator Joe McCarthy's recent accusation that there were 57 card-carrying Communists in the State Department.

When the Senator from Wisconsin finally was pinned down, he could produce not 57, but only 4 names of State Department officials whom he claimed were Communists.

A careful scrutiny of these names is important. Of the four accused by McCarthy, one, Dr. Harlow Shapley, at no time worked for the State Department. Two, Gustavo Duran and Mrs. Mary Jane Keeney, resigned four years ago; the fourth, John Service, was reinstated after a prolonged and careful investigation and after virtual apologies to him for ever questioning his loyalty. He is now serving with the most anti-Russian of all American diplomats, Loy Henderson, United States Ambassador to India.

But there is even more interesting background behind Senator McCarthy's charges. Somewhat the same charges were made three years ago by another Republican, this one Congressman Bartel Jonkman of Michigan, just across the lake from McCarthy in Wisconsin.

On February 26, 1947, Jonkman named two of the same alleged State Department officials—Keeney and Duran—even though they were not then with the State Department. Jonkman also hurled some accusations at Joseph Panuch, then Deputy Assistant Secretary of State. Actually Panuch was the man who eased out Keeney and Duran, but Jonkman attacked him anyway.

As a result, Panuch sued Congressman Jonkman and the publisher of the Washington Times-Herald for libel. The suit against the Times-Herald publisher had to be dropped because of her death, but the Congressman from Michigan compromised the suit with an official abject apology which stated: "It was not my intention to accuse you of lying or of any other improper conduct in connection with your duties as Deputy Assistant Secretary of State during your tenure of office." The Congressman also paid Panuch's court costs and, incidentally, was defeated for reelection.

But now, after both the voters and Mr. Panuch took care of the Republican Congressman from Michigan, almost exactly the same charges are shouted by the Republican Senator from Wisconsin.

Truman Preaches

With Bible in hand, Baptist Harry Truman preached a sermon the other day to a dozen Methodist ministers. He started off by assuring: "Well, I am not going to preach a sermon."

Nevertheless he fingered through his Bible, read two chapters out of Isaiah, and upon this based his hope for the peace and happiness of the world.

"You said you didn't intend to preach a sermon, but you have actually preached an excellent sermon," responded Bishop J. Ralph Magee, head of the Methodist Church in Illinois, when the President had finished.

"I am sure that all the gentlemen present would be happy to have Harry Truman fill their pulpits any time he could find it possible," added Illinois' Senator Scott Lucas, who had introduced the ministers at the White House.

This brought applause from the ministers.

Truman went on to congratulate them for coming to Washington to study their Government, and suggested that more people should visit the Capital to study what the President and Congress are up against.

"Mr. Lucas is carrying a very heavy load on the Hill, and it would be difficult for me to reach my objectives without his assistance," Truman added.

As a parting shot, the President reminded the visiting ministers that his primary "theme in life is to bring peace to mankind."

Ingrid's Baby

On Capitol Hill, the big issues of the day are not always discussed on the floor of the Senate, but in the Senators' private restaurant. There, Senators are franker than when their words are recorded by a stenographer for posterity to read.

But in the Senate Restaurant today, hottest topic is not Russia, nor China, nor surplus potatoes—but Ingrid Bergman's baby.

Virginia's Senator Willis Robertson is firm in the view that society must frown on Ingrid's illicit romance with Director Roberto Rossellini and the majority agree. Privately, however, Senators sympathize with Miss Bergman's right to live her own life.

"I guess they must have fallen crazy in love," mused Texas' elderly Senator Tom Connally over his bean soup.

Ingrid, Baby Son Leave Hospital With Rossellini

Rome, Feb. 17 (U.P.) — Ingrid Bergman and her 15-day-old son, Renato, left the Villa Margherita Clinic today. Friends said they went directly to her apartment in the exclusive Parioli district.

They were accompanied by Roberto Rossellini, officially registered as father of the child. Rossellini said last week the actress' return to her apartment was delayed only by the illness of her maids.

It was believed Renato would be baptized in the Catholic Church in a few days, but there was no expectation Rossellini and Miss Bergman would marry soon.

Shredded coconut, seedless raisins, citron and almonds make these "Raisin Drop Cookies" especially good for a party. These rich and fruity mounds will look pretty on the cookie platter that you pass to folks who stop by to see you.
RAISIN DROP COOKIES
1 cup seedless raisins
½ cup shredded coconut
¼ cup citron
¾ cup roasted blanched almonds
½ cup shortening
1/3 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
2/3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flou (may vary slightly)
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
Rinse and drain raisins. Dry thoroughly. Put raisins, coconut, citron and almonds through food chopper. Cream shortening and sugar. Mix in egg yolks and milk. Sift flour with baking powder and salt, and blend into creamed mixture. Stir in vanilla, orange rind and raisin mixture, blending well. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Drop in small mounds onto greased cookie sheets. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes.
Makes about 2½ dozen medium-sized cookies.
